

California Public Employee Pension System Sustained A $30B Loss So Far In 2022

The already unbearable burden California's taxpayers are staggering under in defraying the pension costs of retired public sector employees has grown heavier still as the California Public Employees' Retirement System has sustained investment losses approaching $30 billion through the first ten months of 2022.

The California Public Employees Retirement System is the pension system for all of state government's employees, the employees of 427 of the its 482 cities, 36 of its 58 counties, and more than 900 other public agencies, including trial courts, special districts, transportation and transit districts, sanitation districts, library districts, fire districts, water districts, housing authorities, flood control districts, pest control districts, air quality districts, community college districts, park & recreation districts, hospital districts, utility districts, port authorities and cemetery districts. Cities, counties and other public agencies that are participants in the California Public Employee Retirement System, which is known by its acronym, CalPERS, contribute a given amount of money to CalPERS for each employee. CalPERS then invests that money in a variety of financial instruments, including the stock market and real estate ventures. The return on, or earnings from, those investments is utilized to pay out the pensions to the retired employees.

The two most common types of pension systems are either a defined-contribution plan or a defined-benefit plan.

In a defined-contribution plan, the employer and employee make matching contributions on a regular basis toward the retirement fund set up for each employee. That money is either put into an interest-bearing account or invested. Upon the employee's retirement, money drawn from that particular retiree's account is dispensed on a regular basis, monthly, quarterly, every six months or yearly, to that employee as his or her pension. In a defined-contribution plan, the amount of the employee's pension is not

Supervisor Cook Defiant In Face Of Effort To Remove Him Over Residency Violation

By Mark Gutglueck

First District San Bernardino County Supervisor Paul Cook is digging his heels in as momentum is building toward what those with regard for his legacy had hoped would be his voluntary resignation and what increasingly appears will be his forced removal from office.

At issue is the 79-year-old's residency in Yucca

Valley within the county's Third Supervisorial District, outside the First District, which he has represented since December 2020. County officials have tacitly acknowledged that Cook, first in declaring and then qualifying his candidacy for the supervisor's post in 2019, misrepresented that his domicile was in Apple Valley. At that time, the abrupt dismissal of questions from those who were aware of Cook's longtime residency in Yucca Valley dissuaded the public from pursuing an examination of whether Cook in actuality had changed his residence to the First District. Cook had been a councilman and mayor in Yucca Valley in the early 2000s, where in 2004 he built a 3,527-square foot home built on a 1.15-acre lot on Country Club Drive overlooking the 12-hole Hawk's Landing Golf Course. That was his declared residence when he successfully ran in 2006 to represent the 65th Assembly District in the California Legislature and was reelected in 2008 and 2010, as it was in 2012 when he was elected to represent California's 8th Congressional District and was reelected in 2014, 2016 and 2018.

Cook's claim in 2019 had been that he was living at the home of one of his Congressional staff members, Tim Itnyre, located in the 23300 block of Taos Road in Apple Valley. The San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters Office accepted Cook's assertion at face value and declared his can-

Verbal Version Of Mayoral Misdeeds Was Given Obscure Release Earlier This Month

The long-anticipated report of the investigation into Barstow Mayor Paul Courtney's activities and alleged abuse of authority was released earlier this month, done verbally as a report of discussion that had taken place during a closed session of the council and its attorney at the November 7 city council meeting.

Coming as it did, in a fleeting announcement by City Attorney Matthew Summers without being provided in written form and a day before the November 8 election, the report was largely ignored by the public.

The council had commissioned the report on December 20, 2021, the same night it had voted 4-to-0, with Courtney abstaining, to censure the mayor over accusations that he was harassing city employees.

It has not been definitively clarified as to who performed what was termed by the city an "independent" investigation conducted by a "third-party investigator." Reportedly, the major parts of the inquiry were handled by Laguna Niguel-based attorney Jeffrey Love, a former investigator with the Irvine Police Department.

After coming out of closed session, Summers reported the investigation team, which he did not specify, interviewed Courtney and 19 others and reached its conclusions, "based on a preponderance of evidence standards."

According to Summers, the third-party investigator

The Overly Generous Pensions California's Public Employees Are Getting Are Threatening To Bankrupt Many Of The State's Cities

guaranteed, but instead controlled by how much money is in that particular employee's retirement account and the earnings from the interest or investments made by the money in that account. If the value of the investments go up, the amount of the pension goes up. If the investments fare poorly, the retiree's pension goes down.

