

Air Force Less Than Clear On Extent Of Nuclear Contamination At GAFB

By Mark Gutglueck

VICTORVILLE—The environmental remediation at what was formerly George Air Force Base, while targeting a host of substances now acknowledged as having been in use during the base's active military engagement from 1941 to 1992, does not officially include radioactive and other non-nuclear weapons grade materials known to have contaminated the facility and which were buried at two sites on the air base grounds.

Shuttered by the Department of Defense in 1992, George for the past two decades has been undergoing a civilian use reconfiguration, and is today known as Southern California Logistics Airport, which is managed, essentially, by the city of Victorville.

The base was built in 1941, just prior to the United States' entrance into World War II. Then known as the Victorville Army Airfield, it was utilized for training Army Air Corps pilots during the war. It was placed on standby status in September 1945, shortly after hostilities in that conflict concluded. In 1950, three years after the Army Air Corps was reconstituted as the Air Force, the base was reactivated in June of that year and renamed in honor of Brigadier General Harold Huston George.

Over the years George was a key component of U.S. involvement in the Korean War and the Vietnam War, as well as being a primary base for the Western Air Defense Force. As such it was home to the 1st Fighter-Interceptor Wing, the 94th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, the 27th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron the 71st Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, the 94th Fighter-Interceptor

Second Federal Judge Rebuffs Fire Union In Struggle With SB Over BK Economies

All three of the appeals filed by the San Bernardino City Professional Firefighters in February challenging U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Meredith Jury's rulings giving the city of San Bernardino relatively wide latitude in realigning its spending priorities were rejected on May 7 by the U.S. District Court judge who considered them.

San Bernardino, which filed for Chapter

9 bankruptcy protection in 2012 and has delayed and postponed payments to dozens of its creditors and vendors, has also sought to regain its financial footing by reducing its staff costs through lower employee salaries and pensions. The latter objective was particularly difficult to achieve, as Section 186 of the city's charter, put into place as the result of a citywide vote in 1939, requires that the city's public safety employees – firemen and police officers – be paid on a scale equal to the average pay of policemen and firefighters in ten similarly-sized California cities.

In its bankruptcy filing, San Bernardino cited its $180 million in ongoing unfunded liabilities and $49 million annual operating deficit in seeking the

YUCCA VALLEY — Though medical marijuana has been legal in the state of California since 1996, a majority of the state's cities have held the line against permitting dispensaries to function within their boundaries. ## SB Sixth Ward Commission Applicants Sought

San Bernardino, Mayor Pro Tempore/6th Ward Council Member Rikke Van Johnson has announced three vacancies on city boards for the district he represents, including one on the Animal Control Commission, one on the Historical Preservation Commission, and one on the Volunteer Citizen-Based Charter Committee.

"The city of San Bernardino has boards, commissions and committees which advise and assist the council in dealing with specific issues," Johnson said. "Prospective members are nominated by council members and appointed by the mayor with the approval of the council. If you are interested in applying for consideration for an opportunity to serve the 6th Ward on a board, commission or committee, please feel free to contact my council office or visit the city of San Bernardino web-

Yucca Valley Landowners Approve Wastewater System Assessments

By a significant margin, Yucca Valley voters passed a measure to form an assessment district to build a sewer system to serve the town of 20,700.

As of the May 13 deadline, 5,488 of the 10,326 ballots mailed out had been returned. Of those 5,488 ballots received, 4,942 were deemed valid, with 546 being rejected because the ballots were improperly filled out.

The tallying of the ballots was not based upon the simple number of votes for or against approving the sewer system assessments. Rather, each of the ballots was accorded weight based on the proposed assessment value of the property owned by the voter. Under this measure, 72 percent of those responding, representing $49.1 million in estimated property value, favored the levying of the assessments, while 28 percent, speaking for $18.9 million in property value, voted no.

Since 2011, the community of Yucca Valley has been under a mandate by the Regional Water Quality Control Board to complete or to make significant progress toward the first phase of a sewer system, covering the downtown area of Yucca Valley, by May 19, 2016; complete the second phase of the system by May 19, 2019 and the third phase by May 19, 2022. If each progressive stage of the project is not completed, the state is threatening enforcement intended to prevent future use of existing septic systems, which are considered to be contaminating the local water supply. The state threats included fines of amounts as much as $5,000 per day against those continuing to use their septic systems or who do not vacate their property.

The first phase of the project is to serve the area most proximate to the heart of the groundwater basin. See P 15

County Sues Architect And Engineer Over Adelanto Jail Cost Overruns

More than a year after the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors gave direction to county counsel to file a lawsuit against the architectural and engineering firms county officials deem responsible for a major portion of the $29 million construction cost overruns on the county's Adelanto Detention Center, the county made good on that threat.

On May 1, the county, represented by the law firm of Allen Matkins Leck Gamble, filed suit against the architectural firm of Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum, Incorporated, based in Culver City, and Los Angeles-based Jacobs Engineering, alleging breach of contract and negligence.

The board on April 22, 2014 had authorized legal action against the two firms, but more than a year had elapsed without the filing of a suit. It was recently revealed that the county had provided Allen Matkins Leck Gamble with a retainer of $700,000 to pursue the case against Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs. The actual filing of a suit was held in abeyance while Allen Matkins Leck Gamble and county representatives sought to negotiate with the two firms a settlement short of litigation that would be acceptable to the board of supervisors. After burning through $182,000 of that retainer, Allen Matkins Leck Gamble was making what was deemed insufficient progress toward having Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs acknowledge any responsibility for the overruns. Among the aircraft deployed at the base were F-51 Mustangs, Douglas B-26 Invaders, North American F-86 Sabres, Republic F-84 Thunderjets, F-102s, A F-106s, F-4 Phantoms and F-105s.

