Scrap Metal Checks Written To Colton Employee Touches Off Investigation

By Mark Gutglueck

Colton City Manager Bill Smith and detectives with the Colton Police Department are trying to untangle a set of intertwined facts that pertain to a dubious circumstance involving municipal operations in the Hub City.

Unknown at this point is just how deep the matter goes and whether Smith and other city officials, including the mayor and city council, dare go much further in uncovering it, lest it mushroom into a full-blown scandal that revives the disrepute Colton was subjected to in the early 2000s when a former mayor and no fewer than four councilmen were charged and convicted of felonious activity involving the misuse and abuse of their power and positions of public trust.

At the very least, the current contretemps in Colton definitely entails the questionable routing of money. Further, it possibly involves embezzlement or misappropriation of funds and potentially is linked to timecard and overtime fraud of a prodigious proportion.

What is known is that on Tuesday March 22, Mike Cory, who is the superintendent in the City of Colton's water/ wastewater division, and Steve Contreras, a senior water treatment operator in the water/wastewater division, were placed on administrative leave and remain on leave.

Intrinsic to what occurred is Colton's status as one of the few cities in San Bernardino County that approximates a full service municipality. Despite currently being the 15th largest of the county's 24 cities and incorporated towns populationwise, Colton is the second-oldest, having been incorporated in 1887. A railroad town, as a consequence of its age it matured early, and at one time was a fullservice municipality, with its own police department, fire department, water utility, electrical utility, sanitation division and cemetery operations. In 1996, the city privatized its sanitation department, contracting with what was then Taormina Industries and what is now known as Republic Industries for refuse handling. Redlands Lands $30M In State And Federal Grants To Convert Hotel To Homeless Facility

The City of Redlands will apply $30 million in state and federal grants to convert the Good Nite Inn into a full-dimensional shelter for the community's chronically homeless.

Redlands is the second San Bernardino County city to obtain sufficient funding through the State of California Homekey program to establish and operate a large-scale homeless facility. The award, which allows for the retrofitting of the hotel located at 1675 Industrial Park Avenue, comes less than two months after the City of Victorville accepted $28 million to construct a 170-bed facility, essentially from

In Redlands's case, it is to receive $24,142,000 in federal American Rescue Plan money with which the hotel is to be purchased, renovated and augmented with the support facilities to house, support and educate those to be welcomed there and another $5,858,000 from the State of California to operate for what is anticipated to be seven years. Upon conversion, the hotel will have 98 permanent supportive housing units, each with a kitch enette. The grant money will also be used by the city to fund the hiring of David Rabindranath as Redlands' homeless services coordinator, a staff position.

As of this week, the Good Nite Inn was yet operating as a hotel. It entails roughly 100 guest rooms, none of which have cooking facilities or kitchens.

One shortcoming that should be redressed, O'Brien said, was "some people's names do not have the appropriate years of service. That is important. I also agree with our veterans that the bricks honoring them should not be on the ground but on the wall."

Mountain Lions Spotted Four Times In Two Months Around The County

There have been at least two spottings and maybe as many as five of mountain lions in San Bernardino County in the last five weeks.

In late March, what was reported to be a mature mountain lion was seen, at what was estimated to be an eighth of a mile distance, in Chino Hills State photographic confirmation of what was at least a single and maybe actually two fully grown mountain lions some seven miles apart in Apple Valley on Sunday April 24 and Tuesday, April 26. The following day, there was another sighting of a mountain lion slightly more than a half mile away from where the second sighting in the town occurred. See P 3

Jury Confers $4.5 Million On Family Of Highland Man Slain By Deputies In 2018

A federal jury yesterday made a determination that San Bernardino County must pay $4.5 million to the family of Juan Ramos, formerly of Highland, who was fatally shot by Sheriff's Sergeant Gary Wheeler on July 22, 2018.

That day, a Sunday, the temperature in Highland in mid-afternoon had reached or exceeded 96 degrees Fahrenheit.