In a defined-benefit plan, the retiree is provided with a guaranteed pension based on the number of years of employment, the highest salary that retiree earned while employed multiplied by an agreed-upon percentage, usually between 2 percent and 3 percent, times the number of years the employee was employed in California's public sector.

In a defined-benefit plan, the employer accepts all of the investment risk relating to the retirement fund, such that if the investments over a given year fail to achieve the returns needed to meet the amount of the yearly payout guaranteed to the retired employee, the employer, such as a city or county, must then make up for the degree to which those earnings have fallen short.

The California Public Employees Retirement System is a defined-benefit plan, meaning all of the participants in it have guaranteed that those who have retired as city employees will receive the full pensions offered them when they were employed with the city.

During the strong economy of the late 1990s and early 2000s, the California Public Employee Retirement System was heavily invested in the booming stock market, which was advancing on the basis of rapidly prospering start-up technology companies. At that point, CalPERS was superfunded, and its investment earnings had created a circumstance where it reportedly had 140 percent of the money it needed to meet its obligations to all of its then-current pensioners. This exuberance led to the mistaken belief that the state's public employee retirement fund would remain shipshape perpetually. Along with the overall bright financial picture at that time, many municipal governments throughout California provided their employees with substantial salary and benefit increases.

In the years since, the ebb and flow of the economy, which included the so-called Great Recession which lasted from 2007 until 2013, has shown that the ebullience that led to the provision of those inflated benefits was unjustified. In order to keep up with the financial demands of those commitments, cities up and down the state find themselves reducing the level of services they provide and even reducing their current workforces so they can ensure that past employees are paid their pension stipends.

The sheer number of new retirees in California on a daily, weekly, monthly and yearly basis overmatches the number of pensioners leaving the system as the result of death, straining the system further. The California Public Employee Retirement System a few years ago set an investment earnings goal of 7.5 percent annually. Under that standard, cities, counties and other public agencies participating in the system needed to make their standard annual contribution and no more in those circumstances when the 7.5 percent return on CalPERS investments was met. When CalPERS investments fell below 7.5 percent, the state, participating cities, counties and agencies had to make up the difference.

Drops in stock values and any sort of sustained economic downturn or financial slump generally mean that the California Public Employees' Retirement System's fiscal position deteriorates as its return on its investments do not net the returns needed to keep the pension plan fully funded, resulting in cities and counties throughout the state along with the state government itself having to step up and make substantial payments beyond what they normally make to CalPERS. For cities, this means money that otherwise is used for basic operations, paying salaries and providing services to residents is in short supply. That translates into layoffs and resultant manpower shortages and service reductions, along with delays in constructing new infrastructure, the deterioration of existing infrastructure and the deferring of purchasing new equipment and vehicles and the neglect of maintenance and servicing to city assets.

The difference between the total amount of benefits owed to all of a city's current employees & retirees and the value of the financial assets devoted to that city's pension plan is referred to, in municipal parlance, as an unfunded pension liability, what is more commonly understood by the public to be pension debt.

In recent years, several cities in San Bernardino County have seen their unfunded pension liabilities zoom to in excess of $100 million.

A significant factor in the pension debt crisis consists of the very generous terms contained in the formulas for those pensions. Generally speaking, employees are eligible to retire at the age of 55 to 60 and begin to draw a yearly pension equal to two percent of their highest annual pay, including salary and overtime, multiplied by the number of years they were employed in the public sector in California, while law enforcement and management echelon employees are generally eligible to draw pensions equal to 2.5 percent or 3 percent of their highest annual pay times the number of years they were public employee. Thus, lifelong city, county or public agency employees are eligible to draw anywhere from 50 percent of their highest salary to 100 percent of their highest salary or more. In this way, there are now over 27,000 governmental retirees in California who collect a pension of more than $100,000 per year.