In 1977 there were reports of contaminated soil on the base, including pesticide contamination around base housing. The Air Force initially denied those reports, but by 1979, acknowledged that such a problem existed. In 1981, base medical personnel were advising active duty female Air Force personnel and the wives of airmen stationed at the base that it was inadvisable for them to become pregnant while stationed at the base because of the high infant mortality rate experienced there.

Beginning in the early 1980s, the Air Force undertook efforts to quantify the level of contamination and then decontaminate the soil and groundwater there. An initial survey identified 213 spots on the 5,062-acre base where significant concentrations of contamination existed. Acknowledged by the Air Force was that the base environs was heavily laden with jet fuel, gasoline, paints and solvents. It was subsequently established that base housing and other buildings contained lead and asbestos.

Unacknowledged by the Air Force was that weapons grade materials, both conventional and atomic, were cavalierly handled at the base, having been jettisoned into a dump at the installation known as the southeast disposal area, as well as at another burial site proximate to the base's alert hangar.

In the early and mid-1990s, in anticipation of and shortly after the shuttering of the base, efforts at environmental remediation were ongoing as the county of San Bernardino, the cities of Victorville and Hesperia and the town of Apple Valley, under the aegis of the Victor Valley Economic Development Authority, competed with the city of Adelanto for the right to assume ownership and control of the base on the basis of competing civilian conversion and reuse plans. Ultimately, the Victor Valley Economic Development Authority, with the city of Victorville in the lead, would prevail in that competition.

Meanwhile, however, controversy was attending the base contamination remediation effort. While the Cold War appeared to be drawing to a close, with Mikhail Gorbachev's Glasnost reaching fruition, the de-erection of the Berlin Wall, the reunification of Germany and ultimately the fragmenting of the Soviet Union, the Pentagon was yet reluctant to make full disclosure of the nuclear policy and military strategy and tactics that had been employed by the U.S. military. Denise Caron, the civilian Air Force employee who was then overseeing the clean-up of George, publicly stated that no radioactive materials had been present on the base. "We didn't have a nuclear mission at George," she asserted. "We didn't use nukes. We didn't use tactical nukes."

Caron's assertions resulted in a number of former airmen at the base coming forward to contradict her statements, including some who offered documentary and photographic evidence to back up their claims, such as a photograph reportedly taken on April 11, 1961 of four members of an ordinance loading crew with the 329th Fighter Interceptor Squadron then stationed at George as they affixed a Douglas MB-1 Genie nuclear air-to-air missile to the undercarriage of an F-105 interceptor. Caron's claims were discredited under an avalanche of data, including lab tests ordered up by then-Congressmen George Brown and Jerry Lewis and performed by Helgeson Scientific Services, which involved gamma radiation counts showing enriched uranium-235 and unidentified radionuclides, believed to be Americium and strontium, had been present on the base. Also surfacing were surveys of water drawn from test wells sunk at various spots around the base showing the presence of radionuclides in the water table below the base.

The southeast disposal area is less than three-quarters of a mile upstream from residential, agricultural and commercial supply wells for Adelanto, Oro Grande and a portion of Victorville.

At that point, two of the region's political figures weighed in on the issue. Terry Caldwell, an attorney and a long time council member and mayor in Victorville, publicly stated that Caron's assertion that there had been no nuclear mission at George was patently false, as it was well understood that George was an important element of the Western Defense Force that involved jets, armed with nuclear-tipped missiles, tasked with the assignment of shooting down any incoming Soviet ballistic missiles or bombers incoming over the Pacific Ocean or the Arctic in the event of a Doomsday exchange between the Politburo and the White House. And Hesperia councilman/mayor Theron Honeycutt related that his company had been hired by the Air Force to go onto George and "cap," i.e., fill will gravel and then cover with concrete, several existing wells.

Attention was then vectored to a Office of Special Investigations (O.S.I) investigation that had been undertaken at the base in 1989 and 1990, which was aimed at determining if weapons grade materials had been disposed of at the base. The investigator heading that inquiry was Christian Filipiak. The standards applied in that investigation required permission of the court to suspend its financial obligations and commitments to reach solvency, balance its books and get its fiscal house in order. The city imposed contracts on its police and fire unions in January 2013 in accordance with its financial recovery strategy, reducing those employees' take home pay by more than 13 percent. The firefighters resisted that move.

In September 2014, Riverside-based Federal Bankruptcy Judge Meredith Jury acceded to the city's request to abrogate its labor contract with the firefighters union and impose a contract with terms more favorable to the city and less advantageous to the firefighters. At that time she also reaffirmed an earlier ruling she had made imposing a stay on any litigation against the city on financial issues while the bankruptcy is being heard. Subsequently, Jury rejected another motion by the firefighters union for relief from the stay.

The union representing the firefighters appealed all three of Jury's rulings. Last week, Judge Otis D. Wright II, a United States District Judge on the United States District Court for the Central District of California, rejected those appeals, siding with Jury in holding that the city was within legal bounds in imposing temporary economies on its public safety division and safety employees in seeking to map its way out of insolvency.

In rendering his decision, Wright, once a public safety employee himself who worked as a deputy sheriff in the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department from 1969 to 1980, was critical of the firefighters' union for its "stubbornness" in the face, of what he characterized as the "city's willingness to meet and compromise."

Wright sized up as "merit-less" the union's claim the city had not complied with state law in its negotiations, saying it "is quite apparent from the wealth of e-mail traffic between the parties" that the "union's claim that the evidence regarding reasonable efforts is 'scant' is a misrepresentation of the evidence."

