By Mark Gutglueck

His friends and supporters are hopeful that Former Fontana Assistant Police Chief Alan Hostetter, who is serving an 11-year federal sentence as a result of his insurrectionist activity on the U.S. Capitol grounds on January 6, 2021 in the failed attempt to prevent Congress's certification of the November 2020 U.S. Presidential Election, will be able to obtain a sentence reduction based on the U.S. Supreme Court's June 28 decision calling into question the way in which federal prosecutors were applying a 2002 law prohibiting interference with or obstruction of governmental processes.

Alan Hostetter

The law in question, 18 U.S.C. § 1512(c)(2), which makes it a crime to "otherwise obstruct, influence, or impede any official proceeding," was used to convict Joseph Fischer of Pennsylvania who had participated in the demonstrations on January 6, 2021 that had raged out of control, including multiple incidents of violence as well as a number of protesters breaching the locked Capitol Building and flooding inside, which resulted in the interruption of the Electoral College ballot certification process. According to prosecutors and the presentation of evidence at the trial in which Fischer was convicted, he trespassed into the Capitol and was involved in a physical confrontation with law enforcement.

Ultimately a grand jury returned a seven-count superseding indictment against Fischer, which included charges that he had forcibly assaulted a federal officer, entered and remained in a restricted building, and engaged in disorderly and disruptive conduct in the Capitol, along with other counts, one of which was a violation of 18 U.S.C. § See P 2

Former Marine Combat Center Commander Mullen Found Dead At 29 Palms Base

Retired Marine Major General William F. Mullen died late last week at the Twentynine Palms Marine base, which he once commanded, under circumstances that are not clear.

Mullen was found dead within Building 1651, housing the base's electronic training classrooms, on Saturday, June 29. It is not known how long he had been deceased when his body was found.

Mullen was 60. His body is undergoing an autopsic examination by the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office, which is a division of the sheriff's department.

It is customary within the U.S. Military for retired officers who achieved general or admiral rank to be given living accommodations at military installations, generally of their own choosing. Mullen, who was then a one-star brigadier general, took on the assignment of the commanding general of the Twentynine Palms base, known officially within the Marine Corps as the Marine Air Ground Task Force Training Command and Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center in July 2016.

William F. Mullen

While he was in that assignment, Mullen promoted to two-star major general status. On June 8, 2018, he left Twentynine Palms to serve as the Commanding General, Training and Education Command in Quantico, Virginia. He took official retirement from the Marine Corps in 2020.

The Sentinel was given confirmation of Mullen's death by both the Marine Corps and the sheriff's department. See P 3

Actions Meriting 25 Community Members, Deputies & Public Safety Personnel Commendations Described

On Thursday, June 27, 2024, the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department recognized 25 individuals during the Sheriff's Exceptional Service Awards for 2022 and 2023 in Highland.

Sheriff Shannon Dicus, who played a central role in refining the list of those to be honored for their demonstrated courage, bravery and quick and decisive action in keeping the community safe, was unable to present the awards, as was planned, due to a family emergency but expressed gratitude to all those who had been selected for the recognition. In his place, Assistant Sheriff Rick Bessinger made the presentations.

The Sentinel has obtained and assembled the following narratives which accompanied the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department's recommendation of valor and extraordinary service on the part of the 25 community members, public safety personnel, and Sheriff's Department members who distinguished themselves during the eleven incidents in which See P 3

County Museum Offering The Public Free Admission To Several Historic Sites

The San Bernardino County Museum is offering free admission to several of the county's historic sites, including the Agua Mansa Pioneer Cemetery, the María Merced Williams and John Rains House, and the Oro Grande Cemetery.

"By offering free admission to our historic sites, we hope to attract new visitors and provide access to these historically significant sites to our entire community," said Museum Director David Myers.

The Agua Mansa Pioneer Cemetery is all that remains of the communities of Agua Mansa and La Placita. Situated across from each other along the Santa Ana River, they were the first non-native settlements in the San Bernardino Valley and the largest settlements between New Mexico and Los Angeles during the 1840s. The cemetery is located at 2001 Agua Mansa Road in Colton and is open Sunday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Donations are welcome.

The María Merced Williams and John Rains House, built in 1860, has a history as colorful as the property's gardens. Namesakes Rains and Merced, granddaughter of the prominent landowner Don Antonio Maria Lugo, built the home to withstand the hot inland Southern California climate, and of course to entertain. The house is located at 8810 Hemlock Street, at the Vineyard Avenue exit from Interstate 10 in Rancho Cucamonga and is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Oro Grande Cemetery is known to be one of the oldest cemeteries in San Bernardino County with the first recorded burial dated in 1852. The site has since been designated as a California Point of Historical Interest and features a memorial honoring Lt. Manuel P. Ro- See P 5

County Wants Sacramento To Prevent Insurance Companies From Canceling Homeowners' Fire Coverage

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors unanimously urged the state to declare a state of emergency and take immediate emergency regulatory and legislative action to strengthen and stabilize California's marketplace for homeowners insurance and commercial property insurance as part of a resolution it adopted at its June 25 meeting.

"The reduction of insurance options in the state has had a direct negative impact on our consumers' ability to get coverage and it's putting our homeowners and businesses at risk of catastrophic loss," said Board of Supervisors Chairman and Third District Supervisor Dawn Rowe.

In 1988, California voters enacted Proposition 103, which established a robust set of consumer protections designed to keep insurance rates fair and affordable and to ensure a competitive marketplace.

On May 26, 2023 State Farm General Insurance Company and on June 2, 2023, Allstate, California's two largest insurance carriers, representing over 27 percent of the admitted insurance market in California, announced they would stop issuing new homeowners and commercial property insurance policies in California. 1512(c)(2), an outgrowth of the 2002 Sarbanes-Oxley Act, which was passed in reaction to the Enron Scandal.

The Enron Scandal involved allegations of evidence tampering engaged in by the perpetrators of the massive fraud relating to accounting by the Enron Corporation. Fischer's legal team arguing on behalf of him and two other January 6 defendants, Edward Lang, and Garret Miller, asserted that there was no evidence to suggest, and that the defendants had not engaged in, evidence tampering. In March 2022, District Judge Carl J. Nichols dismissed obstruction charges against the three defendants, including Fischer, ruling prosecutors had improperly separated the portion of the law forbidding obstruction of an official proceeding from its intrinsic evidence-tampering provision regarding actions involving a "document, record, or other object". Nichols' ruling was not binding on other judges, though several other defendants attempted to make similar arguments that Sarbanes-Oxley does not apply to them before other judges, most of which did not work. Federal prosecutors appealed Nichols' rulings in the three cases, including that of Fischer, to the D.C. Court of Appeals, which in April 2023 reversed Nichols in a 2-1 ruling, finding that Sarbanes-Oxley was broad enough to cover the conduct of Fischer and the other two defendants. It held that the statute applied to "all forms of corrupt obstruction of an official proceeding." It was the D.C. Court of Appeals ruling that was the subject of the Supreme Court Review, resulting in the June 28 6-to-3 decision holding that Judge Nichols' determination should be reinstated and that unless there was a direct and unequivocal element of document or record tampering, defendants such as Fischer and, by extension, all January 6 defendants, including Hostetter, could not be pursued under Sarbanes-Oxley and/or 18 U.S.C. § 1512(c)(2).

There are parallels between Fischer and Hostetter. Like Hostetter, Fischer was a former law enforcement officer, who had become convinced that the reelection of Donald Trump was critical to the survival of the United States. Both attended the Stop the Steal rally at the Ellipse in Washington, D.C. and at various times encouraged the rioters during the Capitol attack and in other forums and places. Fischer, for example, was heard on January 6 saying he wanted to go "to war" and take "democratic Congress to the gallows." In some of his rhetorical flourishes, Hostetter had said that it was time for the traitors who had stolen the election from Donald Trump, including Biden, "to swing from a fucking lamppost" and "Some people, at the highest levels, need to be... executed."

While one of those within his circle of seven associates from Southern California who had accompanied Hostetter to Washington, D.C. in late December 2020/early January 2021 did go into the Capitol after it was breached, Hostetter remained outside. Fischer did go into the building. Fischer was charged with seven counts, those being civil disorder; assaulting, resisting, or impeding certain officers and aiding and abetting resistance; obstruction of an official proceeding; entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds; disorderly and disruptive conduct in a restricted building or grounds; disorderly conduct in a capitol building; and parading, demonstrating, or picketing in a Capitol Building. Hostetter was charged with four counts: conspiracy to obstruct an official proceeding; obstruction of an official proceeding and aiding and abetting resistance; entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds with a deadly or dangerous weapon; and disorderly and disruptive conduct in a restricted building or grounds with a deadly or dangerous weapon.

Despite the parallels in their cases, there are substantial dissimilarities between them.

Last year, between July 7 and July 13, Hostetter stood trial before Judge Royce Lamberth in a proceeding in which he represented himself and waived his right to a jury trial, allowing Lamberth to both ascertain his guilt or innocence on the charges against him and pronounce sentence. Lamberth found him guilty on all four counts and sentenced him to prison for 11 years.