After years of missing its 7.5 percent earnings goal, CalPERS reduced it to 7 percent and more recently reduced it to 6.8 percent. Last year, CalPERS administrators, city officials, employees and retirees were heartened over the performance of the CalPERS investment pool, when it reached a whopping 21.3 percent. There was confidence that the trend would continue and, with the public retirement system no longer under a strain, the economy in general would continue to rebound. Confidence returned that cities, counties and public agencies would resume spending well in excess of 90 percent of their revenues on present day and ongoing operations rather than devoting upwards of 20 percent and approaching or in some cases exceeding 30 percent of that revenue on paying pensions to employees who were no longer working.

This year, however, the performance of CalPERS investments has been atrocious, nowhere near the minimal 6.8 percent. Indeed, those returns were not gains at all but losses, in the neighborhood of -6.1 percent, calculated through June. That meant CalPERS had lost, in the first six months of 2022, a staggering $28.8 billion. In the most recent four months, from July through October, that loss, calculated over the entire year, has been closer to -7.5% for its fiscal year, a steepening decline from the abysmal returns reported at mid-year.

Even if things stabilize through November and into December, it appears that the best CalPERS will do in 2022 is lose $29.6 billion.

The already astronomical unfunded pension liabilities cities are running will intensify. Put in stark, mind-numbing terms, the unfunded pension liability across the entire system has now zoomed to somewhere in the neighborhood of $166 billion, give or take a billion or two. If the citizenry of California – all 39,995,077 residents of the state – were called upon to simply make square with what they owe to their governmental pensioners to date, excluding what they are to be paid in the future along with the financing costs of that debt, meaning interest, everyone – men, women and children – would each have to cough up $4,150.51.

CalPERS reserves – to the extent that CalPERS can be said to have reserves – are tied up in its investments. Every penny and more of its operating capital is utilized in paying pensions and its 2,843 employees. In fact, doing just that – operating – costs more money than CalPERS has. For every dollar CalPERS pays out, it only brings in 72 cents.

Unless, governmental officials, meaning the California Legislature and the governor and the collective boards of supervisors of the 36 counties, the city councils of the 427 cities and the governing boards of the more than 900 agencies, districts and authorities that are participating in the California Public Employees' System develop the will to force the system to reform itself and reduce the generous pensions promised to those former governmental workers now receiving those pensions and the current governmental employees who will receive those pensions in the future, the state's taxpayers and the state's cities and counties and public agencies will need to up their contributions to the system to make up the difference between the expected 6.8 percent rate of return and current -7.5 percent investment performance, meaning there will be even fewer police patrolling local streets, fewer firemen and paramedics aboard fire trucks and in medical response units, fewer streets being repaved, fewer cracked sidewalks being repaired, more rather than fewer weeks between the grass being mowed in municipal parks, fewer trees in parkways and medians being trimmed, and a diminution in municipal services generally.

It is increasingly apparent that lower annual investment return means that CalPERS is becoming a liability to the state and its government administrative and managerial systems and processes that cannot be maintained unless some balancing of the cost of pension payments and income into the pension system can be achieved. With the current prognostication of a recession, economic and fiscal sluggishness and an anticipated $24 billion state budget deficit in 2023-24, something has to give.

It remains to be seen as to whether the state's politicians have the will to confront the public employee unions, which will invest heavily in political campaigns to oust current officeholders from their elected positions if those officehold-didacy for First District Supervisor based thereon as valid. Over the course of his campaign, Cook collected $442,077.73 in contributions for his campaign for supervisor and spent $409,762.25 on that electioneering effort, which was 137 times the combined $2,988.44 spent by his three opponents in the supervisor's race, Adelanto City Councilwoman Stevonna Evans, Victorville Councilwoman Rita Ramirez-Dean and Marcelino Garza. In the March 3, 2020 balloting held in conjunction with the California 2020 Presidential Primary Election, Cook trounced the competition, with 31,230 votes or 64.66 percent, well ahead of second place finisher Ramirez-Dean, who polled 9,979 votes or 21.57 percent, Garza's 3,557 votes or 8.17 percent and Evans' 2,599 or 5.6 percent. Having captured more than fifty percent of the votes cast, Cook avoided a runoff in that year's November election which would have been required if no single candidate had captured a majority.

Later that year, when Cook's congressional chief of staff, John Sobel, tendered his resignation, he appointed Tim Itnyre to replace Sobel as his chief of staff.