Wright's rulings extend only to the issues raised by the firefighters union in the context of Jury's ruling's pertaining to the bankruptcy case in federal court. The rulings are unlikely to have any direct impact on either of two lawsuits filed in state court by the firefighters union on April 9 and April 10. The first of those suits asserted the city has run afoul of the aforementioned Section 186 of the city's municipal charter in imposing rampdowns on firefighter pay. The second suit takes issue with an October vote of the city council which altered the city's pension plan for its firefighters and shuttered one of the fire department's fire stations while implementing "constant staffing," which involves a strategy by which the department schedules a minimum number of staffed fire engines or paramedic units at all times and apports those crews in numbers to correspond with peak usage periods in an effort to reduce manpower demands and head off excessive overtime.

Last year, the city council collectively sought to maneuver around Charter Section 186 by placing Measure Q on the November ballot. That initiative was aimed at eliminating the requirement that the pay of police officers and firefighters in San Bernardino be computed on the basis of an average of their counterparts' salaries in like-sized California cities. Measure Q was stridently opposed by the police and fire unions who ran a well-funded campaign against it, and the measure failed.

These legal actions proceed in an atmosphere in which San Bernardino is on the brink of radically reorienting fire department pay and deployment issues, and perhaps divesting itself of its in-house fire department altogether.

As early as 2012, city officials were kicking around the concept of dissolving the municipal fire department and contracting with another provider of fire service, most likely a governmental entity, to staff the city's fire stations. Given San Bernardino's weak financial picture and its ongoing bankruptcy in which it was withholding payment from the lion's share of its vendors and service providers, no fire protection operations were enthusiastic about taking on such an assignment. In an early indication of the difficulty San Bernardino would have in finding an outside agency to come in and act as its contracted fire department, California

Ken Pimlott

Department of Forestry and Fire Protection Fire Chief Ken Pimlott in November 2013 responded in writing to the city's solicitation, stating that "given the current fiscal instability faced by the city of San Bernardino, it does not meet the criteria to be considered for a cooperative agreement."

Undaunted, the city council in August 2014 directed city manager Allen Parker to seek bids from a host of agencies that might provide fire services. Parker approached the county, the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection, and the fire departments of some surrounding cities, in particular Colton, which has a cooperative service arrangement with the city of Loma Linda, to see if they would, in exchange for a set fee, take on the burden of providing fire protection to the county seat.

Pimlott reiterated his lack of interest in having his agency take on fire protection duties in San Bernardino. This slight miffed members of the city council and in Janu-

Forum... Or Against 'em Observations from a Decidedly Continental Perspective

By Count Friedrich von Olsen

Ah, how I miss the Yangtze Restaurant! It was in my estimation the finest Chinese restaurant in the region! But alas, it is gone! They say that someplace in Missouri there was a hamburger stand that sold hamburgers for which Elvis Presley had a particular affection. He would dispatch one of his people in his personal jet to pick up a bag of them and return to his Graceland Mansion in Memphis so he could enjoy a late night feast. I am slightly less decadent. Unlike Elvis, for my gustatory adventures, I prefer to sojourn personally, rather than sending someone to fetch my grub for me. Whenever I would get a hankering for some chop suey, I would have Anthony fire up the Bentley and we would sojourn down from my mountain redoubt here in Lake Arrowhead to the base of the San Bernardino Mountains and then westward and a little further south to Ontario, where we could dine at the Yangtze. The place was closed down in April, which has had an impact on my existence, as I now have little inducement to venture out into the wide world. Instead, I have become sedentary, a virtual recluse, a shut-in, a stay-at-home here at my palatial chalet...

Indeed, about the only reason I get out anymore is to gumshoe around to find something for this column. Just this week I was chasing around, going after something that hasn't quite panned out yet, though perhaps next week or next month I will be able to illuminate a violation of the public trust you should all know about. Anyway, burning all that shoe leather left me hungry and, lo and behold, just ahead was a Panda Express. Visions of the Yangtze danced in my head. The gleaming, up-to-date decor brought me back to reality, though, and I reduced my expectations to something below the lines of one of the restaurants in San Francisco or Monterey. Even then, the names of the fare - Sweetfire Chicken and Cream Cheese Rangoon - told me that this wasn't your grandfather's Chinese restaurant. To be completely fair, the item I settled on - Beijing Beef - wasn't bad. It acquitted itself, but I would not have confused it with any of my favorites from the Yangtze, to be sure. But here is the rub: for eating utensils I was provided not with chop sticks, but a plastic fork! This is an abomination! I know I am an old man, long past my prime of usefulness at what is of interest or import to the younger generation. Still, I fear that posterity is in danger of losing touch with the finer elements of the world as I know it, the very stuff of life that makes it so interesting. For me, using a set of chop sticks transports me, if only momentarily, to Hong Kong, to Shanghai, to Chongqing, to Taipei, to the faraway places of my younger self. How now, a plastic fork...

Two vultures boarded a plane, each carrying two dead raccoons. The stewardess stopped them, saying, "I am sorry but you are permitted only one carrion per passenger..."

A turtle was walking down an alley in a big city when he was mugged by a gang of snails. A police detective came to investigate. He told the turtle to compose himself and tell him exactly what happened. The turtle gave the detective a forlorn look and then with consternation replied, "I can't really say. You see, it all happened so fast..."

that findings of radioactive contamination not be reported until radioactive contamination readings from a single well were confirmed by two subsequent readings. According to Filipiak, who retired shortly after the investigation at George was completed, the wells at George that showed the presence of radiation were capped in each case after a second sampling showing radioactive contamination was drawn, thus circumventing any mandated report of that contamination.