On February 2, Fischer pleaded guilty to all seven charges against him. He was sentenced to 20 months in prison in May.

One of the factors in the discrepancy between the eleven-year sentence Hostetter netted and the less than two years Fischer is to serve in prison was the consideration that Hostetter, relatively early on dispensed with his legal counsel and chose to represent himself, while Fischer had competent legal counsel throughout his ordeal. A second factor was that prior to sentencing, Fischer expressed remorse and contrition, acknowledging that his behavior had been "egregious," and he offered an apology to the police officers he assaulted specifically and the people of the District of Columbia in general. Hostetter, conversely, went down swinging, insisting right up until the time that he was being sentenced by Lamberth that he had broken no law and that he was the victim of an elaborate violation of the law on the part of others. A third factor was that Fischer threw in the towel before going to trial, while Hostetter insisted on having his day – or actually week – in court, during which he acted from start to finish as his own attorney. A fourth factor is that despite his temporary flight into the chaotic atmosphere of the protests over the 2020 election, Fischer remains relatively psychologically intact. Hostetter, on the other hand, even those closest to him and those who were formerly his primary associates, comes across as consumed with mental illness.

Hostetter once seemed as straight-laced as they come. After graduating from high school in 1982, Hostetter joined the Army, training as an infantryman. He was stationed at Fort Hood in Texas with the 1st Cavalry Division and did a tour of duty with the 3rd Infantry Division in Aschaffenburg, West Germany. In 1986, after leaving the Army, he was hired by the Orange County Sheriff's Department. In 1989, he transferred to the Fontana Police Department.

As a patrol officer in Fontana, he seemed to particularly relish dealing harshly with the marijuana users his job put him into contact with on an almost daily basis. Referring to them as "potheads," who were easily spotted and outsmarted, he rung up an impressive number of arrests in this way.

As he was working his way up from the rank of patrol officer in Fontana, he married Wendy Hostetter, a police dispatcher who eventually became the police department's dispatch and communications division supervisor. They had a son, Corey, who would eventually follow in his father's footsteps to become a police officer.

In 1993, Alan Hostetter promoted to police corporal, an advancement paralleled by academic achievement. While employed with the department, through correspondence courses he obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Southagency's police chief. He returned to the Fontana Police Department as a captain in April 2007 and became assistant chief in December 2007. Hostetter had a host of impressive assignments and achievements with the Fontana Police Department. Beyond working in the patrol division, he was a member of the special weapons and tactics team, the narcotics unit, detective bureau, internal affairs unit, and administration division. He was a graduate of the 212th session of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy at Quantico, Virginia; Class 38 of the California Police Officers Standards and Training Command College; and Class 105 of the Sherman Block Supervisory and Leadership Institute. Once thought to be a shoo-in to succeed then-Police Chief Rod Jones upon his eventual retirement, the ambitious Hostetter in the fall of 2009 applied for the soon-to-open police chief's position in the Orange County city of La Habra, a city of 60,000, which at that time was less than a third of the size of then-190,000 population Fontana. In December 2009, Hostetter, having outdistanced the other 19 candidates for the job, was named La Habra police chief. He began in La Habra in January 2010, but suffered a back injury, remaining in place only until May of that year, going out on leave and then taking a disability retirement officially effective as of August 26, 2010. At 46 years old, he moved to San Clemente. He began as an instructor/facilitator with the University of Phoenix, teaching undergraduate courses in ethics in criminal justice and graduate courses in budgeting, while awaiting the approval of his disability pension, then pegged at $132,907.32 annually, which would kick in the following year. In October of 2011, he founded a company, Public Sector Solutions, which provided investigative services to support private business with workplace investigations. He remained as an instructor with the University of Phoenix until 2013. Hostetter's back injury had forced him to discontinue the physical fitness regimen he had engaged in as soldier thousands of homeowners in California that its policies would not be renewed following their 2023 expiration. Several others, representing an additional 36 percent of the market, announced plans to limit new policy origination.

The reduction of insurance options in the state has a direct negative effect on consumer access to coverage. In all parts of California, hom-owners, business owners, and farmers are now unable to obtain new insurance policies.

According to San Bernardino County, "Access to insurance allows existing homeowners to protect what is for many their largest and most important asset, and empowers homebuyers to secure a mortgage for a home that can build generational wealth, but a scarcity of options may freeze real estate transactions and slow or stop the rate of new housing development, including attached dwelling units like affordable housing projects, apartments, and condominiums, exacerbating the state's critical housing shortage."

Californians who cannot obtain coverage are forced to apply for protection through the California Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (FAIR) Plan, a state-established risk pool intended to operate as California's insurer of last resort providing temporary coverage as consumers pursue insurance in the traditional market. The collapsing market has caused steadily increasing enrollment in the FAIR Plan over the past five years, threatening the ongoing stability of the plan, putting what is for many their sole remaining safety net at dire risk.

According to San Bernardino County, "Policy decisions have placed Californians' homes and businesses at risk of catastrophic loss that can only be prevented by stabilizing the homeowners insurance and commercial property insurance markets while providing rates that remain fair and affordable to consumers, and maintaining the ongoing viability of the FAIR Plan, which provides a vital safety net to Californians whose policies are nonrenewed and to homebuyers who cannot secure a mortgage without insurance."

The California Insurance Commissioner has released draft regulations to address this immediate crisis but the Little Hoover Commission hearing on March 28, 2024, reports that reforms "will not go into effect until at least 2026, and it may take a few years after that for the market to react ... this timeline, of course could be delayed further if lawsuits by any party, including insurers or consumers, were to occur."

The California Insurance Commissioner has broad authority under California's Insurance Code to adopt emergency regulations to promote the public welfare, to adopt emergency several years ago. Code enforcement, the public administrator som public health offices and the civil grand jury were housed there as well.

Following the vacation of the county recorder's office and the county assessor's division, which made up the lion's share of what was referred to as the Hall of Records, the building provided office space for several county departments, including office for the county's code enforcement division, the public administrator, the civil grand jury and a few rooms for the Public Health Department. The structure, however, was irreparably damaged by a major three-alarm fire on June 19, 2022. Smoke from the fire inundated the aging Public Health building next door. The fire occurred on a Sunday morning – Father's Day, in fact – so no county employees or customers were at risk.

Public Health and the offices located in the Old Hall of Records were moved to other nearby locations.

Because the buildings were built in the 1960s and modified over time before current construction regulations were enacted, fire remediation and environmental and hazardous materials abatement took two years to complete before demolition could begin.

Demolition is expected to continue into 2025.

On the afternoon of Wednesday, April 20, 2022, at approximately 4:15 p.m., John Kraus, a 53-year-old Yucaipa resident, watched as the driver of a Mazda Protégé lost control while driving on Calimesa Boulevard in Yucaipa. The Mazda slid sideways onto the shoulder of the roadway, then impacted a wood railing and the pony wall to the flood control channel.

The Mazda was nearly torn in half and the driver was trapped inside. Kraus approached the wreckage, realizing Recognizing he needed to stanch the driver's further blood loss, Kraus utilized his belt as a tourniquet to stop the bleeding until medical arrived.

"If it wasn't for John's quick thinking and immediate action, the driver would have succumbed to his injuries before medical aid arrived," according to the sheriff's department.

On the morning of Thursday, June 29, 2023 at approximately 6:30 a.m., while Detective Shaunna Ables was driving to work at the Morongo Sheriff's Station through the Twentynine Palms area, she noticed black smoke billowing in a residential neighborhood. Heading in the direction of the smoke, Ables came across a vehicle and a fence on fire in the 72300 block of Sunnyslope Drive. The fire was quickly spreading to the roof of a nearby residence.

After notifying the Sheriff's dispatch center, Ables knock on the door to awaken the sleeping residents. Ables assist-

Before the responding fire company arrived and

Deputy Brandon Nar-

The fire having consumed the front of residence and advancing toward the rear, Ables and Narcisse, without any protective equipment or gear ran through the front door and, despite the heat and smoke, were able to locate the elderly man and evacuate him from the midst of the fire rapidly spreading through the residence to safety.

"If not for the quick thinking and heroic actions of both Shaunna and Brandon, several lives would have been lost that day to the fire," according to the depart-

The circumstances of his death, the lack of previous medical indicators of concern and his age being below that of life expectancy triggered the involvement of the Naval Criminal Investigative Service, which is investigating the matter. The Marine Corps is their maritime land force service branch of the United States Armed Forces, an ostensibly independent branch of the military that serves under the Department of the Navy. The Naval Criminal Investigative Service is the law enforcement branch of the Department of the Navy, which conducts criminal investigations as well as routine examinations of the non-combat-related deaths of sailors or Marines.

A graduate of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps program at Marquette University, Mullen was commissioned in 1986 and assigned to 1st Battalion, 3rd Marines in Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, where he served as a rifle and weapons platoon commander, and battalion training officer from 1987 to 1990.

