

Arrowhead Regional Medical Center Is Now A Level One Trauma Center

The Arrowhead Regional Medical Center in Colton, the main campus of San Bernardino County's county hospital, has been certified as a Level 1 trauma center.

According to the American Trauma Society, a Level I trauma center is a comprehensive regional resource that is capable of dealing with severely injured patients. A Level I trauma center is capable of providing total care for every aspect of injury – from prevention through rehabilitation. Elements of Level I trauma centers include 24-hour in-house coverage by general surgeons, and prompt availability of care in specialties such as orthopedic surgery, neurosurgery, anesthesiology, emergency medicine, radiology, internal medicine, plastic surgery, oral and maxillofacial, pediatric and critical care, as well as referral resource for communities in nearby regions. Level 1 trauma centers provide leadership in prevention, public education to surrounding communities and provide continuing education of the trauma team members, while incorporating a comprehensive quality assessment program. Level 1 trauma centers are also required to operate an organized teaching and research effort to help direct new innovations in trauma care, make available a program for substance abuse screening and patient intervention and meet minimum requirements for accommodating a set annual volume of severely injured patients based upon the population being served.

Martha Guzman-Hurtado, the chief communications officer for San Bernardino County, said, "One of the region's biggest hospital's for adult trauma care is the county-owned-and-operated Arrowhead Regional Medical Center in Colton, which is now verified as a Level 1 trauma center. The Hospital's dedicated team of healthcare professionals provide the highest level of care to the Inland Empire's most critically injured patients."

Fontana, Unlike Redlands, Balks Over Raising Limits Where Motorists Speed

A half of a year after the Redlands City Council raised the ire of a cross section of the community there by increasing the speed limit on 45 spans of roadway in that 36.43-square mile city because well over three quarters of drivers in that jurisdiction were exceeding the previously posted limits in those areas, the Fontana City Council resisted doing the same this month.

At issue is a state-wide law and speed enforcement policy which calls upon cities to use a standard of the 85th percentile of the average speed along a given road as the speed limit that is to be posted. Cities are required to do a several-day long survey of speeds driven along its streets and roads at least once every seven to eight years. Under a law that has been in effect for decades, along with multiple court interpretations of that law over that period of time, if more than 15 percent of drivers surveyed along a particular stretch of road exceed the posted speed limit by more than ten miles an hour, anyone cited for excessive speed along those roads who cite the survey can have their speeding citations automatically dismissed.

To maintain the enforceability of their speed limits, cities will increase the speed limits at those locations.

That is what Redlands did in December. Many residents, however, believing that those drivers exceeding the speed limit previously, whether they were cited or not, were endangering other motorists and pedestrians, objected to See P 2

After Suit, Rancho Cucamonga Opting Out Of The Tow Truck Franchising Process

Legally challenged by one of the region's most aggressively expanding towing service operators, the City of Rancho Cucamonga is discontinuing its franchising of tow truck operators.

In October 1978, Jose Acosta, using a single Ford 350 pick-up truck, went into the vehicle towing business in Los Angeles as Pepe's Towing. He and his wife, Delfina, gradually expanded the business over the years, and by 1987, two of their sons, Jose Jr. and Manny, were integral parts of the operation and energetically pushed the business eastward along the I-10 Freeway corridor through the Los Angeles County communities of Monterey Park, Alhambra, Rosemead, El Monte, Baldwin Park, West Covina,

East Covina Pomona, Claremont and then into San Bernardino County, from Montclair to Upland, Ontario, Rancho Cucamonga, Fontana, Bloomington, Rialto, Colton, Grand Terrace, San Bernardino, Loma Linda and Redlands and ultimately south along the 215 Freeway to Riverside.

Despite the flourishing of his business,

Jose Acosta proved less than adept at managing to get onto the towing rotations of the various police departments in the communities in which he was operating. Those rotations – which are regulated and controlled by the Highway Patrol, the various police departments and the sheriff's departments in both Los Angeles and San Bernardino County, which provide contract law enforce services in those cities and incorporated towns which do not have municipal police departments – are virtual franchises. Obtaining such a franchise or being placed on the tow rotation guarantees that tow companies will get, at the very least, a minimal amount of work to allow the businesses to survive and in See P 3

If Your Car Has Been Stolen, You Might Want To Think About Getting A Hold Of This Guy

Those who have had their cars stolen and have had no luck in recovering them may want to consider contacting Montclair Police Officer Salvador Herrera.