In December 1993, Caron asserted that the O.S.I. investigation had ascertained that no weapons grade materials had ever been disposed of at the base. Filipiak, however, contradicted Caron, stating publicly that the parameters of the report, as dictated by the Air Force and the Department of Defense, had steered the investigation away from such a conclusion a priori by limiting the scope and content of both the investigation and its report.

In addition to the disposal of nuclear material at the base, also at issue was whether non-nuclear weapons grade materials had been placed into the unlined disposal areas at the base, identified as the base's southeast disposal area as well as pits dug behind the base's alert hangar. Some of that material would have included TNT and rocket/misile propellants containing perchlorate, a highly toxic contaminant known to cause thyroid damage in minute quantities.

When Freedom of Information requests for the report were made, in the 1990s, the Air Force refused to release the report on National Security Grounds. With the subsidence of the Cold War, another Freedom of Information request for any information pertaining to records of weapons grade contamination, nuclear or conventional, at George as well as for Filipiak's report was made in 2011. That request was met with a response from Anne C. Costa, the chief of the information branch with the Air Force, stating "If there was a record it would have been destroyed after 25 years in accordance with Air Force Instruction 33-364 which governs all records disposition codes and retention" and "It has been determined that the Air Force Office of Special Investigations is not maintaining any information responsive to your request."

Most of the environmental remediation work relating to closed-out military bases is carried out under the authority and protocol of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, (CERCLA) commonly known as Superfund, which was enacted by Congress in 1980. Congress gave the Department of Defense, including the Air Force, the right to withhold information about "classified environmental contamination" from the CERCLA deed restrictions, which come into play when title to former military base properties are transferred to others. Buried in the language of a subsequent version of the act, under the heading "Classified Information," is this statement: "Notwithstanding any other provision of law, all requirements of the Atomic Energy Act and all executive orders concerning the handling of restricted data and national security information, including 'need to know' requirements, shall be applicable to any grant of access to classified information under the provisions of this Act or under title III of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986.

In addition the Department of Defense and Air Force inserted a noteworthy clause in the Federal Facility Agreement for George AFB that gives them the right to withhold records pertaining to classified environmental contamination at the property. That clause, contained on page 43 of the document, states "Release Of Records 23.1 The parties may request of one another access to or a copy of any record or document relating to this agreement or the installation restoration program. If the party that is the subject of the request [i.e., the Department of Defense and the Air Force] has the record or document, that party shall provide access to or a copy of the record or document; provided, however, that no access to or copies of records or documents need be provided if they are subject to claims of attorney-client privilege, attorney work product, deliberative process, enforcement confidentiality, or properly classified for national security under law or executive order."

The Air Force, while generally asserting that it is cooperating and has cooperated with all federal, state and local agencies in facilitating the transfer of George to the Victor Valley Economic Development Authority, when confronted with specific requests for data which it was unwilling to provide acknowledged withholding records and information from regulators, contractors, and the public about contamination.

In an Air Force Real Property Agency document dated May 8, 2003 entitled "Buried Radioactive Weapons Maintenance Waste," the Air Force acknowledges "All activities supporting the nuclear defense program are highly classified to protect national security. Since this included weapons maintenance waste materials during the period involved, information on the amounts and locations of this waste was not found in the historical records searches originally performed as a basis for cleanup. The recent availability of the documents from the Cold War era has led to the discovery of locations where low-level radioactive waste from weapons maintenance activities may have been buried in the weapons storage areas."

The Air Force touts the efforts it has made in cooperation with the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the state of California's Lahontan Regional Water Quality Control Board and Department of Toxic Substances Control in remediating pollution at George Air Force Base, which is now being run by the city of Victorville as Southern California Logistics Airport.

In publicly available documents, the Air Force has acknowledged groundwater at, around or below the base is "contaminated with jet fuel, trichloroethylene, pesticides and nitrates. Soil is contaminated with total petroleum hydrocarbons, dioxins, construction debris, medical wastes, pesticides, semi-volatile organic compounds and various inorganic compounds."

Because of the extent and degree of some of that contamination, transfer of portions of the base property to the city of Victorville through the Victor Valley Economic Development Authority, has been delayed.

According to the Air Force, the remediation is slightly more than three-quarters completed. The Air Force has spent $105.9 million on its clean-up effort at George so far. Air Force officials are hopeful the full remediation will be complete by 2020, at which point it is anticipated the Air Force will have ventured something near $150 million in the environmental clean-up.

A major portion of the cost has consisted of attenuating trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination. TCE was a solvent widely used in the aeronautics industry as a degreaser.

The Air Force acknowledges having closed off six spots on the former base grounds that will be inaccessible even after the bulk of the base has been fully transferred to Victorville. It is believed at least two of those are "hot spots" where radioactive materials were discarded and where radioactivity is still present in the soil and water.

According to Linda Stone of the Lahontan Regional Water Quality Control Board, "The water board has information regarding radiological waste at Site RW009, located in the covered portion of the southeast disposal area of the former facility on land currently owned by the Federal Bureau of Prisons, south of Air Expressway Blvd. The Air Force issued a Final Remedial Action Completion Report Radioactive Disposal Site RW009 in November 2013. The water board deferred review of the radiological issues to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) based on EPA's expertise on human health risks. The EPA accepted the document and the Air Force's request for no further action at RW009."