From 1990-1993 he served as a platoon commander, executive officer and commanding officer of the Fleet Anti-Terrorism Security Team Company with the Marine Corps Security Force Battalion, Pacific at Mare Island, where he served as a platoon commander, executive officer and ultimately commanding officer. In this capacity, he deployed to Operation Desert Shield and participated in several counter-narcotics missions in support of Joint Task Force-6, also serving as battalion training officer.

After attending the Advanced Artillery Officer course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Mullen in 1993 was transferred to 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines (later converted to 2nd Battalion, 6th Marines) at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, as the commanding officer of Fox Company. and police officer. As an alternate way of remaining in good condition, he took up yoga and found it useful in his maintaining flexibility, suppleness and muscle tone. He rapidly went from being a novice to a dedicated practitioner to a teachers possible. Hostetter had made a remarkable physical transformation as well, having gone from the clean-cut military/police officer model he had typified in his 20s, 30s and early 40s to a bearded and long-haired guru hippy type.

As a yogi, Hostetter taught his acolytes meditation could heal the body, the mind and the soul.

er, creating, in January 2017, Alpha Yoga of Orange County, which catered mostly to senior citizens and the wives of wealthy businessmen in San Clemente, Dana Point and San Juan Capistrano. The type of yoga he advocated was particularly focused on the healing and relaxing potential of hypnotic sound, involving an atmosphere that used American Indian flutes, Tibetan bowls and Aboriginal didgeridoos to create a “sound bath” to accompany the exercises, stretches and poses he led, known as asanas and vinyasas accompanied by breathing exercises known as pranayama. To those who knew him in his previous life as a police officer, an existence in which force and aggression were routine, Hostetter’s transformation was profound, as he talked about eliminating everything other than “good vibes” and seeking out spiritual fulfillment, getting in touch with his own soul and how yoga could make such cosmic realizations for oth-

His yoga studio from time to time was filled with the aroma of burning sage and other herbs, intended to create a “relaxing” environment. Then, in a very short period of time, shortly after the advent of the COVID-19 crisis, Hostetter made an abrupt retransformation, forsaking his newfound identity as a yogi to take on the persona of a self-styled conservative political activist. In April 2020, he abruptly closed down Alpha Yoga of Orange County.

Having the advantage of his annual disability pension, which by that point had grown to $160,495.09, Hostetter diverting practically all of his time and energy into the American Phoenix Project, a non-profit organization he co-founded with Russell Taylor, the American Phoenix Project.

The American Phoenix Project was engaging in “a fight back against tyranny,” which he said, had as its elements Democrats across the country but particularly those in California and Washington, D.C., who were using the COVID crisis as a means of not only killing Americans and wreaking havoc on the American economy, but destroying American primacy in the world by working against the reelection of Donald Trump, who was, Hostetter solemnly stated, “The greatest president this country ever had.”

Hostetter railed against the “so many corrupt institutions at the local level, state level and the national level” which were utilizing lockdowns to destroy businesses and instill in the American public compliance with governmental fiat which were part of vast international conspiracy.

The American Phoenix Project drew to it a number of participants and supporters, which included Irvine Smith, the scion of the wealthy family that had founded Irvine, together with Erik Scott Warner, Felipe Antonio “Tony” Martinez, Derek Kinnison and Ronald Mele.

Smith bankrolled much of the American Phoenix Project’s activities, which Hostetter, as the organization’s executive director, was masterminding.

Virtually overnight Hostetter had become the central figure in the resistance to the State of California’s program to limited the spread of the coronavirus. The American Phoenix Projects first major action, which proved ultimately unsuccessful, was to file a lawsuit against California Governor Gavin Newsom to take down all ‘shelter-in-place’ orders currently in place.” Despite the lawsuit’s failure, Hostetter’s efforts drew to him a sizable contingent of residents either opposed to the government lockdowns from the start or who began to chaff under those restrictions as they continued week after week and month after month. Hostetter manifested as the messiah of resistance to the Deep State, discovering a talent for public speaking he had previously not been known to possess. He was soon giving speeches to multitudes, with hundreds of faithful hanging on his every word. Utilizing money provided by Smith, he and Taylor organized and Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele helped coordinate protests against mandates that business be shuttered and that citizens wear masks out in public. Hostetter led rallies in Orange County against coronavirus restrictions in general throughout the late spring and summer of 2020, protesting beach closures, defying the civil authorities and daring the local police sent to break up the crowds to arrest him and his fellow protesters. Of note, Robert Ramsey, with whom Hostetter had served the entirety of his career at the Fontana Police Department and who eventually acceded to the police chief position there in 2016 when Police Chief Rod Jones retired, after a little more than two years in the chief’s position in 2018 had himself retired to San Clemente. Ini-

and he too went on record against the government’s action in seeking to enslave its citizens by increments through the lockdown justifications. But when Hostetter became too passionate in his opposition, including one occasion when he got himself arrested by chaining himself to a fence that had been erected to prevent public access to the San Clemente Beach, Ramsey began to disassociate himself with Hostetter, at least publicly. Those who knew Hostetter primarily as a yoga instructor whose focus on achieving inner peace and oneness with the universe said it was if he had become unhinged virtually overnight, having been sent off the deep end by the government precautions against the spread of COVID-19. Former yoga students related tales of him growing intemperate and profane, cursing when discussing stay-at-home orders or business-closure mandates. One related how he had been terrified during a chance encounter with Hostetter on the street in San Clemente. In compliance which unfortunately, did not obscure his identity from the eagle-eyed Hostetter. At that point, the man said, Hostetter viciously upbraided him for cowardly complying with the requirement that masks be worn in public. Others have consistently depicted Hostetter as reacting virulently, during any discussion he was involved in relating to the lockdown and governmental mandates at that time, to any suggestion that the COVID-19 pandemic represented a legitimate health crisis that was best managed with precautions to limit the spread of the virus and protect those elements of the population most vulnerable to it. The government’s effort to reduce the strain on the healthcare facilities and institutions – hospitals and both acute care and recovery/long term care homes – where those most critically impacted by the disease were to be treated, was an out-and-out ruse to compromise constitutional rights and liberty, he said. Hostetter would dismiss with anger and derision any expression of trust in California’s government or faith that Governor Gavin Newsom was seeking to protect the state’s citizens, insisting his interlocutor had been brainwashed or was a tool of the Democrats and the socialists who had commandeered the State of California and were ruling the roost in Sacramento. Hostetter said the State of California’s response to the coronavirus outbreaks exposed the Democrats as power mad tyrants hell bent on lording it over California’s citizens. The Democrats in Washington, D.C. were attempting to use the virus as means of recapturing the White House, he said.

During the run-up to the November 2020 election, he made multiple speeches in support of Donald Trump, including one in which he stated, there was “no pandemic. There’s never been a local health emergency.” He likened the govern-safety launched himself toward the assailant, tackling him and then grappling with him after they both went to the floor. During the struggle, the suspect lost control of the firearm.

vation of the victim's life and the lives of everyone else inside the restaurant that day."

On the morning of Tuesday, May 30, 2023, at approximately 9:45 a.m., the sheriff's dispatch center received a call for service for a fire at a residence located in the Jess Ranch Retirement Community in Apple Valley. Deputy Ernesto Madrigal was the first to arrive and saw the front of the residence and garage were already engulfed in flames, and explosions could be heard coming from the residence.

Madrigal jumped the fence to the back yard and found the rear door to the residence. When he opened it, black smoke billowed out, making it impossible to see inside. To Madrigal's shouts, a faint male voice called back.

Without hesitation, Madrigal entered the residence and located a disabled elderly man who had difficulty walking. Madrigal evacuated the man from the residence and got him to medical aid personnel who transported the man to a nearby hospital for fire related treatment.

According to the department, "If it wasn't for the swift decisions followed by the selfless actions of Ernesto, the Jess Ranch Retirement Community would be mourning the loss their friend."

In July of 2022, Mike Ball and Severin Christensen witnessed a vehicle lose control and drive off the side of the mountain on Highway 38. The vehicle went down about 30 feet and ultimately crashed into a tree.

Ball and Christensen ran down the embankment as the vehicle started to catch on fire. They reached the driver who was unwilling to leave the vehicle due to her disorientation. Ball and Christensen knew they had to get her out of the vehicle as the fire was getting worse.

Together, Ball and Christensen pulled the driver from the vehicle and were able to get her a safe distance away from the fire. By the time emergency personnel arrived at the scene, the vehicle was fully engulfed, and a rescue would not have been possible.

"Thankfully Mike and Severin did not take no for an answer and their quick thinking and teamwork saved the driver's life," according to the sheriff's department.

On January 20, 2023, at approximately 3:00 p.m., hiker Dean Colbert, a retired Riverside County sheriff's deputy, was hiking in the San Antonio Falls area of Mt. Blady when he observed a group of hikers frantically waiving for help. Colbert climbed down an icy and steep mountainside to reach them and found one of the hikers had a severe head injury due to falling debris. Colbert directed one of the hikers to leave the area and call for help while he stayed and tended to the injured hiker.

Deputy Chris Henry is assigned to the Mt. Baldy resident deputy position and received the call for help. Henry, along with Firefighters Cary Mitchell and Adam Salvesson arrived and located the victim about 150 yards down the icy and treacherous trail. When they reached the victim, they saw she had an open wound to her head, exposing a portion of her brain. They knew they had limited time to get her the medical treatment she desperately needed.