Herrera is a five-time recipient of California Highway Patrol 10851 Pins and is now considered a "master" stolen car recovery specialist.

The criteria for receiving a single 10851 award consists of an officer, while serving in a patrol capacity, during a 12 month period either a) makes six separate incident rolling stolen in-custody arrests, or b) recovers a total of 12 stolen vehicles, of which a minimum of 3 must be rolling, or c) develops information resulting in the identification of a vehicle theft ring, with subsequent arrests of two or more suspects and the recovery of at least 10 vehicles.

"10851" is the California Vehicle Code Section for Grand Theft Auto (GTA).

According to Montclair City Manager Edwin Starr, "Officer Herrera's diligent efforts toward recover- See P 2

County Settling Into Juneteenth As Latest National Holiday Celebration

In 2023, four of San Bernardino County's 24 municipalities have African-American mayors and three of its cities have African-American city managers.

This year, two years after Juneteenth, which derives its name from the combination of June and nineteenth, was recognized as a federal holiday by President Joe Biden in 2021, it was at last widely celebrated, with many businesses coming around to grant their employees a day off work to celebrate it.

Juneteenth had its origin in 1865 in Galveston, Texas, when Major General Gordon Granger ordered that June 19th of that year be celebrated as the approximate two-and-one-half See P 2

Victorville To Outspend Its Revenue By More Than $16 Million in 2023-24

It appears that for at least the second year running, Victorville will have the second largest amount of money flowing into its coffers among all municipal governments in San Bernardino County, surpassing four county cities with larger populations, while simultaneously having the third largest operating budget among the county's cities.

In terms of population, Victorville is San Bernardino County's fifth largest city, with 134,810 people living within its city limits at the time of the 2020 census. In that regard, it lags behind San Bernardino, Fontana, Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga.

In income and spending, however, it surpasses all cities in the county other than Ontario.

This upcoming year, running from July 1, 2023 until June 30, 2024, Victorville will have $328,695,053.21 in revenue and $345,055,841.82 in expenses.

That means the city will engage in $16,360,788.61 in deficit spending over the next twelve months. It will make up for the difference by drawing against the city's reserves.

In terms of municipal wealth in San Bernardino County, Victorville comes in a distant second place to Ontario, which has an overall budget nearly three times the size of Victorville's, that being something less than a billion dollars, $979 million, to be precise.

Victorville nosed out third place Rancho

Cucamonga, but not by much. Rancho Cucamonga has $269,611,330 running through its municipal operations, which are kept on a separate set of books from its fire department operations. The City of Rancho Cucamonga subsumed what was formerly known as the Foothill Fire District in 1989, and continued to account for its operations on See P 2 cation by the American College of Surgeons,” said Dr. Carol Lee, the emergency medicine program director at Arrowhead Regional Medical Center.

“It means that all of these services at the hospital are able to work together in a timely fashion to take a patient from the doorway to a definitive care place,” said Dr.

Brandon Woodward, the medical center’s trauma director. “We were Level 2 before this. By achieving Level 1 status, we have become a center that doesn’t need to transfer any patients out to provide lifesaving care.”

“It [ARMC] is well known as the county hospital that serves the Inland Empire region with high quality medical care, but also a great place to train future physicians and future nurses,” said Lee.

“We developed a program, actually just a partnership, with out local hospitals to go out and teach them about trauma,” said Richard Vara, a registered nurse and one of the medical center’s trauma coordinators. “It’s a phone call, and then we’ll set up a classroom for the physicians and emergency room nurses. We’re more than happy to go and provide this education, because our goal is to provide optimal care for all of our patients, not only in our hospital but in outside hospitals, as well.”

“I think having education in addition to being able to deliver high quality care makes this hospital a very special place,” said Lee.

“Trauma injuries are a leading cause of death for people under the age of 44,” said Guzman-Hurtado. “ARMC trauma specialists treat more than 2,500 trauma-related injuries and illnesses every year.”

year anniversary of the issuance of the Emancipation Proclamation, as an emphatic proclaiming of the freedom of the formerly enslaved people of Texas. Juneteenth over time was observed annually in various parts of the United States, often broadly as a celebration of African-American culture.