In the body of the text for the Remedial Action Completion Report, the Air Force seeks to downplay the seriousness of the contamination issue at the southeast disposal area. Page 2-4 of that document states "Site characterization activities were performed in 1994 and served to investigate the potential for the presence of low-level radioactive wastes. These activities determined background levels of total gamma radiation and quantified radionuclide concentrations. All excavated materials were radiologically screened via a material sorting plant and sampled for analysis where necessary. All soils which represented background were back-filled. This investigation thoroughly explored Site RW009 areas suspected of containing radioactive materials, and two radioactive sources were identified, a 2.3-microcurie cesium-137 source and an electron tube (vacuum tube) containing thorium and uranium. These items were disposed via destructive testing at an off-site analytical laboratory. The identification of very few radioactive materials indicated that large-scale disposal of radioactive waste did not occur at IRP Site RW009. This work demonstrated that no known radiological contamination remained and that the IRP Site RW009 disposal site was suitable for removal as an impacted site from the southeast disposal area."

Stone further told the Sentinel, "The report also described two groundwater sampling events for radiologic constituents. The first event (1986) found gross alpha activities exceeded the maximum contaminant levels for drinking water in two of five wells at the site. The second event (1987) found all radiologic samples were below maximum contaminant levels in all five wells. Based on the data showing that the groundwater met drinking water standards, the Water Board did not require additional groundwater investigations for radiological constituents."

Don Gronstal, the environmental coordinator with the Air Force Civil Engineer Center overseeing the Air Force effort at George whose office is at McClellan Air Force Base in Northern California, requested that the Sentinel's questions relating to the environmental circumstance at the former George Air Force Base be put in writing. At press time, he had not responded to those questions.

Jess Stout

Jess Lee Stout was born on September 1, 1899 in Mount City Missouri, the son of Charles and Lulu (Roach) Stout. His family moved to Rupert, Idaho, where Jess was educated, and he graduated from high school in the class of 1920. He later attended a business school in Idaho. Jess and Marie Bell were married in Rupert, Idaho, on December 10, 1921. They had one son, Jess L. Stout, Jr. Jess and Marie were subsequently divorced and on July 16,

1960, Jess and Ada P. Hannah were married in

Jess Stout

Reno, Nevada.

Stout worked as a farmer in Idaho until 1922, at which time he moved his family to the Los Angeles area. From 1922 to 1929 he worked for the Standard Oil Company in El Segundo and San Bernardino. From 1929 to 1937 he was a salesman for the Metropolitan Insurance Company. He was the secretary and treasurer for the Eagles Lodge until 1940.

In December 1940, Stout won the Fifth Supervisorial District election to the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, succeeding

John Andreson, Jr.

As a county supervisor, Stout was a staunch supporter of the Army Corps of Engineers' Lytle-Cajon Creeks Flood Control Project. He also played key roles in transitioning the San Bernardino Municipal Airport into the San Bernardino Air Depot (later Norton Air Force Base) and for facilitating the development of the Kaiser Steel Plant.

In 1944, he was defeated for reelection by Howard L. Holcomb. He left office in December 1944. He was, for many years thereafter, a bailiff with the San Bernardino County Marshal's Office

Stout was a member of the county planning commission and the San Bernardino City Unified School District Board of Education. He was a charter member of the San Bernardino County Rangers and president of the United Commercial Travelers. He was a member of Elks Lodge #836, the York Rite Masons and Phoenix Lodge, F. And A.M, Al Malai-kah Temple, Eagles Aerie #506, and the San Bernardino Horseman's Association. He was a member of the Public Lands Committee of the County Supervisors Association of Southern California.

Mr. Stout died on December 26, 1976, in San Bernardino. Survivors included his wife Ada, his son, Jess L., a brother, Russell E., and two grandchildren, all of San Bernardino.

ary, they directed Parker to look into pursuing a possible lawsuit against the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection, which provides fire protection in the neighboring city of Highland, to force that state agency to bid on providing fire and emergency medical services for San Bernardino. Cooler heads prevailed, however, and city attorney Gary Saenz did not actually initiate that suit.

Within the last fortnight, it was disclosed that the San Bernardino County Fire Department, the Colton Fire Department and Centerra Group, a private company, are entertaining the notion of making bids to provide fire service under a contractual arrangement with San Bernardino. On May 5 representatives of those two public agencies and Centerra, which has its corporate headquarters in Palm Beach Gardens, Florida, showed up at a closed-door informational exchange meeting at which the prospect of those entities completing applications to provide that service to the city was explored.

It is not clear whether the county fire department or Colton will make such an application.

Centerra Group, a company also known as G4S Government Solutions, is a multidisciplinary service provider, including fire protection to various cities and government agencies. Centerra appears purposed to seek the contract. The city wants those entities to present their proposals, including costs in full, by May 20.

Ascertaining whether the city will be able to obtain significant savings by closing out its fire department and meet its fire safety service responsibility through an alternate arrangement is of some moment since the city council is slated to vote on its bankruptcy exit plan on May 22, which Judge Jury has requested be submitted to her by May 30.

Yucca Valley Vote On Marijuana Initiative Set For June 2 from front page

inevitably becoming the target of code enforcement efforts that will put them out of business and impose fines on them, biting into or eating up their profits. Others have been prosecuted, by either state authorities or federal prosecutors, and in some cases have been imprisoned.

In Yucca Valley, the Alliance For Safe Access has overcome the resistance of the town's political leadership and active Christian and conservative value advocates to place a measure before the voters calling for allowing two dispensaries to operate within town limits. Along the way, the movement has picked up some predictable opposition and some unlikely support.

Absentee ballots for the initiative, designated Measure X, have gone out to the nearly 3,000 of the town's 9,940 voters who have requested them. The election will be held on June 2 at which the remaining voters will have the option of going to the polls. A vote in favor of Measure X will allow one dispensary in town for every 10,000 people living there. With a population of 20,700, two clinics selling cannabis will be allowed to operate.