Henry made arrangements to have the victim hoisted out of the canyon by a sheriff's department helicopter, but as the weather was severe and winds were too high, the helicopter was unable to reach them. Henry, Mitchell, Salvesson and Colbert made the decision to evacuate the victim themselves. During the evacuation, Henry fell in the icy conditions, and became injured, but he was able to continue moving the victim to safety where additional emergency personnel could reach them.

"I probably rushed down without thinking of my own safety and ended up with some minor injuries myself," Henry said, somewhat sheepishly.

The victim was transported to a local hospital and received emergency medical treatment.

"Had it not been for the bravery, skill, and dedication of Chris,

Adam Salvesson

Cary, Adam and Dean, the victim's chances of survival would have been grim," according to the sheriff's department. "Instead, after a few days in the hospital, the victim made a full recovery."

On the evening of Thursday, February 23, 2023, Captain Ross Tarangle was just getting off work from the Colorado River Station and noticed heavy smoke from a nearby residential area in Needles. Taran-gle drove toward the smoke and found a residence was on fire.

Ross Tarangle

Tarangle was the first responder on the scene, and he notified sheriff's dispatch center of the fire. A neighbor told Tarangle he heard someone from inside the residence screaming for help. The garage was fully engulfed and the fire was spreading to the rest of the residence. Several rounds of ammunition and multiple cans of gasoline that were stored in the garage began to explode.

Hearing a woman screaming for help from inside the residence, Tarangle did not wait for the fire department, and immediately entered the residence. Tarangle found the female, a bed-ridden quadriplegic and her elderly father, who was too weak to escape. Tarangle carried the woman to safety and without hesitation re-entered the burning residence. He was able to help the man to safety and reunite him with his daughter.

"Ross's quick reactions and courageous measures were instrumental in saving the lives of the father and daughter, proving no matter how high the rank, deputy sheriffing never goes away," the department stated.

On the afternoon of Monday, August 14, 2023, Deputy Jeremy Deruiter was on patrol at the Colorado River Station, Parker Dam area when he conducted a traffic stop for a vehicle code violation. The driver was identified as a violent wanted subject and he fled, leading Deruiter on a high-speed pursuit.

After 22 miles, the suspect slowed his vehicle, headed it toward the aqueduct, and jumped from the moving vehicle.

The suspect fled on foot and the vehicle came to rest in the water-filled aqueduct. Deruiter lit out after the suspect but his attention was arrested by something else.

"As he exited the vehicle, the vehicle went into the canal," Deruiter said. "I could see the kid banging on the windows."

Realizing there was a young child in the vehicle, Deruiter went back to the sinking vehicle and could see what turned out to be a 6-year-old child strapped into a car seat and unable to escape the vehicle that was quickly filling with water. Deruiter jumped into the flowing aqueduct in full gear and used his rapid containment baton to break the vehicle's window. Deruiter was able to rescue the child just as the passenger compartment filled with water.

Upon ensuring the child was safe, Deruiter coordinated the efforts to locate the wanted suspect and the suspect was apprehended a short time later.

"Jeremy's ability to remain calm during the high-speed pursuit, coupled with his ability to continuously observe his surroundings led him to the discovery of the child which was instrumental in saving the child's life," according to the department.

On the afternoon of Sunday, May 15, 2022, Deputy Larry Torres was dispatched to a residential fire in Adelanto. As the first responder to arrive, Torres was immediately approached by a frantic mother who told him her nine-year-old son was trapped inside the residence.

Without hesitation Torres entered the burning, smoke-filled residence. Searching the ment's reaction to the COVID-19 circumstance to the holocaust, the genocidal extermination of a whole phase of the population that was being purposefully carried out. He equated self-quarantining to being "placed under house arrest. We're going to be wearing masks for the rest of our lives." He said the vaccines that were being prepared would contain a microchip that would inaugurate the Brave New World. "We are going to be digitally tracked for the rest of our lives. First masks, then vaccines, then vaccine passports. Next thing you know, you're on the cattle cars." He accused Democratic officeholders and the Republicans who failed to oppose them of being "hack politicians. These politicians are bought off by Big Pharma and God only knows the corruption that is involved in keeping them dogging us and dogging us like they have been for a year."

After the November 2020 election concluded with Joseph Biden's victory over Donald Trump, Hostetter signed onto the theory that the election had been stolen and he refused to come off of it, insisting that those who did not see it in that light were either communist traitors or dupes of the first magnitude.

Eleven days after the election, a million-man Make America Great Again March aimed at convincing government officials that a recount of the presidential election votes was in order was organized to take place in the nation's capital. In a video he posted to the American Phoenix media channel while he was en route to that event, Hostetter stated, "The Deep State has been assuming power in this country and slowly taking everything over in this country. There's been no honest vote probably in decades, if not longer. They think they're firmly in control and they're about to be proven otherwise."

When the million-man MAGA March did not result in reversing the presidential election outcome, Hostetter and Taylor, Smith, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele heeded President Trump's call to converge on Washington D.C. during the election certification to stage a protest that would prevent what he said would be an illegitimate transfer of power.

Taylor and Hostetter reacted to that signal from the president in a text exchange in which they resolved to travel to the Capitol in order to "intimidate Congress."

While yet in Southern California in December 2020, at rallies in Orange County, Hostetter appealed to as many "patriots" as possible to heed the president's call and go to Washington ahead of the joint session of Congress to certify the election results on January 6 in order to protest that certification, which would be, if it went to Joseph Biden, he insisted, invalid. During one of those rallies, Hostetter propounded that the "elected whores," meaning the members of Congress, should "fix this mess and keep America America." Allowing the crooked Democrats who had stolen the election to put their kingpin Joseph Biden in the White House was tantamount to treason, he said, which "patriots" would not stand for. Those members of Congress directly participating in the theft – meaning the Democrats – and the ones passively allowing it to happen – meaning the Republicans who were RINOs or Republicans In Name Only.

Hostetter, Taylor, Smith, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele made arrangements to rendezvous in Washington, D.C. in early January to take part in the Stop the Steal rally. Using text messages and communication applications Using various messaging applications and social media, including unencrypted text messages and emails and the encrypted messaging application Telegram, Hostetter, Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele communicated with one another and shared information regarding progress being made internally in the government toward certifying the election, coordinating their travel to Washington, D.C., promoting events sponsored by the American Phoenix Project along with the "type of weaponry"... gear... medical kits... radios... multiple cans of bear spray... knives... plates [i.e., bulletproof vests]... goggles... helmets..." and references to guns, including Mele's pronouncement that the "shorter the better. Mine will be able to be stashed under the seat. I'll bring it. 18" barrel." In one encrypted text Kinnison told the others that he, Mele and Warner were "[l]eaving tomorrow and driving instead of flying because our luggage would be too heavy."

On January 5, at a rally near the U.S. Supreme Court, Alan Hostetter told a frenzied crowd, "Our voices tomorrow are going to put the fear of God in the cowards and the traitors, the RINOs and the communists of the Democrat Party. They need to know, we of the people, 100 million strong, are coming for them if they do the wrong thing." He told those assembled that they should ready themselves for "war tomorrow" to be carried out against the "vi-pers" in Congress who were refusing to declare the election of Joseph Biden null and void. At the same rally, Russell Taylor said, "In these streets we will fight and we will bleed before we allow our freedom to be taken from us. We will not return to our peaceful way of life until this election is made right."

At the January 6 rally, despite Smith being present, there was no evidence presented that he ever came into contact with Hostetter, Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele, all six of whom were wearing black plate-carrier vest. Hostetter and Taylor were carrying backpacks in which Taylor had a hatchet and a stun baton and Hostetter had a hatchet. Taylor was carrying a knife in the front chest pocket of his plate carrier vest.

Hostetter, Taylor, Mele, Martinez, Kinnison and Warner were on the Capitol grounds together at one point and joined rioters on the lower west terrace. At some point Hostetter and Taylor became separated from Mele, Martinez, Kinnison and Warner.

Subsequently, at 2:13 p.m., Warner entered the Capitol through a broken window. At approximately 2:30 p.m., Taylor and Hostetter joined rioters on the lower west terrace who were pushing through the line of law enforcement officers seeking to keep the crowd from advancing. During this encounter, Taylor was recorded beckoning the rioters, "Move forward, Americans," and told the officers seeking to hold the line against the rioters, "Last chance boys. Move back!" Shortly thereafter, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office, Taylor, closely followed by Hostetter, pushed through the area that the capital police had been blocking, moved up the stairs onto a structure erected for the Inauguration and continued moving up on to the Upper West Terrace.