According to the sheriff's department, at 3:52 pm, the sheriff's dispatch center received a call for service regarding a report of a reckless driver speeding through neighborhood streets in the vicinity of Olive Street and 13th Street in Highland. Deputies responded and located a white Ford Crown Victoria being driven by a male subject, later identified as Juan Ramon Ramos, 32. In a release after the shooting, the department maintained Ramos was "driving without regard for the public's safety, endangering himself and other motorists by running red lights and nearly hitting other vehicles. A deputy attempted a traffic stop on the suspect vehicle at a gas station [and] the suspect drove away when asked to exit the vehicle. The deputy witnessed Ramos hold up a box cutter prior to fleeing the gas station. Ramos refused to yield and led deputies on a pursuit after he narrowly missed colliding with other motorists. Eventually the pursuit ended back near Olive Street/13th Street."

According to the department's version of events put out in the immediate aftermath of the incident, "Deputies attempted to de-escalate the situation" but "Ramos did not comply with commands and refused to exit the vehicle. After a brief standoff, Ramos exited the vehicle armed with the box cutter and ran from depu- See P 2

ments remain intact.

The Sentinel is informed that roughly ten years ago, the city's water utility replaced most of Colton's domestic and business water meters, leaving the old ones that had been removed from city residences and businesses on truck trailers in the police department's impound yard proximate to the police department headquarters/City Hall complex. On at least one occasion since then, vandals or thieves managed to scale or otherwise defeat the barrier around the periphery of the yard and make off with a relatively small number of the obsolescent meters. The remaining meters languished there for nearly a decade until November 2021, at which point Cory instructed Contreras and another employee to take them to a scrap dealer. Three loads of the meters were carried over to the scrap metal recycler, who paid for them in three installments of $10,000 apiece. Two of the checks were made out to Contreras, who turned all of the money over to Cory. This apparently occurred on November 29, 2021.

The Sentinel is informed that the City of Colton's policy with regard to the handling of money generated by the liquidation, sale or disposition of surplus equipment is not specific, but that line employees generally pass the proceeds from surplus equipment and property along to supervisors or department heads and that the money thereafter makes its way into the city's general fund.

The assumption of Contreras and the other employee was that the $30,000 entrusted to Mike Cory made its way to City Hall. While that appears to have been the case with regard to the check made out to the city, the money represented by the two checks made out to Contreras was not initially sent to City Hall and was left unaccounted for.

When it was brought to the attention of city management that the sale of the obsolescent water meters had produced a return of $10,000, an amount deemed less than their actual scrap value, an inquiry was begun. At some point, city higherups learned that the scrap company had issued not a single check for $10,000 as payment for the meters but three such checks. When it was discovered that two of the checks had been made out to Contreras and that Contreras had converted both to cash, city officials proceeded upon the presumption that Cory and Contreras were complicit in the theft of public funds. It was at that point, the Sentinel has been told, that both were put on leave.

The matter was handed over the police department to investigate. Detectives learned from the water division employee who had assisted Contreras in collecting and transporting the water meters to the scrap dealer that the meters had been transported in three separate and equal loads, that he and Contreras had been paid three installments of $10,000 for each of those loads in the form of a single check made out as payable to the city and two checks payable to Contreras and that after the checks to Contreras had been cashed, the money - $20,000 -and the remaining check for $10,000 had been turned over to Cory. The water division employee said he witnessed the cash transfer between Contreras and Cory while they were in Cory's office.

Detectives obtained a search warrant for Cory's workplace and desk as well as his home in Fontana. Upon serving the search warrant at Cory's residence, members of the Colton Police Department insisted upon Cory opening the safe he had on his premises. Inside they found $15,000 in cash. The Sentinel is told that Cory upon being questioned by different detectives about what had occurred, gave conflicting explanations of why the $20,000 in cash had not been immediately provided to the finance department at City Hall as well as the origin of the $15,000 in his home safe.