Jason Elsasser, the leader of the Alliance for Safe Access of Yucca Valley, began circulating the election petition late last summer in a delayed reaction to the closure of a clinic that operated in town between 2008 and 2010. That clinic had gotten its operating charter from the city by applying for a business license as an "herbal shop."

Upon town officials learning that the enterprise was a dispensary, they initiated efforts to close it but were met by the owner's threat of litigation. The town and the clinic owner arrived at an agreement by which the owner was able to remain in business for a specified period. Before that deadline elapsed, the operation proved lucrative enough for the owner to reach his financial goals and he voluntarily closed.

In Yucca Valley, two of the most powerful political entities in town, the Reverend Roger Mayes and the Reverend Jerel Hagerman, have indicated their opposition to any effort to liberalize marijuana availability. They are capable of delivering a massive block of votes, consisting of those from their parishioners. Despite the zeal of Mayes and Hagerman and those likewise against the availability of the drug in Yucca Valley, Elsasser and other advocates for the availability of medical marijuana in that town effectively overran the town council's procedural blockade of local marijuana clinics by getting the requisite number of voter signatures on the petition to direct the town council to either adopt a new code allowing dispensaries or put the matter to the ballot. The town council eventually acceded to the success of that initiative petition process, but in so doing altered the initiative from its original form. It is that altered version of the initiative that is on the ballot.

The council's members are supported by Mayes and Hagerman, and it is an open question whether the opponents will deliver enough votes against Measure X to sway the election.

Advocates for the availability of medical marijuana asserted that there is considerable demand for the drug in Yucca Valley and that the town council, by its efforts to prevent the operation of dispensaries in town, has been forcing customers to purchase the product from criminals selling it illegally or in the alternative travel to other cities where clinics are permitted and where those municipalities have tapped the tax revenue available from the sales.

If Measure X is approved by the town's voters, it would override the town's current marijuana dispensary ban, creating licensing requirements and regulations for such clinics, making Yucca Valley the first of San Bernardino County's municipalities to allow the legal operation of medical marijuana dispensaries. The shops would be limited to locating in industrial areas inside of town limits and could not be any more proximate than 600 feet from a school or a church.

Though the town council on balance is opposed to permitting the clinics, council member Robert Leone, a former police officer, favors them. He says he became convinced of the medical efficacy of the drug during his son's battle with cancer. Earlier this year he made a motion calling for simply adopting the initiative as drafted but saw that motion die for the lack of a second, and the council voted to put the redrafted measure on the special election ballot for June 2. Yucca Valley Planning Commissioner Jeff Drozd has publicly stated that he had a positive experience with Marinol, a synthesized derivative of cannabis that limited the nausea he experienced when he was undergoing treatment for cancer more than a decade ago.

County Sues Adelanto Jail Architect & Engineer

final cost overrun on the project attributable to either Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs occurred in March 2014. Any legal action by the county against those firms would need to be pursued within two years of the recording of that overrun. The county elected late last month to initiate the lawsuit at this time to increase its leverage in seeking to forge a settlement.

The lawsuit has the potential of costing the county well over a million dollars to litigate if the matter actually goes to trial. There is a prospect that the county could recover those legal costs, but only if it prevails at trial. If the county loses the suit, it would be on the hook not only for the fees to be paid to Allen Matkins Leck Gamble but also, potentially, for the attorney fees paid by Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs to their attorneys.

The construction bill on the project was originally slated at $90,951,937, but after a total of 29 change orders and contract amendments, the price zoomed to $120,419,790.

Moreover, the total price tag on the project, including engineering, architectural, licensing and inspection costs, reached $145,451,910, which was $25.45 million more than the $120 million projected to be the project's overall price including a ten percent cost overrun contingency when it was approved in 2010.

The facility, located on 9438 Commerce Way in Adelanto, was formerly privately owned and run as a 706-inmate capacity institution known as Maranatha Prison. It was sold by its owner, the Moreland Family Trust, to the county in April 2005 for $31.2 million. The expansion added 1,392 new beds to the existing capacity of the jail.

Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum, Incorporated was originally given a $4,466,000 contract to provide architectural service on the project. Nine amendments later, Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum's contract reached $10,438,396, an increase of $5,972,396.

When the lawsuit was authorized nearly 13 months ago, it was stated that both Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs were the parties responsible for design flaws that resulted in inadequacies with the fire sprinkler and smoke detection and evacuation systems that entailed millions of dollars in additional construction costs, all of which were paid to Bellevue, Washington-based Lydig Construction, the general contractor on the project.

In December 2010 the county awarded a $90,951,937 contract to Lydig Construction as the low bidder, after making a finding the bids received from S.J. Amorosa Construction Co., Inc. of Costa Mesa and Flintco of Folsom to be non-responsive.

Among the contract amendments that followed were the fifth one approved by the board of supervisors on February 23, 2013, in order to accommodate state fire marshal-mandated changes to the smoke control evacuation and automatic fire sprinkler systems, an increase in number and size the heating ventilation and air conditioning structural roof supports as well as to make further modifications mandated by the state fire marshal and various other agencies. That amendment provided Lydig with a $2,472,388 enhancement to the contract.

On May 21, 2013 the county made a sixth amendment to Lydig's contract, this time relating to labor and materials for the revision of the smoke control systems and fire protection systems, to, in the exact words of county director of architecture and engineering Carl Alban, "convert the specified fire smoke dampers to smoke dampers as part of the revisions to the smoke control system" in the amount of $5,063,392.

On June 25, 2013, the board of supervisors approved an eighth amendment to the contract in the amount of $6,004,736 to cover labor, materials, labor impacts and acceleration costs related to the revision of the smoke control systems and fire protection systems, a portion of the cost of which was covered with Amendment No. 6.