The 116th United States Congress to which Cook was elected in November 2018 had convened on January 3, 2019 and ended on January 3, 2021. Cook, because he could not hold two elective offices at once, resigned from Congress on December 7, 2020, just prior to his being sworn in as First District San Bernardino County supervisor.

The following day, the board approved the hiring of Tim Itnyre, the son of two of Cook's closest friends, Robert and Cathy Itnyre, as the First District chief of staff to serve under Supervisor Cook at a total cost to the county of $217,828 annually, based on his salary of $131,934 and yearly benefit package of $85,894.

While there were yet some lingering questions as to where it was that Cook was actually living, the official narrative was that he was living in Apple Valley. To those bold enough to press the issue, it was asserted the supervisor was in residence at Itnyre's home. The status, authority and sheer power of both Cook and Itnyre stood off any further questioning or untoward suggestions.

While Cook and Itnyre made a show of indicating, if the subject ever came up, that Cook was in compliance with the residency requirements for the supervisorial position he held, Cook never resided, in actuality, at 23395 Taos Road in Apple Valley. His residence in Yucca Valley was a widely kept secret among those at the highest echelon in the county. Based on information provided to the Sentinel and which has been verified and augmented with further research, it appears that the entirety of Supervisor Cook's office, including his assistant chief of staff, Dakota Higgins; Third District Supervisor Dawn Rowe, who had been a member of Cook's congressional staff before she was appointed Third District supervisor in 2018; Rowe's former Chief of Staff, Matt Knox, who had been employed as a member of Cook's congressional staff; Fourth District Supervisor and Board Chairman Curt Hagman; and County Chief Executive Officer Leonard Hernandez, among others, had knowledge of Cook's actual residency status prior to his election as supervisor.

Cook's schedule, calendar and itinerary were under the control of Cook's office staff, members of which chauffeured the supervisor about from time to time, including from 54989 Country Club Drive in Yucca Valley to the County Administrative Complex in San Bernardino on meeting dates and then back again. Hernandez and his staff likewise had access to Cook's schedule, calendar and itinerary. For the first 23 months that Cook served in the role of supervisor, no one, in particular, within the circle of those who were knowledgeable about Cook's residency, which included at least half of the county's administrative staff, all of whom are directly answerable to Hernandez and work primarily on the Fifth Floor of the San Bernardino County Administrative Headquarters at 385 N. Arrowhead Avenue in San Bernardino, had an interest in exposing the situation. With Hagman, Rowe and Second District Supervisor Janice Rutherford, Cook was one of the four Republican members of the five-member board of supervisors, and as such part of the ruling coalition that controlled the county. Indeed, given the comfortable circumstances all involved found themselves involved in, rocking the county's ship of state, as it were, would have been decidedly contrary to their collective and individual interests, been ill-advised and would have been considered such poor form that whoever blabbed might find himself or herself unemployed or out of office in short order.

Political events, however, overtook Cook as a consequence of this year's November 8 election, one in which Cook was not a candidate.

Competing on the ballot was Thurston Smith, the incumbent Republican in the 33rd Assembly District. Smith, a former Hesperia city councilman and mayor and Mojave Water Agency board member, had seen his political career advance as a result of Cook's decision not to seek reelection to Congress in 2020 and instead run for supervisor. Then 33rd District Assemblyman Jay Obernolte rushed to immediately fill the future void that Cook's departure from the U.S. House of Representatives was to create, and he announced he would run for to replace Cook in representing California's 8th Congressional District. The same band of deep-pocketed political donors who had up until that point heavily invested in Cook's and Obernolte's political careers agreed to bankroll in the 2020 electoral season Cook's transition to the board of supervisors and Obernolte's move to Washington, D.C. while simultaneously getting behind an effort to have Obernolte's place in the Assembly representing the 33rd District remain in the hands of a Republican. In this case, Smith, a pliant personage whose loyalty to those who would sponsor his progression up the political ladder could be guaranteed, was selected to succeed Obernolte.

As it turned out, in the same March 3, 2020 election, Obernolte managed to place first among nine candidates, including four Republicans other than himself, three Democrats and one unaligned candidate. In the November 2020 general election, he outpaced Democrat Christine Bubser, 151,376 votes or 56.64 percent to 115 votes or 43.36 percent. In the primary election, Smith faced four Democrats and two other Republicans. He claimed first place, with 32,891 or 37.9 percent of the vote. He went toe-to-toe with the second-place finisher, Big Bear Lake Mayor Rick Herrick, in November, winning with 86,948 votes or 54.85 percent to Herrick's 71,567 votes or 45.15 percent.