Thereafter, according to information provided to the Sentinel, detectives initiated inquiries directed at Cory's and Contreras's personal back accounts to see if there were any apparent irregularities in the amount of money deposited therein and whether they might thereby ascertain if their personal finances reflected possible embezzlements or misappropriation of city funds.

While the two checks for the scrapped water meters made out to Contreras initially cast suspicion on him, the Sentinel is told, the police department's theory of his involvement has reportedly run into difficulty as no evidence has been churned up to demonstrate Contreras ever received funds to which he was not entitled.

The vetting of Contreras, a Colton native and the son of Korean War Hero, indicated that he had no motive to steal money from the city. His stepmother has substantial wealth - quantified as several million dollars. Contreras himself has bank accounts and holdings to indicate he is comfortably fixed. Moreover, it was learned, Contreras has proven to be a soft touch, as he has made several loans to his colleagues at the city, including money provided to one who was going through a divorce and another to assist him in a child custody legal battle. Investigators learned that Contreras had loaned $20,000 to Cory, a figure which garnered attention for several reasons, including because it matched the amount of money in the checks made out to him for two of the loads of scrap metal he recycled in November and because Cory was his supervisor.

The investigation led to an examination of time cards and overtime pay practices in the Colton water division. According to available information, at one point an employee had been paid for 135.5 hours of work in what was, or was supposed to be, a standard two-week period that normally entailed 80 hours, including 18.5 hours on one Sunday. The overtime list for that employee's pay period, the Sentinel was told, showed the employee double-charging hours for the same job on August 4, 2019, which included not listing an "end time" for his work.

During the same time period, ending on August 9, 2019, another employee had one 24-hour period where he was paid for 27 hours and a third Colton water division employee claimed to have worked 20.5 hours on a single Sunday. That employee claimed to have worked 144.5 hours during a normal 80-hour two-week pay period. The overtime record for that third employee showed that on August 4, 2019, he triplecharged for being "on call" and "waiting for others," and double-charged for a "brown water" call in the same neighborhood relating to the same incident based upon two different people calling in on the same issue.

A fourth employee's timecards beginning around July 1, 2019 show he claimed to work 16-to-17 hours per day for almost 2 weeks straight, working well into the dark at the wastewater treatment plant. When video footage was reviewed, it was discovered he was not on duty during much of the time he claimed on his timecard, which was approved by Cory. In that case, this fourth employee was allowed to "pay back" the overtime money he had been paid during that time period, with no discipline being applied for what one city consultant knowledgeable about the case said was a clear example of "timecard fraud."

No one, including City Manager Bill Smith, was available at City Hall this morning or this afternoon to comment on the reports relating to the investigation.

Rumors abound that the matter, which is still developing, carries with it the possibility of maiming Colton with an indelible black eye similar to that which came about with the 2001 bribery indictments and convictions of Colton Mayor Karl Gaytan and Colton councilmen Donald Sanders, James Grimsby and Abe Beltran as well as Councilman Ramon

Hernandez's 2006 arrest and 2008 conviction on 24 misappropriation of public funds charges.

An employee who had witnessed Contreras hand over the $20,000 in cash to Cory said that what might appear to have been overtime pay made to Contreras could possibly be explained by an intense round of work Contreras had been engaged in that related to repairs of the city water system's Rialto Reservoir, which he said at one point remained inoperative despite extensive work by an outside consulting firm which had cost the city hundreds of thousands of dollars. Contreras, he said, doggedly and virtually single-handedly worked on the reservoir, including after hours on weekdays and during week-ends, at last completing the corrections that allowed the reservoir to be brought back on line.

Ramos had returned to a residence in the the 26700 block of 13th Street owned by his aunt and uncle.

According to the department's narrative, "Ramos continued to ignore deputies' commands and did not comply with their orders to peacefully surrender. Deputies deployed less than lethal bean bags, striking the suspect. Deputies also deployed a Taser, striking the suspect; the less than lethal and de-escalation techniques proved ineffective in getting the suspect to comply. Ramos jumped a fence approaching a group of people with the box cutter in his hand."

At that point, Sergeant Wheeler discharged his service sidearm, hitting Ramos in the back.