On August 6, 2013, the board approved an eleventh amendment, providing Lydig with $709,533 for the installation of a third electrical service necessary to increase the available power for providing capacity for future upgrades of the facility; the installation of a fire booster pump to ensure the proper flow and functioning of the fire protection systems; the expedited procurement and delivery of smoke control panels and supervisory panels necessary to achieve the scheduled project completion date; and the relocation of smoke detectors in the dormitory sleeping areas as required by the Board of State and Community Corrections.

On November 11, 2013 the board approved a twelfth amendment to the contract for $415,952 to add twenty-seven dampers to the smoke evacuation ductwork, modify the glazing stops at master control, install fire wrap to ducts and dampers at specified locations and separate the dry zones at the housing units.

On December 17, 2013 the board of supervisors approved a thirteenth amendment in the amount of $304,450 for modifications to the electrical service yard, fire sprinkler system isolation in the support building and constructing foundation and adding position indication valve and monitoring devices for the fire booster pump, relocating fire/smoke dampers, revising exhaust duct risers in the center core of the housing units and adding a control module to the master control fire shutter.

On March 25, 2014,

the board of supervisors approved the fourteenth change order on the project, one for $336,682 to cover the cost of correcting overcurrent issues, improvements to water facility operations, balancing of the smoke control system, perform load bank testing of the generators and to carry out various corrective work.

Suggestions during the more than two years while costs on the project were escalating pertained to kickbacks involving county officials and not Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum or Jacobs but rather the Washington State-based general contractor on the project, as it was the primary beneficiary of the cost overruns. The county has not authorized any action against Lydig and has not made any public reproof of county architectural and engineering division employees who recommended passage of the contract amendments and change orders which created the cost overruns.

Rather, the lawsuit suggests that Lydig played a leading role in revealing the flaws contained in Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum or Jacobs' design specifications.

"The county is informed and believes that Lydig internally began to raise questions with Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs about the sufficiency of their design of smoke control systems in January of 2011," according to the lawsuit. "Ultimately, it took nearly two years for Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs to rectify all of the defects in their designs."

Though the project took nearly three years to complete, the county was rushing things as it needed to complete the expansion by January 31, 2014 or face losing $100 million in state funding. This impatience on the county's part, which led to Alban and other county officials prompting the board of supervisors to approve the hodge-podge, stop-gap and improvisational

The claimant under said Notice of Delinquent Assessment heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located and more than three months have elapsed since such recordation. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 573-1965 or (619) 704-1090 or visit the Internet Web site priorityposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case AL14342. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum due under said Notice of Delinquent Assessment, with interest thereon, as provided in said notice, advances, if any, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee, to-wit: $13,595.21 Estimated Accrued interest and additional advances, if any, will increase this figure prior to sale. The claimant under said Notice of Delinquent Assessment heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located and more than three months have elapsed since such recordation. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 573-1965 or (619) 704-1090 or visit the Internet Web site priorityposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case AL14344. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. DBA AMERICA'S WHOLESALER LENDER as Beneficiary, WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, that certain property situated in said County, California describing the land therein as: AS MORE FULLY DESCRIBED IN SAID DEED OF TRUST The property heretofore described is being sold "as is". The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1443 WEST TEMPLE STREET, SAN BERNARDINO, CA 92411-2123 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $391,804.26 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or other such funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. # San Bernardino County Coroner Reports

Coroner case #701503758 On 05/11/2015 at 3:55 PM, San Bernardino County Sheriff Department responded to a call of a man trapped under a crane in the 11400 block of S. Cactus Ave, in Bloomington. Deputies arrived and found Judge W. Lightfoot, a 63 year old resident of Henderson, Nevada, pinned under the crane he had been driving. Paramedics confirmed Lightfoot dead of his injuries at 4:05 PM. An autopsy will be conducted to determine the cause of death. The San Bernardino County Sheriff Department is investigating the incident. [05122015 0125 SC]

Coroner case #701503734 On 05/10/15, around 11:18 PM, Alfred Raul Mendez, a 26 year old resident of Rialto, was driving his 2003 Nissan 350Z southbound on Eucalyptus Avenue in Rialto at a high rate of speed. After he drove through the intersection with Etiwanda Ave., Mendez lost control of the vehicle, collided with a tree, and was ejected from the vehicle. Mendez was transported to a local hospital but he was pronounced dead at 11:54 PM due to his injuries. The Rialto Police Department is investigating the collision. [05112015 0410 SC]

Coroner Case #701503683 On 05/08/15, at approximately 3:10 p.m., the Fontana Police Department received a 911 call from a residence in the 8500 block of Oleander Avenue in Fontana. When officers arrived they discovered Hope Reyes, a 50 year-old female resident of Fontana with upper body trauma. Medical aid was summoned and when the paramedics arrived they pronounced Reyes dead. The Fontana Police Department is investigating the incident. [051115 1245 TC]

Sewer System Assessments from front page

The last two phases lie further out where future concentrated development is most likely to occur.

The assessments will fund the Hi-Desert Water District's undertaking of the project. It is the Hi-Desert Water District rather than the town of Yucca Valley which will serve as the lead agency on the project.

There has long been opposition to the mandated sewer system. Many Yucca Valley residents, including leading citizens and politicians such as former mayor and state assemblyman and current congressman Paul Cook, resisted the direction from the water quality control board to build the system, decrying it as an unfunded state mandate. Others, noting that the town council and water board were manned by individuals who have been provided with political and monetary support by developmental interests, suggested imposition of the assessments would transfer the financial burden of providing infrastructure from those standing to profit by aggressive growth in town to its residents, a large number of whom live just above, at, or below the poverty line.