Hostetter, Taylor, Smith, Mele, Martinez, Kinnison and Warner managed to make it out of Washington, D.C. after the January 6 uprising but by the end of January, all seven were on the Justice Department's radar. On January 28, 2021, the FBI served search warrants at Hostetter's, Taylor's, Smith's, Mele's, Martinez's, Kinnison's and Warner's homes. More than five months later, on June 9, a sealed indictment was handed down by a grand jury in which Hostetter, Taylor, Mele, Martinez, Kinnison and Warner were charged with federal offenses that included conspiracy, obstructing an official proceeding, and unlawful entry on restricted building or grounds. The following day, the indictment was unsealed. Taylor was also charged with obstructing law enforcement during a civil disorder and unlawful Expeditionary Unit from 1995 to 1996 as a company commander with the small boat raid and cliff assault company, participating in contingency operations in the former Yugoslavia. From 1996 to 1999 he served as the inspector-instructor for Fox Company, 2nd Battalion, 24th Marines based in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and led a successful counter-narcotics mission in the Los Padres National Forest of California.

In 1999, then-Major Mullen was selected to be the Marine aide to President Bill Clinton and later George W. Bush. He served in that capacity until attending the School of Advanced Warfighting in 2001. After school, he reported to the Joint Operations Division of the Joint Staff, J-3 for duty in the United States Indo Pacific Command (PACOM) and the United States Central Command (CENTCOM) sections, and served as executive assistant to the deputy director for regional operations until 2004.

In 2004, having been promoted to lieutenant colonel, he reported to 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune for duty as the division plans officer, and was chosen later that year to be the operations officer for Regimental Combat Team – 8, with whom he deployed to Fallujah, Iraq from 2005 to 2006. After returning, he assumed command of 2nd Battalion, 6th Marines and returned to Fallujah in 2007. Following command he attended the Naval War College from 2008 to 2009, and subsequently commanded the Marine Corps Tactics and Operations Group in Twentynine Palms from 2009 to 2011.

After promotion to brigadier general in 2012, he was assigned as the commanding general, Education Command, and president of Marine Corps University in Quantico, Virginia. He then became director of Capabilities Development Directorate, Combat Development and Integration, and subsequently deployed and served as the director of operations in the Combined Joint Operations Center in Baghdad from June 2015 to June 2016 in support of Iraqi security forces during Operation Inherent Resolve.

In July of 2016, he assumed command of Marine Corps Air Ground Task Force Training Command, Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center. Upon being succeeded by Brigadier General Roger Turner as the commanding general of the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center and Marine Air Ground Task Force Training Command in Twentynine Palms, Mullen was assigned to head the Training and Education Command, located 36 miles from Washington, D.C. in Quantico, Virginia.

Brigadier General Mullen held a BA and MA in political science from Marquette University, as well as an MA in national security and strategic studies from the Naval War College. He completed the Advanced Artillery Officer, School of Advanced Warfighting, Airborne, Ranger, Summer Mountain Leader and Royal Marine Arctic Warfare Survival courses. With his wife Vicki, he had three children.

possession of a dangerous weapon on Capitol grounds. Warner and Kinnison were charged with tampering with documents.

Initially, the six co-defendants put on a united front. In October 2021, however, Hostetter undertook a radical change of strategy in his legal defense. On October 14 of that year, Hostetter told Judge Royce Lamberth, who had been assigned to his case and that of his five codefendants, that he wanted to represent himself, stating his rationale for doing so was that there was no truth or substance to the charges, that the federal government knew there was no case against him and was proceeding with the criminal charges in an effort to both discredit him and bankrupt him financially. Lamberth said that whatever Hostetter's impressions were of the case against him and despite his knowledge of the law gained by his more than 23 years as a police officer, it was ill-advised for him to seek to represent himself in the legal arena with which he had virtually no expertise. Despite Lamberth telling Hostetter he had "never seen a pro se defendant actually succeed" and that he would be better defended by an attorney than by himself, Hostetter intimated to Lamberth that he believed the Justice Department and the courts are corrupt, and that he wanted the opportunity to illustrate that through his trial, and did not want to be hampered by an attorney who is likewise corrupted by the system. In the face of Hostetter insisting on being his own lawyer, which Lamberth had no choice but to accept, the case continued its progression toward trial.

In his next move, Hostetter made a sharp break with his co-defendants.

Asserting he was the target of a "classic FBI counterintelligence program operation" and that he had come to believe that at least some of those among Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele and perhaps all were government informants, Hostetter sought to have the charges against him dismissed. Referencing "secret societies," including Freemasons and the Skull and Bones fraternity at Yale University and religious "cults" such as Scientologists and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and referencing Satanic iconography pervading American culture in which he cited symbolism on the American one dollar bill and in cultural landmarks such as the movie The Wizard of Oz, Hostetter in a motion to the court said he was targeted by the government and its Justice Department and the FBI for taking a stand in opposition to "Covid-19 lockdowns and stay-at-home orders" instituted by dark and sinister forces during the coronavirus pandemic. Hostetter stated he believed that his allies in the fight against government-imposed COVID-19 precautions – Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison, Mele and Smith – were being directed by the government to insinuate themselves into his orbit in order to entrap him. "The government attempted to concoct, direct and supervise the enterprise from start to finish," according to Hostetter's motion. Despite what he said was "their incessant efforts to direct defendant into criminal activity," Hostetter said, he did not take the bait and had "never engaged in criminal activity." Prime candidates for those who were serving as government informants, Hostetter claimed, were Taylor, his ally in the formation of the American Phoenix Project, and Smith. Judge Lamberth denied Hostetter's motion. Hostetter initially declared his intention of insisting on a speedy trial, but the deadline for the government putting on its case against him was tolled when he himself made motions which suspended the trial date countdown.

Hostetter, having accused his co-defendants, who had once been among his closest of associates, of being government agents who were conspiring against him, soon realized that his continuing presence in Orange County, among others who had likewise been intimately associated with him in his crusade against California's liberal political establishment, was no longer tenable. Hostetter departed San Clemente for Poolville, Texas.

On February 6 2023, Hostetter entered a waiver of jury trial, consenting to have Judge Lamberth hear all of the charges against him and Judge Lamberth on May 1, 2023 assented to that arrangement. In the lead up to the trial, Hostetter sought to convince Lamberth that the federal government had engaged in an elaborate effort to entrap him and that despite nearly a year of resisting COVID-19 restrictions and his efforts to resist the certification of Joseph Biden's victory in the 2020 election, "three fundamental pillars" undergirded his defense: that the 2020 election was stolen from President Donald J. Trump; that the challenge to the November 2020 vote was taking place independent of him and that the assault outside and inside the Capitol that took place on January 6 was a "false flag operation" staged by "federal law enforcement and intelligence agencies." Hostetter's defense in much of its aspect dwelt upon the government's use of these so-called false flag operatives or "plants," that is, individuals who were masquerading or pretending to be something they were not and inveigled or entrapped innocent individuals into engaging in illegal activity they would otherwise not have taken part in. Prior to trial, Hostetter had sought to convince Judge Lamberth that Stewart Rhodes, the leader of the Oath Keepers, had been secretly acting as a government informant, compromising those who were seeking to prevent Joseph Biden's theft of the 2020 election to the Democrats. To prevent those who were being informed upon from realizing they were being betrayed by Rhodes, Hostetter said, the government had filed sedition charges against him in order to disguise the fact that Rhodes had been working with the government. Ahead of trial, Hostetter told Judge Lamberth that he has come to believe that Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele were similarly working in league with the government and that the criminal charges filed against them were camouflaging that reality. In actuality, Hostetter maintained, Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele, along with Smith and other members of the Three Percent militia movement and even Proud Boys leader Henry "Enrique" Tarrío tried to infiltrate the American Phoenix Project on behalf of the government as a "special project" because he had "shown some leadership ability."

Judge Lamberth dismissed those assertions as groundless. "You don't have any facts to support your allegations," he said.

On July 7, 2023, Hostetter's trial began on the four charges contained in a superseding indictment against him: conspiring to obstruct an official proceeding; obstruction of an official proceeding and aiding and abetting; entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds with a deadly or dangerous weapon; and disorderly or disruptive conduct in a restricted building or grounds with a deadly or dangerous weapon. In his opening statement, Hostetter sought to argue that the government had invited chaos on January 6 by lax security around the Capitol to create a crisis so that a rush to certify Joseph Biden as president would take place. "Our country has been overthrown," Hostetter said on the first day of trial, emphasizing his continuing belief that Donald Trump was the real winner of the 2020 election. "This whole thing is corrupt." With the Capitol lightly guarded in the face of massive protests, he indicated, security was soon overwhelmed, at which point the nation's lawmakers had a pretext to certify the election. At issue in the trial was the implication of the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination, Hostetter's role as his own attorney in which he skirted Fifth Amendment issues and the interplay between the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination and the Sixth Amendment Right to examine all witnesses against a defendant. Given that Hostetter ultimately claimed that his one-time co-defendants Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele were actually government agents who were working to entrap him, Judge Lamberth severed his case from that of Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele, who likewise stood accused of conspiring to disrupt the certification of the election on January 6. Because they had Fifth Amendment rights not to incriminate themselves, their testimony against Hostetter could not be compelled and his right to cross examine anyone who would testify against him would have required that they be subject to such cross examination if their testimony had been used. Prior to Hostetter's trial beginning, Taylor had entered a guilty plea, which carried with it an agreement to cooperate in the prosecution of Hostetter. Thus, Taylor was not in a position to assert his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination and was called by the prosecution. Hostetter, somewhat unskillfully, sought to use the prosecution's use of Taylor's testimony against him to reinforce his assertion that he was being set up by the government. At one point, Hostetter told Lamberth, "My opinion is that the entire thing was staged." When Hostetter had the opportunity to cross examine his one-time ally in the fight against governmental oppression, he asked Taylor if he was surprised the Capitol wasn't secured better than it was. Taylor said he was. Nevertheless, the action Hostetter and Taylor engaged in on the Capitol grounds toward the Upper West Terrace was damning. Prosecutors produced for Judge Lamberth a video of Hostetter on the terrace stating, "The people have taken back their house. Hundreds of thousands of patriots showed up today to take back their government!" as well as a picture of himself and Taylor he posted to an Instagram account that said, "This was the shot heard round the world!...the 2021 version of 1776. That war lasted 8 years. We are just getting started." Lamberth, a Ronald Reagan appointee with a pro-law enforcement bent, was favorably disposed toward Hostetter on at least two accounts – the defendant's military and law enforcement background and willingness to place himself entirely in the judge's hands by accepting a bench trial in which he trusted Lamberth to serve as the jury. Lamberth accepted that Hostetter was absolutely convinced that the election had been stolen from President Trump in the course of the 2020 election. And the judge had no problem with the ideological precepts that