In his capacity as a State legislator, Smith had proven himself to be faithfully responsive to the local establishment and every bit as amenable to the policy directives of his political patrons while he was in Sacramento as he had been during his past stints in doing their bidding when he was in the publicly-elected capacities of Hesperia councilman and mayor and Mojave Water Agency board member.

The Republicans in California generally and those in San Bernardino in particular had little influence in controlling how Assembly district lines would be drawn as a result of the decennial reapportionment based upon the 2020 Census. Smith found himself placed into the newly drafted 34th Assembly District along with his fellow Republican, 36th District Assemblyman Tom Lackey. Whereas the old 33rd Assembly District which Smith represents lies almost entirely in San Bernardino County, the new 34th District in which he had to compete took in desert portions of northwestern San Bernardino, northeastern Los Angeles and south Kern counties. In California's open primary system, Smith and Lackey competed in June against four others, including two Democrats, a Republican and a Democrat running as an independent. In that primary, Smith strongly outpolled Lackey in the San Bernardino County portion of the 34th, but ran well behind Lackey in Los Angeles and Kern counties, yet managed to place in first to Lackey's second overall, primarily because of the votes claimed by the other four candidates. Thus, Smith faced Lackey in the November 8 general election.

On the San Bernardino County side of the divide in the 34th District, a committed set of political donors were ready to do whatever they could to keep Smith in Sacramento. Among them were The Inland Empire Business Alliance, Business Leaders for Ethical Government, Jeff Burum, Prem Reddy, Frank Bigelow, James Previti, Simon Bouzagliou, Randall Friend, Bruno Mancinelli, Jesse Armendarez, John Ohanian, Dino DeFazio, Randall Lesovsky, IMH Land Development Inc. President Ian Harvey, Wyn Holmes, Gerald Beard, San Bernardino County Republican Central Committee Chairman Phil Cothran Sr, Martha Cuevas, Joe Pattison, Chris Leggio, Julie Dammeyer, Dieter Dammeyer, Manuel Serrano, Cheryl Ricker, Eagle Real Estate, Raman Poola, Sukhdev Dhillon, Jim Walton, Kali Chaudhuri, Michael Rademaker, Dave Steeno, Robert Lovingood, Dwight Manley, Traci

Collectively, they funded an aggressive campaign on behalf of Smith featuring television and radio spots, newspaper ads, internet pop-ups, mailers, handbills, yard signs and billboards touting Smith and what were represented as his qualities and achievements as a public official and an even more aggressive campaign that consisted of attacks upon Lackey. The tactic backfired. The hit pieces and negative spots targeting Lackey, whether tailor designed for the 34th District's high propensity Republican voters, high propensity Democratic voters or high propensity nonaligned voters, were in a majority of cases recognized as coming from Republican-aligned sources. This left the Democratic recipients wary of Smith and, in relative terms, inclined toward voting for Lackey. The Republican recipients, including those within San Bernardino County who had previously voted for Smith over Lackey in the primary, were taken aback at the attack launched upon a Republican by a Republican, which drove many to vote for Lackey.

As a result, Smith, who had won overwhelmingly over Lackey in San Bernardino County in June, 40.61 percent to 19.5 percent, managed a tepid 34,928 votes or 52.38 percent to Lackey's 31,755 or 47.62 percent in San Bernardino County on November 8. In Kern County, Smith lost with 2,562 or 31.07 percent to Lackey's 5,686 votes or 68.93 percent. On Lackey's home turf of Los Angeles County, Lackey polled 25,576 votes or 70.19 percent to Smith's 10,864 or 29.81 percent. Thus, Smith's time as a state legislator will draw to a close next month.

Having put so much of their stock in Smith, the business and private interests that fuel the Republican political machine in San Bernardino County are not yet prepared to give up on their investments. While they recognize that Cook, who was put into place in large measure by their generosity to his various political campaigns, is attuned to their interests and a sure vote of support on any matter or issue impacting them, they are acutely conscious that Cook, at 79, is nearing the end of his political shelf life. The assumption of many has been that in 2024, the 81-year old Cook will gracefully ride into the sunset, anointing Itnyre as his successor. Keeping Cook in place over the next two years is not an indispensable priority.