Given the manner in which four-twenty-fourths or one sixth of the heads of municipal government in San Bernardino County are currently African-American and three-twentyfourths of the administrative heads of municipal government in San Bernardino County are African-American – ratios both more favorable than the roughly one-eleventh of the overall American population that is composed of African-Americans – it has been observed that it is the rest of the country that is catching up with San Bernardino County rather than the other way around.

In observance of Juneteenth, all county offices were closed on Monday and there were events to commemorate the day and spirit at many locations around the county.

In Twentynine Palms, two days early, on Saturday June 17, some 400 people celebrated Juneteenth at a gala event at Knott Sky Park hosted by Mayor McArthur Wright.

“Grace and peace be unto you, beloved community of Twentynine Palms,” began Wright. “Today, as we gather on this sacred Juneteenth, I stand before you not only as your mayor but as a member of the Black community, proud of our rich heritage and the resilience that flows through our veins. Today, we embark on a journey of reflection, remembrance, and inspiration — a journey that embraces the true meaning of Juneteenth.

As we reflect on our history, we are reminded of the struggles and the sacrifices endured by our ancestors. From the horrors of slavery to the fight for civil rights, their determination and unwavering spirit paved the way for the freedom we cherish today. We remember their names, their stories and their indomitable faith, knowing that their legacy lives on within us.”

Wright continued, “Juneteenth holds a special place in our hearts. On that fateful day in 1865, news of emancipation reached the shores of Galveston, Texas, proclaiming freedom for the last enslaved African Americans. It was a proclamation that echoed across the land, igniting a flame of hope and joy. Today, we remember the joy of liberation and celebrate the progress made since that historic moment.

“As your mayor, I am dedicated to fostering an inclusive community where every resident, regardless of their background, feels welcomed, respected and valued,” Wright said. “We will continue to work towards creating opportunities for economic empowerment, educational equity and social justice. Together, we can build a community that embraces the city’s decision. Some of those opposed to the raising of the speed limit said that doing so was tantamount to rewarding those who consistently broke the law. They and others also opposed to the speed increase pointed out that the Redlands Police Department’s traffic enforcement effort was already anemic at best, so preserving the effectiveness of the citation process in court was a futile endeavor, as very few speeders ended up facing a magistrate anyway. Keeping the lower speed limits in place would more effectively ensure safety they argued, since most – though not all – drivers use the posted speed limit as a guide as to how fast they should drive.

Despite the Redlands’ residents importuning of their city council to keep the speed limits in place, the principles of equality and celebrates the diversity that enriches our city. As we navigate this journey, let us draw strength and inspiration from the examples set by our ancestors. They fought with unwavering courage, resilience and faith. They believed in a future where equality and justice would prevail. Their hope is our torch, guiding us toward a brighter tomorrow.”

Wright declared, the council raised the speed limits as mapped out by Redlands Municipal Utilities and Engineering Department Director John Harris based upon a survey summary by City Engineer Goutam Dobey. As fate would have it, within 36 hours of the city council’s action, a 16-year-old bicyclist was run down by an 89-year-old woman driving a 2012 Ford Escape in the 1400 block of 5th Avenue, near Marion Road, a short distance from Moore Middle School.

In Fontana, based on similar traffic speed flow surveys done in that city, Jeff Kim, the city’s engineering manager, submitted for the city council’s consideration proposed speed ordinance changes that called for upping the speed limits at various locations throughout the city.

Kim, in a way that was reminiscent of Dobey’s presentation in Redlands in December, told the Fontana City Council that by using the once-every-seven-years speed survey as a guide, it council could set the city’s speed limits, and could keep the ones now in place intact if 85 percent of the motorists along those routes or more have stayed within the current limit. The upshot was that he urged the council to increase the current set of limits that were set in 2017 in those cases where the 85th percentile adherence to the limit was not being met.

The council, however, cognizant that a fair number of Fontana motorists are not only exceeding the speed limit but traveling in excess of a speed that is safe on many streets, was reluctant to make any upward changes in the current speed limits.

Upping the limits would incite drivers to speed ever faster in some circumstances, the council reasoned, putting themselves and others using the roads at greater risk. Upping the speed limit would encourage further disregard of safe driving conduct, they said.

a separate ledger. When the fire department’s 2023-24 scheduled operating budget is added to the rest of the city’s funded operating projections, Rancho Cucamonga boasts projected income for 2023-24 of $326,021,390, just below the $328,695,053.21 Victorville is anticipated to take in.