Fontana Now The Next San Bernardino County City To Ask Its Residents For Additional Sales Tax

Fontana is the latest of San Bernardino County's cities to propose a sales tax increase within its city limits.

On July 9, the city council will discuss and vote upon a proposed resolution to place on the November ballot a measure to impose an additional 1 percent sales tax on all retail transactions to take place in the city, with the exception of those for non-prepared food and medicine. The tax would be applicable to all other items sold, including food sold in restaurants.

There is an issue extending to food which is to be sold by vendors in the city. While the tax would technically apply to such sales, the city does not have a ready mechanism to enforce the collection of the tax. Sales tax imposed by the State of California and the County of San Bernardino already, applies to sidewalk and street vendors in Fontana, but virtually none of them collect it.

In the March primary election, voters in Chino approved imposing a one-cent per dollar sales tax in that city. On June 24, the Yucaipa City Council voted to place an initiative on the November 2024 ballot asking that city's residents to approve a one cent per dollar sales tax override. Yucaipa's voters in 2020 rejected a half-cent sales tax proposal.

In 2022, Ontario's voters approved a one-cent-per dollar sales tax increase. The same year, voters in Upland rejected a half-cent sales tax increase.

Other San Bernardino County cities with additional sales tax tacked on to what the state and the county charges are Barstow, Colton, Montclair, Redlands, San Bernardino, Victorville, and Yucca Valley.

The tax will not be devoted to funding any activity in particular. It is a peculiarity of California law that tax initiatives approved by voters which devote the money collected to a specific purpose must be passed by a two-thirds majority. Under California law, initiatives that call for the levying of a tax to produce revenue for which no use is specified need to gain a simple majority approval to pass. The proposal to be considered at the Fontana City Council's July 9 meeting calls for a "transactions and use tax for general purposes," which would go into effect if approved by a majority vote of the city electorate.

Having Burned Their Bridges With The State's Ruling Democrats, County's GOP Political Leadership Has Little Leverage To Obtain Assistance With Insurance Denial Issue from front page

regulations governing the prior approval process for insurance rate change applications, and to adopt emergency regulations.

Supervisor Dawn Rowe, who said she has become increasingly concerned about county residents' dwindling insurance options, introduced the resolution, which asks the state government, meaning Governor Gavin Newsom California Insurance Commissioner Ricardo Lara, and the state Legislature to declare a state of emergency and take all necessary steps to strengthen and stabilize the insurance industry in underwriting policies for homeowners and commercial establishments.

The lack of affordable insurance in high risk areas, which are expanding, has great potential to harm the economy, officials fear.

Exacerbating the circumstance is that both mountain and desert areas, of which San Bernardino County has a substantial selection, have in recent years experienced increasing wildfire disaster events. In 2023, San Bernardino County's mountain communities were hit with a blizzard that did not abate for more than 17 days. Those disaster conditions have complicated the situation and made it far more difficult and expensive for homeowners and business operators to secure insurance. In many cases the expense of insurance is beyond the economic means of some homeowners, which has prevented, in certain circumstances, would-be buyers from completing real estate transactions.

Amid these struggles, county officials sought to take action. That action is intended, if the state will go along, to alleviate the struggles and burden on those who live in high-risk fire areas.

While there is doubtless some degree of legitimacy to the request being made, San Bernardino residents may not be the ideal supplicants and the San Bernardino Board of Supervisors might not fit the bill as the most effective advocates for the relief being sought, given to whom they are making the plea.

San Bernardino County, which against all odds and despite having substantially more Democrat voters than Republican voters, is one of the last bastions of Republicanism in California. Even though there are more Democrats in San Bernardino County than Republicans, San Bernardino County's Republicans turn out to vote in far greater numbers than do their Democrat counterparts. Four of the county's five supervisors are Republicans. In 17 of the county's 24 municipalities, there are more Republicans on the city and town councils than there are Democrats. Put simply, Republican-dominated San Bernardino County is on the outs with Democrat-dominated Sacramento.

San Bernardino County is one of the few counties in the state in which Lara lost in the 2022 election for insurance commissioner. Of the 446,660 total votes cast in that contest in San Bernardino County, Lara captured 217,865 or 48.78 percent. In the 2022 contest, he was outdistanced by the Republican, Robert Howell, who polled 228,795 votes or 51.22 percent. In 2018, he fared even less well against Steve Poizner, who was the last Republican to hold the California Insurance Commissioner post from 2007 until 2011. Poizner was an unsuccessful candidate for governor in 2010, when he failed to capture the Republican nomination, losing to Meg Whitman. Before that, he was unsuccessful in his bid to be elected to the California Assembly as Republican, losing to Democrat Ira Ruskin. In 2018, despite Lara proving victorious in the race for insurance commissioner, he lost in San Bernardino County to Poizner, who had changed his registration to no party affiliation. Of the 513,350 votes cast for insurance commissioner in San Bernardino County that year, Lara received 247,678 or 47.08 percent to Poizner's 271,572 or 52.92 percent.

Another political consideration militating against the board of supervisors' effort is the consideration that the majority of residents in San Bernardino County's desert and mountain communities are solidly Republican. Among all of San Bernardino County's 1,117,683 voters, 472,831 or 40.1 percent are registered as Democrats, while 354,588 or 30.1 percent are registered Republicans. The remaining 29.8 percent are either unaffiliated with any political party or are members of the American Independent, Green, Libertarian, Peace & Freedom or other more obscure parties. In San Bernardino County's First District, however, which is comprised almost entirely of wide desert expanses, 79,812 or 35.1 percent of the district's 227,405 total voters are Republicans while 78,036 are Democrats. In San Bernardino County's Third District, which accounts for more than 90 percent of the county's mountain communities as well as over a quarter of the county's desert area, 89,912 or 37.3 percent of the district's 240,857 total voters are Republicans, not quite fully offset by 80,695 Democrats or 33.5 percent. The largest number of Democrats in the Third District are in the district's urban valley areas, whereas in the mountain and desert communities, Republicans outnumber Democrats by a ratio of about 11 to 6.5.

Moreover, Lara, who is himself highly partisan in favor of Democrats, has no use for Rowe, whom he perceives as a Republican party hack. This perception on Lara's part came about because Rowe, early in her tenure as supervisor, hired two GOP dirty tricksters, Matt Knox and Dillon Lesovsky, respectively, as her chief of staff and policy advisor. While working in those official roles, they engaged in preparing campaign materials on behalf of selected Republican candidates and causes that Rowe was in favor of while simultaneously preparing political "hit pieces" attacking candidates she opposed.

Accordingly, Lara is not particularly favorably disposed toward assisting a population that is predominantly Republican and which has consistently voted in opposition to his serving as insurance commissioner.

Governor Gavin Newsom is similarly negatively disposed toward San Bernardino County.

While he managed a victory in San Bernardino County in the 2018 gubernatorial election against John Cox by capturing 276,874 or 51.54 percent of the 537,253 votes for governor cast in the county and in the 2021 recall election prevailed, barely with 288,877 votes

In his 2022 run for reelection, he lost in San Bernardino County with 215,391 or 47.39 percent of the 454,500 votes cast to Brian Dahle's 239,109 votes or 52.51 percent.

To add insult to injury, that same year the four Republican members of the board of supervisors agreed to put a measure on the November ballot asking San Bernardino County residents whether they wanted to secede from California and form their own state. That measure passed with 212,615 or 50.62 percent of the county's 420,054 voters in favor of leaving the Golden State and 207,438 or 49.38 percent opposed. The willingness of the governor, the insurance commissioner and the California Senate and Assembly, are to assist the residents who intend to obviate their governmental authority over them is subject to some doubt.