With Smith's November 8 loss, the necessity of sustaining the hold the Republican clique felt it had on the reins of government through him has come home in a way that heretofore was not recognized. Moreover, there is concern that Cook, while not descending into dementia exactly, is becoming somewhat eccentric in his declining years and prone to utterances, sometimes ones that are candid, frank and unguarded, which might expose the degree to which the decision-making process that is on display for the public during board of supervisors meetings, is choreographed ahead of time according to a set of priorities the clique would prefer the public not know about.

The desirability of Smith simply replacing Cook mid-term, such that Cook remains in the political limelight and maintains his electoral viability in 2024, either by running to remain as supervisor or in another run for Assembly or perhaps the State Senate, has dawned on many of those. As the discussion of how to achieve that evolved, the opportunity that has presented itself in the form of Cook's residency status has come to the fore.

What was hoped was that someone would have a quiet little talk with Cook and, with no one getting excited and no real fanfare, the Colonel would announce that with the approach of his 80th birthday in March and with all of his major accomplishments behind him, he has come to the determination that it is time to pass the torch onto the generation that is coming into its own behind him. Under this scenario, Smith would be given the opportunity to serve out the remainder of his term as 33rd District assemblyman and the board of supervisors, with Jesse Armendarez, who on November 8 was elected to succeed outgoing Second District Supervisor Janice Rutherford, would take his place on the county dais along with Hagman, Cook, Rowe and Fifth District Supervisor Joe Baca Jr. At that point, the board would take care of a few loose ends and housekeeping items, including selecting someone to serve in the capacity of county assessor from January 2023 until January 2025, the first two years of the four-year term to which the late Bob Dutton was elected in June, less than seven weeks before his July 23rd death. Shortly thereafter, after arrangements were made to ensure that Cook's staff would remain in place and be taken care of, Cook would make his early retirement announcement and by the end of January or early February, Smith would be installed as the First District supervisor.

There was one catch, however. Cook is refusing to play along. Like the Marines who were besieged at Khe Sanh, he is determined to see things through, come what may, and he, rather than those who are seeking his ouster, will be the one left standing at the end of his term in 2024.

In the last fortnight, word has emanated from the Fifth Floor that Cook's residency has now become an open issue, with everyone who knew about where he has been living for the last two years ducking for cover, lest they be implicated in a conspiracy to assist Cook in engaging in election fraud. A sad casualty in all of this is Itnyre, who just two months ago was the envy of all, as it was widely believed that he merely needed to stay in place in his $131,934 salary and $217,828 total annual compensation post for another two years, at which time the position of First District supervisors would drop into his lap, in essence by Cook designating him as his handpicked successor. Now, Itnyre has been placed into a high stakes poker game in which he must decide whether he should hold or fold. Shall he back his mentor, Cook, by maintaining the fiction that Cook is actually living under his roof in Apple Valley? When push comes to shove and he is asked to testify in that regard or sign an affidavit under penalty of perjury, what will he do? If he backs Cook, he will keep his chief of staff position, for the time being. But how long will Cook last? And when Cook goes – sooner or later – odds are that it will be Smith who replaces him. Will Smith keep Itnyre as his chief of staff or on his staff at all if Itnyre militates with Cook to have Cook remain as First District supervisor and prevent Smith from assuming the position that many feel he rightly deserves to fill? Itnyre's other choice is to become a turncoat, betray Cook, one of his parents' best friends, and cross over to the Smith team. If he does so decisively and early, he could be rewarded with keeping the First District chief of staff's position another two years, four years, six years, ten years or until such time as Smith moves on to higher office, at which point Itnyre could inherit the supervisory slot which until

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ARMANDO CARLOS RUIZ

CASE NO. PROSB2201606

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both of ARMANDO CARLOS RUIZ

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by WILLIAM RUIZ in the Superior Court of California, County of SAN BERNARDINO.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that WILLIAM RUIZ be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in Dept. No. S-36 at 9:00 a.m. on DECEMBER 22, 2022 at Superior Court of California, County of San Bernardino, 247 West Third Street, San Bernardino, CA 92415, San Bernardino District.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under Section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (Form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250.