Phacelia distans is a visually striking species of flowering plant native to San Bernardino County. These plants are of the the borage family, and are known by the common names distant phacelia, distant scorpionweed, wild heliotrope and blue phacelia. These vascular plants range throughout the southwestern United States and northern Mexico. The Phacelia distans grows in many types of habitat, including forest, woodland, chaparral, grassland, and meadows.

They are within the family of hydrophyllaceae, i.e., the waterleaf family and fall within the class of Magnoliopsida - dicotyledons.

Phacelia distans is a seed plant, sometimes referred to as the phacelia cinerea. It is a variable annual herb growing decumbent to erect, its branching or unbranched stem six to 20 inches in length. It is usually glandular and coated in soft or stiff hairs. The leaves are up to four to six inches long and are divided into several lobed cymes. The individual flowers are tubular, one leaflets, sometimes intricately. The hairy, glandular inflorescence is a one-sided curving or coiling cyme of many funnel- or bell-shaped flowers. The flower is a third of an inch or so long and may be white or varying shades of blue or purple.

Their flowering occurs in the spring, dense, hairy, terminal, coiled third to one half inch wide, with five broad, rounded lobes. The leaves are green, alternate, hairy, and variably once or twice pinnately divided, which gives them a fern-like appearance. The stems are reddish and hairy.

The similar Clefleaf Wildheliotrope (Phacelia crenulata) has scalloped, undivided leaves.

Others who own undeveloped property in town as an investment or possible site for a retirement home, were concerned that the assessments exceeded the value of their vacant land.

The prospect of state action that conceivably would have resulted in rendering their homes inhabitable and transforming Yucca Valley into a ghost town apparently convinced enough of the populace to support the assessment regime.

California Style The May Spectacle

By Grace Bernal

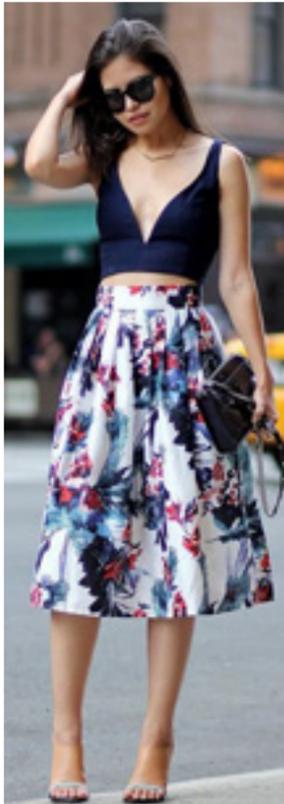

Rain or sun, spring moves on! The best part of it is the color that comes with the season and I just can't say it enough. Spring never fails when it comes to color because it brings out this fashionable spectacle. The display of colorful clothes along with the fantasy hats is looking phenomenal these days. There is a lot of bright blues, reds, greens, reds, and pinks, along with floral printed dresses, which are becoming a huge success this year. The best part of fashion is when people buy their own clothes instead of borrowing them from a fancy designer. The real deal of the fashion world is the people who wear real clothes on the street. It's great to see people express themselves freely. The world is moving into a phase of minimalist style, but with dashing color. Anytime people are gathering for a special event, they look fabulous in their dress-up gear because people always find different forms of attire. Take hats, for example. They are just fabulous for day and evening events because they fascinate by means of partially-hidden allure. Spring is colorful and so are the galas that are happening around this time. Enjoy the weather and keep the color going as the fun part of spring.

Citizen Alert!

Without any honest attempt to notify Upland residents, the City has written a new General Plan which calls for 1,589 new apartments, condos and homes for 8,000+ new residents. It plans to re-zone Foothill and other areas for "Mixed-use" – retail businesses on the bottom floor and apartments/condos on top or back – all at sidewalk level. They plan to take out the access roads to eliminate parking.

OVER CROWDING - CONGESTED STREETS – HIGHER CRIME

If businesses and people are fleeing the state, (population numbers are declining) why is Upland planning for an influx of new residents?

WHERE WILL THE WATER COME FROM FOR 8,000+ new people??

Governor Brown has said Upland has to cut back 36% of our water use and tear out lawns. If we have to cut back, how does the City justify so much new multi-family housing? We are being punished while the City expands its "tax base." What will be the HUGE cost to us to buy more water?

The Plan caters to PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION IN LIEU OF CAR USE.

Public transportation is a drain of our tax dollars. Statewide, ONLY 25% of bus and train use is paid for by riders. The rest is paid by US – the state taxpayers. Zero emission, automated cars are coming. Why plan the City around old technologies?

STOP THIS NEW PLAN!

Go to DontUrbanizeUpland.com and learn more details.
Download the plan and read it for yourself.

Bring your friends and neighbors to the May 27th Planning Commission meeting at 6:30 pm and tell them to stop this plan. We must pack City Hall with hundreds of people. We don't have enough water and we don't want what over-population brings.

ACT NOW OR PAY LATER!

County Sues Architect & Engineer from page 6

change orders, represents a weakness in the case the county must pursue against Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs. In recommending approval of many of the change orders and contract amendments, Alban cited requirements mandated by third parties such as the state fire marshal. Indeed, the county declared the detention center as operational to meet the state deadline, prior to the completion of work on the facility.

The state of California is to cover $100 million of the project cost based upon the board of supervisors' submittal in March 2008 of a proposal to the State Correction Standards Authority requesting available funding of up to $100,000,000 to cover 75 percent of the cost to construct the detention facility.

It was suggested that the filing of the suit was a ploy to bring Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum and Jacobs to the negotiating table. This was reinforced by the consideration that neither party is due in court for nearly five-and-a-half months, on October 28, when a trial setting conference is scheduled.