With Federal Prosecutors Pressing Their Case That He Had Engaged In Insurrection By Attending And Serving As A Ringleader Of The Stop The Steal Rally, Hostetter Turned On Those Who Accompanied Him To Washington, D.C. And Were Being Prosecuted Along With Him, Asserting They Were In With The Democrats & Justice Department In Seeking To Inveigle Him Into Violence So He Could Be Arrested, Convicted & Discredited As One Of The Leaders Of The Country's True Patriots

Hostetter had adopted. It was the former police chief's advocacy of action and violent action in particular that proved problematic. Judge Lamberth found Hostetter's belated disavowals of those advocacies, which unfortunately for him had been memorialized in multiple cases on video, unconvincing. Taylor, led through his testimony by the prosecution, acknowledged coming onto the Capitol grounds carrying a hatchet as well as a knife and a stun baton in the company of Hostetter, who, he testified was in possession of a hatchet at that point. He and Hostetter, Taylor testified from the witness stand, were involved in what he now freely admitted was a conspiracy to prevent Congress from certifying the election. Hostetter, with the skill of a jailhouse lawyer at best, sought to convince Judge Lamberth that his former associate in the American Phoenix Project was actually a participant in the federal government's conspiracy to railroad him because he was an effective dissident fighting COVID-19 mask mandates, lockdowns and the Democrats' efforts to commander the White House, the Congress and the other machinery of government.

Hostetter, contradicting Taylor, maintained that he did not have possession of the hatchet, which had been referenced during the Telegram communications while Hostetter, Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele made during their preparations to attend the protests relating to the election certification, because it had been stolen from his vehicle. The U.S. Attorney's Office maintained that the hatchet was in Hostetter's possession when he was among the mob that broke the police lines on the Capitol grounds. In attempting to bolster its case against Hostetter, the U.S. Attorney's Office presented the testimony of police officers who witnessed the violence at the Capitol firsthand, video of the protest and chaos, including Hostetter's statements, and testimony of FBI agents indicating Hostetter had conspired with Taylor, Warner, Martinez, Kinnison and Mele to attend the Stop the Steal rally and interrupt the certification of the election. Hostetter unequivocally joined other rioters on the lower West Terrace of the Capitol who were pushing through a line of law enforcement officers trying to hold them back, officers testified. Hostetter and Taylor then pushed through the law enforcement line and moved through restricted areas of the Capitol grounds, the officers testified. There was a presentation of Hostetter's effort at an incitation to violence with the playing of a video he made after the 2020 election in which he said, "traitors need to be executed." The prosecution also emphasized that he promoted January 6, 2021 as a day upon which "patriots" were to make a last stand. In one video which he made in November 2020, Hostetter was heard uttering "Some people, at the highest levels, need to be made an example of:

an execution or two or three. Tyrants and traitors need to be executed as an example so nobody pulls this shit again."

Hostetter did attempt with several witnesses, including Capitol police officers, to determine why there was not higher or more substantial fencing around the Capitol or more officer on duty there on January 6. That the Capitol Police had or had not undertaken more intensive precautions than what Hostetter asserted they had before the mayhem of January 6 manifested did not serve to convince Judge Lamberth that Hostetter's action was mitigated in any meaningful way.

In his closing argument, Assistant U.S. Attorney Anthony Mariano, who was prosecuting Hostetter, said "There is no 'the police didn't stop me in time' defense. If Alan Hostetter wants to know what could have been done to prevent January 6, he could start by looking in the mirror."

Judge Lamberth found Hostetter's assertions and the puerile evidence he sought to marshal to back them up unconvincing.

"Citizens can make up their minds on politics or other bases," Judge Lamberth said. He rejected Hostetter's contention that the action for which he was being prosecuted had come about because he had been entrapped by governmental agents who had lured him to join the faux revolution he led. Hostetter, the judge said, had marshaled no convincing evidence for his claim that the riot was "staged. Courts have got to have evidence." Hostetter, who throughout 2020 represented himself to the world as one of the most outspoken and dynamic firebrands in the new American patriotic movement, protesting governmental COVID precautions and disputing the 2020 election outcome, had not, the judge said, "presented any evidence that could make out an entrapment defense on the theory that the January 6 riot was a staged event."

Judge Lamberth, while saying Hostetter, "has a right to believe whatever he likes about the 2020 presidential election and to voice those opinions," said the former police chief did not have license to prevent the government from functioning. "The First Amendment does not give anyone a right to obstruct or impede Congress by making it impossible for them to do their jobs safely, and it certainly does not give anyone a right to enter a restricted area while carrying a dangerous weapon." In his findings, Judge Lamberth stated he did not believe Hostetter's claim that the hatchet had been stolen out of his vehicle and he didn't have it in his backpack on January 6, 2021.

Upon consideration of all of the evidence and testimony, Judge Lamberth on July 13 found Hostetter guilty of all four counts against him.

Judge Lamberth declined prosecutors request that Hostetter be jailed immediately, scheduling a sentencing hearing for October 2023 that was delayed until December because the cases against all of Hostetter's remaining co-defendants had not resolved themselves.

Ultimately, in sentencing Hostetter in December 2023, what Judge Lamberth had told Hostetter in 2021 about how he would fare far better if he had been represented by an attorney was proven out. Lamberth sentenced Hostetter to 11 years and three months in federal prison to be followed by 36 months of supervised release. By comparison, all of his co-defendants were dealt with far more leniently. In fact, the five were given less time in prison combined than Hostetter was sentenced to serve. Taylor was given six months of home detention, three years of probation and an order to perform 100 hours of community service. Warner was sentenced to 27 months in prison. Martinez was sentenced to 21 months in prison. Kinnison was sentenced to 33 months in prison. Mele was sentenced to 33 months in prison.

Whether, at this point, Judge Nichols ruling in favor of Fischer, Lang and Garret can be brought to bear to lessen the time Hostetter will be spending incarcerated is an open question. He is imprisoned at the federal detention center in Oakdale, Louisiana, cut off, pretty much from the rest of the world and whatever support network he once enjoyed.

Among those who had been in his corner were his associates throughout his career in law enforcement, as well as though who were on the front lines with him in the battle he was waging against COVID restrictions, the 2020 Trump reelection effort and the Stop the Steal campaign that followed Trump's defeat by Biden. Many of those involved in the legal debacle that followed the Stop the Steal effort are in no position to offer him any assistance and the other who are not in jail may yet fear, while Joseph Biden remains president, that assisting Hostetter might not be in their own best interest.

Moreover, Hostetter's legal strategy of maligning those who had been allied with him in that fight as government informants may have left other disinclined to ride to his rescue at this point. Those allies he had in the Trump re-electoral campaign in 2020 are now too caught up in what is Trump's third race for the presidency in 2024. That leaves Hostetter's erstwhile law enforcement profession colleagues. Some remain supportive, in their way, and sympathetic. Yet all remain cautious.

Robert Ramsey, whose progression up the chain of command in the Fontana Police Department paralleled that of Hostetter before Hostetter departed for Yorba Linda and Ramsey continued on to become Fontana police chief, was one of Hostetter's closest friends. The lived nearby to one another in one of the more upscale sections of Orange County after their respective retirements. Ramsey had supported Hostetter and even took part in the initial protests Hostetter mounted against Governor Newsom, the State of California and local officials in their effort to limit the spread of the coronavirus during the COVID pandemic. But Ramsey, through his close perspective on the way in which Hostetter was conducting himself, saw the manner in which Hostetter had crossed the line into someone who, having once been part of the authoritative establishment himself, had now thrown himself wholeheartedly into contesting, challenging and defying that authority. When Hostetter upped the ante into acts of provocation, he parted company with his former fellow police officer.

So too was it with the other police officers at the Fontana Police Department with whom Hostetter was on close terms for decades. Even to the extent that some or even most shared with him the attitude that the Democrats who control Sacramento by virtue of holding every state government office from governor to lieutenant governor to attorney general to state treasurer to controller to insurance commissioner to superintendent of education to secretary of state and have supermajorities in both houses of the state legislature and who hold a less clearly cut advantage in Washington, D.C. are far too liberal in their politics and permissive in their organization of government, they were acutely aware that by linking themselves to Hostetter they would risk having to trade their reputations as respected upholders of the law for that of being outlaws.