Like Victorville, Rancho Cucamonga is scheduled to go out on a limb by engaging in deficit spending, as it will lay out $354,026,700 during the 12 months running from July 1, 2023 until June 30, 2024.

Cutthroat Competition & Irregularities In Local Tow Service Franchises

some cases a substantial amount of work to allow the tow companies to realize a huge profit.

Ultimately, based upon the recommendations of the law enforcement agencies in each municipality or jurisdiction, those franchises are signed off on by the city councils overseeing those cities.

In the pay-to-play dominated political atmosphere of San Bernardino County, holders of those franchises have historically been expected to provide political donations to the city council members who approve the franchises. In those cases where a franchisee refuses or forgets to make those donations, he more often than not would lose the franchise. There was long in San Bernardino County a tacit understanding that once a set of tow truck operators were accepted by a particular city as members of that city's police department's rotation, those franchises were established and outsiders were not to be added to the rotation, lest the profit margins of those franchisees were to dip, such that they would no longer be in a position to be as generous toward the politicians as they were.

In the late 1990s, Manny Acosta, who inherited the company from his father, intensified the company's effort to break into the inner circle of Southern California tow companies, experienced checkered success that was only marginally better than what his father was able had achieved.

In 1999, recognizing that the City of San Bernardino, as the county seat, represented a bellwether in terms of both prestige and acceptance by the establishment among San Bernardino County cities, initiated a focused effort to obtain a position on the City of San Bernardino's tow rotation. He renewed that effort in 2005, 2011 and 2016. Frustrated at every turn, Acosta persisted. Having found himself hemmed in and prevented from obtaining a franchise in the City of San Bernardino no matter how he approached the matter, Acosta on October 24, 2018 filed a federal lawsuit against the city and 13 individual defendants, including then-former City Manager Mark Scott, City Councilman James Mulvihill, then-City Manager Andrea Miller, City Councilman Fred Shorett, then-Mayor R. Carey Davis, San Bernardino Police Captain Paul Williams, then-City Councilman Benito J. Barrios, then-Police Chief Jarrod Burguan, then-City Councilman John Valdivia, then-Sixth District Councilwoman Bessine L. Richard, then-City Attorney Gary D. Saenz, then-City Councilwoman Virginia Marquez and then-former Chief Assistant City Attorney Jolena Grider. The suit, filed in the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California, alleged the defendants violated the company's rights of free speech and equal protection in the course of rejecting Pepe's Towing's efforts to contract with the city to handle police and code enforcement towing duties. For years, the City of San Bernardino had rejected expanding its towing rotation beyond the group of six towing contractors that had a franchise. Acosta had been the most insistent of the tow company operators pressing the city to reopen the bidding process to all interested tow companies, of which, he maintained, his company was the most qualified. The suit alleged graft was a motivating factor in a series of decisions by succeeding city councils to confer no-bid tow contracts on six tow companies while excluding Pepe's Towing from the city's franchised towing rotation.

As it would turn out, Manny Acosta's timing in filing the suit proved impeccable. In 2020, there was a hemorrhaging of information about the graft taking place at San Bernardino City Hall. One of those accounts included a statement, under oath, by one of then-Mayor John Valdivia's field representatives, Don Smith, recounting a late-night meeting between Valdivia and one of the franchised tow truck company owners in which Valdivia was handed an envelope stuffed with cash. As the federal suit against San Bernardino was progressing toward trial, Pepe's Towing's legal team armed itself with evidence and testimony to establish and prove that Pepe's Towing had equipment and capability to match or exceed the towing ability and capability of all six of the San Bernardino's franchised tow companies, which included City Towing, Hayes Towing, Wilson Towing, Big Z Towing, Armada Towing and Tri-City Towing. That evidence extended to multiple examples of the San Bernardino Police Department or city officials encountering circumstances in which the franchise holders were unable to handle towing assignments because of the size, weight and/or the configuration of the vehicles to be towed, after which Pepe's Towing was brought in to clear a highway, street or roadway of the vehicle at issue in the dilemma.

In September 2020, the City of San Bernardino settled the lawsuit brought against it by Pepe's Towing for $1.3 million and made arrangements for it to be placed on the city's tow rotation.