"Fearing for the safety of the citizens, a deputy involved shooting occurred," according to the department.

Ramos was transported to St. Bernardine's Medical Center where he was pronounced deceased at 5:24 p.m.

The San Bernardino County District Attorney's Office, which routinely clears law enforcement officers of wrongdoing with regard to shootings of civilians that take place within its jurisdiction, reviewed the circumstances of Ramos's death. The district attorney's office generated a report of that review, released in 2020, in which it was concluded that Wheeler's action was a justifiable and legal use of deadly force.

Ramos's family was represented by attorney Dale Galipo.

Galipo was able to call upon multiple witnesses – members of Ramos's family including his cousins – who testified that Ramos was

Spring Brings Mountain Lions Into More Populated Areas from front page

Sightings of mountain lions in metropolitan settings are extremely rare. Less uncommon is the migration of the big cats into out-of-the-way sites at the periphery of urbanized places and more rustic districts.

Chino Hills State Park, which embodies an undeveloped swathe of land at the confluence of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino westernmost tip of San Bernardino County in the Chino Hills, and involves Santa Ana Canyon within the foothills of the Santa Ana Mountains. It is not unheard of for mountain lions to come into that area. The cat seen in March was at an elevation slightly above the hikers that spotted it while they were hiking on Bobcat Ridge Trail. On or around April 15, a Mountain Lion was struck and killed on the 60 Freeway near Diamond Bar, which is contiguous with Chino Hills but lies across the Los Angeles County counties, lies at the south-

On Sunday, April 24, a photo was snapped of a mountain lion in the yard of a home on Chiwi Road in Apple Valley.

More than seven miles away, on early Tuesday morning, April 26, a doorstep Ring camera caught the image of a large adult mountain lion in the front yard of a home near Kiowa and Bear Valley roads in Apple Valley. The evening of the following day, Wednesday April 27, the Apple Valley station of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department received a call at 11:29 p.m. which reported a "fullgrown" mountain lion had ventured into the front yard of a residence in the 12000 block of Tamiani Road, which is roughly 0.55 miles from where the previous sighting occurred.

Unknown is whether the mountain lions seen were the same cat, perhaps two or even three. Sleek and agile, the average mountain lion is roughly 8 feet from nose tip to tail end. They weigh, on average, between 125 to 150 pounds.

Mountain lions are most likely to appear in areas inhabited by humans, if indeed they do show, in the spring. In the winter, they are in their element in wildlands because winter conditions give them an even greater advantage over their natural prey than in other seasons. They come into areas inhabited by humans in spring because the animals they normally eat become scarce in their natural habitat during that season. At such times, they will victimize domesticated animals that are available and vulnerable. Appearances in summer come about, usually, because water sources where they live - mountainous areas and rugged deserts have dried up.

Mountain lions do not have a strong sense of smell and rely upon keen eyesight, in particular their acute night vision, and their extraordinary hearing to hunt. This makes them most active at night and in the early morning. Known as ambush hunters, mountain lions are adept at concealing themselves in dense vegetation or available crevices such as those between boulders in nature or in hiding places of opportunity in areas built up by man. After patient and silent stalking, they will engage in a lightning fast surprise attack in which their sharp claws and powerful jaws play a prominent

O'Brien also said that a large plaque summarizing the spirit of sacrifice could be added to the recognition wall. And she echoed the suggestion of many of the veterans that the names that are enshrined should be distinguished and grouped together by which service they were in, which would make it easier for family members who come to the shrine to find the individual memorialized they are looking for. The memorial already exists, O'Brien said, and just a bit more effort is needed to make it worthy of those it honors. "There is still something we can do to fix this problem," she said, and it can be done at relatively little cost, she suggested.

The honorarium was accomplished through a joint effort involving a few prime movers, veterans and their family members, City Hall, some volunteers, veterans' legions and donors. The cost was roughly $300,000. Nowhere near that amount is required now, O'Brien said, but action, activism and volunteerism are called for.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property.