Another law enforcement professional whose career in the same region of Southern California paralleled Hostetter's was Steve Adams. Adams had risen through the ranks, during roughly the same timeframe,

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: MARGARET MARY DOYLE
CASE NO. PROV2400274
 To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both of MARGARET MARY DOYLE: a petition for probate has been filed by LINDY ANN CARRILLO in the Superior Court of California, County of SAN BERNARDINO.
 THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that LINDY ANN CARRILLO be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
 THE PETITION requests full authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
 A hearing on the petition will be held July 30, 2024 at 9:00 a.m. at San Bernardino County Superior Court Victorville District Department V-12 - Victorville
 14455 Civic Drive
 Victorville, CA 92392
 Filed: JUNE 25, 2024
 Branden Arenas, Deputy Court Clerk.
 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
 IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under Section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
 Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
 YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE TO NICOLE HANDRINOS aka NICHOLE HOMME; WILLIAM HANDRINOS; and DOES, 1 through 50, inclusive YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF: (LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE): SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDISON COMPANY NOTICE! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below. You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons is served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court. There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case.
¡AVISO! Lo han demandado. Si no responde dentro de 30 días, la corte puede decidir en su contra sin escuchar su versión. Lea la información a continuación. Ruling That One Of The Codes Hostetter Was Charged Under Applies Only To Evidence Tampering Could Reduce His Sentence By A Fourth from page 9 as Hostetter, not in Fontana but in Upland. Ultimately, in 2005, Adams had acceded to the position of Upland police chief. Their paths had crossed repeatedly, and they became friends. Before Hostetter's sentencing in December, Adams had written a character reference letter to Judge Lamberth, imploring the judge to consider the wealth of positive contributions to society Hostetter had made as a serviceman, a line patrolmen, higher ranking police officer and ultimately as the assistant chief of police in Fontana and the chief of police in Yorba Linda. The good things that Hostetter had achieved in his role as a public servant over the course of 23 years should be held as factors in mitigation of the acts of well-meaning but misdirected desperation he had engaged in on January 6, 2021 and the days and weeks leading up to it, Adams sought to impart to the judge. Stating that "Alan is and always has been a protector," Adams wrote, "I believe incarceration is not what Alan needs. Putting him in jail does not make society safer. He needs some mental type help." Hostetter resents Adams' characterization of him and rejects in its entirety any suggestion that he is not in absolute control over his faculties. Indeed, he insists, he senses the reality of the world more clearly than do others. He yet perceives Donald Trump as "The greatest president this country ever had," one whose service to the United States and the cause of liberty strips that of all others that have ever held the office, including Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, James Polk, James Madison, James Monroe, Dwight Eisenhower, George Washington and John Kennedy. For him, the true criminals of today are the traitors who in 2020 cheated Donald Trump out of the second term he deserved and rightfully won at polls who have been abetted by the corrupt and sinister FBI and Justice Department and their henchmen such as Judge Lamberth and the other members of the U.S. Judiciary who officiated over a set of processes that punished the true patriots such as himself who stepped up and tried to prevent the ongoing destruction of the country. With Hostetter isolated at the Oakdale Federal Detention Center, it is unknown whether he or any legal representative on his behalf is looking at the implication of the Supreme Court's upholding of Judge Nichols' ruling. The obstruction charge to which Nichols' ruling was one of the four charges Hostetter was convicted on. Of moment is the seriousness of the obstruction charge, or its relative seriousness vis-à-vis the three other charges. Among a significant number of the more than 1,500 other defendants charged and now convicted for their action on January 6, roughly 350 of those were charged with obstruction. In more than 300 of those cases, obstruction was the most serious charge they faced, such that the tossing of the obstruction charge against them would conceivably considerably reduce the time they have yet to serve or, in some cases, result in their immediate release, given the amount of time they have already served. In Hostetter's case, all four of the charges he was hit with are considered serious. The conspiring to obstruct an official proceeding is arguably on a par with the obstruction of an official proceeding and aiding and abetting. And while simple entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds and disorderly or disruptive conduct in a restricted building or grounds do rank lower on the seriousness scale than obstructing an official proceeding, it is of note that those two charges were enhanced by the consideration that Hostetter had a deadly or dangerous weapon in his possession when he did so. Assuming first that Hostetter or someone on his behalf, perhaps in this case an actual attorney, will file with the court a motion to dismiss, after conviction, the obstruction count against him and assuming second that the obstruction count represents one-fourth of the 11 year and three month sentence Hostetter received, he could, conceivably, see his sentence reduced to 8.4375 years or 8 years, five months and ten days.

bedroom of the residence. The child was insistent that he was not going to leave without his dog.

Torres forced open the bedroom window and helped the dog through the window. Knowing the dog was safe, the child was willing and Torres helped the child out of the window and was able to get both the child and his dog to safety.

The child was transported to a nearby hospital for fire related treatment.

“Larry’s decision to enter the burning residence without due regard for his own safety is the reason the child will have many more years to spend with his best furry friend,” according to the department.

On the afternoon of Monday, January 16, 2023, Deputies Larry Torres, Jacob Delano, and Kevin Konior were on patrol at the Victor Valley Station and responded to a fire in an apartment complex. Delano was the first to arrive and noticed one of the apartments was fully engulfed. Kevin arrived on scene seconds after Delano and they both entered the burning complex to start evacuations.

Delano and Konior located a resident who was bedridden and could not evacuate on her own. They entered her smoke-filled apartment and carried her to the courtyard where they were met by Torres. With Torres’ assistance they were able to carry her out of the complex to safety.

The three deputies went back into the burning complex and evacuated 12 more residents to safety.

One of the residents had to be transported to a nearby hospital for fire related treatment.

“If it wasn’t for the selfless act of the three deputies and a disregard for their own safety, the apartment fire could have resulted in the tragic loss of several lives,” according to the department.

On Saturday, July 16, 2022, Deputy Marcus Mason from the Rancho Cucamonga Station responded to a suspicious person call. Mason arrived in the area and located the suspect, seated in a vehicle. Mason found the suspect was on active parole and had the suspect exit the vehicle to comply with his conditions of parole.

As Mason began to search the suspect for weapons, the suspect pulled a handgun from his waistband and Mason and the suspect began to fight for control of the firearm. As the two struggled, the suspect shot the firearm several times, striking Mason in the chest and waist for times. As Mason was critically wounded, he was able to radio pertinent information to dispatch and his partners.

Deputies Casey Allen, Eric Rebollar and David Johnson were working a traffic enforcement detail nearby and immediately responded to Mason. Working together, the deputies utilized their shooting trauma kits and began to give life saving medical treatment to Mason while reassuring him that he would be okay, and they were going to take care of him. hospital.

Simultaneously, Rancho Cucamonga Fire District Battalion Chief Chad Comeau and the Ontario Police Department’s helicopter crew, consisting of Pilot/Officer Derrick Alatorre and Flight Observer/Officer Michael Ayala were monitoring the patrol channel and heard Mason’s radio transmission that he was shot.

Comeau immediately dispatched his station’s medic engine crew and gave them the direction to enter the scene instead of waiting for the assistance call which accelerated their response time. Comeau’s quick actions saved valuable time and enabled Firefighter/Paramedic Alex Wherry to reach Mason and assume life saving measures within minutes.

Officers Alatorre and Ayala were on aerial patrol and not set up for medical transport, but they knew they were the closest helicopter. They landed at Chaffey College and immediately began taking out their back seats and prepared their helicopter for the medical transport.

Meanwhile, Allen, Rebollar, and Johnson loaded Mason into the backseat of their patrol car and transported him to the college while Wherry continued to provide medical treatment. Once at the college, the helicopter was already prepared for the transport. The deputies helped load Marcus into the helicopter and Wherry continued the in-flight medical care until they reached the Pomona Valley Hospital.

Trauma Surgeon Onaona Gurney and a team of trauma personnel were waiting for Mason to arrive and rushed him into surgery. Mason underwent several hours of complicated surgery to assess and repair multiple internal injuries. Dr.

Gurney’s experience and determination were key to successfully repairing the extensive damage Marcus sustained from the gunshots.

From the time Mason advised he was shot Communications Dispatcher Heather Lassiter was a constant voice on the other side of radio assuring Mason he would be okay. She focused her attention on coordinating the efforts to ensure he received the urgent response needed to save his life. Lassiter remained calm and collected during one of the most difficult situations for a dispatcher to experience. Her experience displayed confidence as she controlled the communications amongst multiple personnel and agencies responding to Mason’s aid. Lassiter continued to organize the rapid response of additional personnel who began the dauntless search for the suspect.

The suspect was apprehended a short time later.

“The actions of the aforementioned resulted in a collective and rapid response that led to saving Marcus’ life,” according to the sheriff’s department. “From the first deputies to arrive on scene who began rendering critical aid, to the firefighters who risked their own safety by entering an active scene to provide patient care, to the helicopter crew that was determined to make the urgent needed transport to the surgeon who expertly performed life-saving surgery and the dispatcher who led the way with calmness and clarity, all of this greatly contributed to what continues to be a successful outcome for Marcus, his family, his friends, his co-workers and all who know him.”

Sheriff Shannon Dicus said, “I couldn’t be more proud of the heroes we honored from our department and the community. Putting yourself in harms way to save another is what make these heroes exceptional.”

According to the department, “Each recipient made a significant impact on our community.”

According to information available to the Sentinel, four of the council members have violated California’s open meeting law, the Brown Act, and have given each other indication they will approve the measure for the ballot through a series of serial meetings and conversations with one another about the tax proposal. They have already committed to making the pitch for the tax in the language of the measure, which is to reference maintaining the city’s 9-1-1 response, supporting the fire department’s and police department’s operations, reducing crime, continued upkeep of parks, redressing homelessness in the city, repairing streets and preserving water quality.

If the measure passes, city officials say it will generate roughly $46 million per year in revenue to the city.