A little more than two months later, on December 2, 2020, Pepe's Towing Services filed suit against the City of Rancho Cucamonga along with the County of San Bernardino, the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, and seven individuals, alleging what the company's lawyers characterized as the unfair and sudden termination of Pepe's Towing's towing services agreement with Rancho Cucamonga. The other seven individuals sued included San Bernardino County Sheriff's Sergeant Gary Esmond and then-Chief of Police Donny Mahoney, Rancho Cucamonga City Manager John Gillison, then-City Attorney James Markman, Mayor Dennis Michael, city council members Lynne Kennedy, Ryan Hutchison, Kristine Scott, and then-City Councilman Sam Spagnolo. The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department provides the City of Rancho Cucamonga with contract law enforcement services by assigning a contingent of its personnel to serve as the city's police department. The complaint alleged violation of Pepe's Towing's First Amendment and Fourteenth Amendment rights. The events at the center of the dispute began in 2018 when Chief Mahoney issued four reprimands to Pepe's Towing within six weeks, alleging towing service agreement violations for being late to towing service requests which the company was required, under the towing services agreement, to respond to within 20 minutes. All four reprimands were successfully appealed and removed from Pepe's Towing's record. After the successful appeal, Chief Mahoney unjustly and unfairly directed his deputies to favor the city's other towing operators, according to the lawsuit. Thereafter, several instances occurred where a large number of vehicles needed to be towed, and Pepe's Towing was told it was only permitted to tow a fraction of what the other tow operators were allowed to tow despite the company's availability and towing capacity, and the terms and requirements of Pepe's Towing's presence on the city's tow rotation. When Pepe's Towing lodged complaints about that action, the company's towing services agreement was unilaterally terminated by the city.

Manny Acosta publicly lamented at the time the suit was filed that "The City of Rancho Cucamonga and San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department have a history of unfair and discriminatory practices against Pepe's Towing. Despite abiding by protocols and our successful track record with numerous cities and law enforcement agencies, we have been targeted at the direction of Chief Mahoney."

Pepe's Towing secured and presented to the court information and materials to illustrate that at least some of the tow companies on Rancho Cucamonga's franchised towing rotation had similarly fallen short of the city's specified tow response time limits as was alleged against Pepe's Towing by Rancho Cucamonga officials but that those companies had not been reprimanded. In addition, according to Pepe's Towing, other franchisees failed to meet other criteria in their towing service agreements but were not held to account by the city.

The complaint against the City of Rancho Cucamonga and its affiliated co-defendants stated that San Bernardino County Sheriff's Executive Director John Fogerty showed favoritism and made backdoor deals with other tow companies based on his relationships with the owners. According to Pepe's Towing, relaxed towing enforcement following COVID-19-related stay-at-home orders made it even more difficult for tow companies to stay afloat, coupled with the fact that the City of Rancho Cucamonga increased the monthly tow operator fees by $1,000 per month. Pepe's Towing's complaint included claims for violation of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment; violation of the First Amendment right to free speech; a conspiracy to violate Pepe's constitutional rights; failure to prevent the violation of Pepe's constitutional rights; so-called Monell violations as final policymaker; Monell violations for failure to train the city's law enforcement officers properly, supervisory liability under §1983 of Title 42 of the United States Code relating to civil action for deprivation of rights; and Monell violations for ratification of the city's policy. The term Monell references the case of Monell v. Department of Social Services of the City of New York in which the U.S. Supreme Court held that a governmental entity can be held liable for the actions of its employees even if the governmental entity's policies did not explicitly violate a litigant's civil rights.

In addition, Pepe's towing maintains that city management improperly dealt with the entirety of the circumstance relating to city tow franchise operations by not ensuring that the city's standards for towing companies on the city rotations were uniformly applied. Since the filing of the lawsuit, Mahoney no longer serves in the capacity of the Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's Station commander, a position tantamount to Rancho Cucamonga police chief. Rancho Cucamonga City Attorney James Markman has retired. Councilman Sam Spagnolo died in May 2022.

Recently, Rancho Cucamonga Assistant City Manager Elisa Cox wrote to all of the city's current tow truck franchise holders and applicants for such franchises that the city's participation in granting those franchises and maintaining them will come to an end next month.

"Thank you for responding to the City of Rancho Cucamonga's RFP [request for proposal, i.e., bid invitation] for 2023-2026 police tow services," Cox wrote. "I am writing to inform you that the city intends to discontinue its police tow rotation program at the conclu-
