

Prostitution Near County & SB City Government Headquarters Targeted

On Wednesday, April 29, the San Bernardino Police Department carried out what many considered to be a long-overdue operation to interrupt and definitively shutter vice activity at the spot which serves as the world's primary window on not just the county seat but San Bernardino County as a whole.

Exit 44a off of the I-215 Freeway brings travelers to the very heart of San Bernardino, which is encapsulated in the California Department of Transportation sign heralding "5th Street" and "Civic Center," along with the symbol for Route 66. That attracts those who have come from other areas of the United States who might want to see the storied and historic local for its own sake and reputation. The In-N-Out Burger, Starbucks, Sonic Drive-In, Del Taco, Panda Express and 7-Eleven that are all prominently visible along the first two blocks on the east side of the freeway also serve as an inducement for travelers to exit there.

Very close by, less than a full city block north of 5th Street and south of 6th Street, at the northwest corner of H Street and the minor arterial Spruce Street West is the Sunshine Hotel at 570 North H Street.

The Sunshine Hotel, like the Golden Star

Inn, located roughly an eighth of a mile west at 658 5th Street, is a motel that has been upgraded by the hospitality venue booking industry as a variously-rated two-star or three-star "hotel," but which more than a generation ago had become a contact point between those in the illicit street drug-selling trade and a venue for prostitution as much as a place for travelers to spend the night. The presence of the Sunshine Hotel and the Golden Star Inn at the gateway to San Bernardino, both between four and seven blocks away from San Bernardino City Hall, the Guatemalan and Mexican consulates and six and eight blocks from the campus for the San Bernardino County's government center/administrative headquarters and both of San Bernardino County's historic and primary courthouses, See P 3

Fontana Solons Pass The Cost Of Past Graft On To Future Southridge Homeowners

By Mark Gutglueck

Bribes and kickbacks vectored to Fontana's former city manager nearly two generations ago will continue to haunt the city's residents well into the future, including hundreds or even thousands who have yet to move into the community.

The Fontana City Council on March 10 unanimously adopted a resolution to establish a Mello Roos community facilities district within the long-existent Southridge community in the city's southwest quadrant. That action was the followed with confirming action by the entirety of the council at its April 14, 2026 and April 28, 2026 meetings. The council's action, in creating the municipal subdivision labeled it City of Fontana Community Facilities District No. 117 (Southridge), and authorized it to levy a "special tax" within the boundaries of the community facilities district for the purpose of financing certain public facilities and services.

Community services districts, particularly those created under the auspices of the Mello Roos Act and the Marx Roos Act, are areas within a larger city or county subject to "special taxes" in addition to property tax that is normally borne by property and/or homeowners in those jurisdictions. The tax districts established by cities, counties, school districts, or other local agencies to fund public infrastructure and services such See P 3

Homeless Numbers Dip Second Straight Year Amid Questions Over Tallying Accuracy

A multitude of factors both benign and pernicious resulted in the government's official survey of the total number of homeless throughout San Bernardino County this year reflecting a decline for the second straight year.

There are grounds, based on the methodology, circumstance, secrecy and politics surrounding the tallying to question the accuracy of both the basic and comparative numbers arrived at. Nevertheless, the San Bernardino County 2026 Point-in-Time Count conducted this year on January 22 stands as the most comprehensive and meaningful effort to obtain an understanding of the extent of a primary social problem plaguing not only local communities but the region, state and nation.

Though the 21,105 square mile county saw an overall reduction of more than tree percent in the number of visible homeless this year over last, the primary attrition took place place, essentially, in the county's East, Central and West Valleys, while some of the High Desert communities north of Cajon Pass experienced increases in their homeless populations.

The homeless count and subpopulation survey has been commissioned, i.e., mandated, by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, referred to by it acronym HUD, since 2003, requesting that local homeless continuum of care systems carry out the counts of homeless individuals and families during the last 10 days of January or first ten days of February in order to receive Housing and Urban Development grant funds.

Annual Point-In-Time Count provides a snapshot of the county's homeless population, which enables officials to track progress toward reducing homelessness and ensure resources are being directed to See P 2

Sheriff's Gang & SMASH Detail Intensify Operation Consequences To Arrest 76 And Recover 76 Firearms

Between April 13 and 19, investigators with the sheriff's gangs/narcotics division led targeted crime suppression efforts as part of Operation Consequences.

The gang suppression unit, together with combined forces with the San Bernardino County Probation, the California Highway Patrol, Homeland Security Investigations and the San Bernardino Police Department to obtained search warrants that were ultimately served on April 17.

Additional support came from the Rialto, Ontario, Montclair, Colton and Barstow police departments, as well as the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation's Division of Adult Parole Operations and the Federal Bureau of Investigation

Hou Kidnapping Investigation Goes National & International

Both Interpol and the FBI have joined the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department's investigation into the disappearance of Naiping Hou, the father of cryptocurrency mogul Wen Hou, the Sentinel has learned.

Suspects in Naiping Hou's 2025 disappearance include personages inside and outside of both California and the country, including foreigners who may have come into California under false pretenses and identities in December 2024 and initiated contact with the then-74-year-old in Rancho Cucamonga in what was apparently a successful effort to gain his trust before See P 3

Ofland Abandons Rustic Resort Project Approved Last Year In Twentynine Palms

Ofland Hotels has given up on its plan, for which it was given an entitlement last July by the Twentynine Palms City, to construct what it had described as a luxury eco-resort near the entrance to Joshua Tree National Park.

Ofland, which is headed by Charles Tate and Luke Searcy and at that time was based in Houston Texas, on July 22, 2025 obtained the city council's approval to build 100 guest cabins and 25 units of employee housing along with two lodges, a swimming pool and spas, recreational areas, playgrounds, restaurants and a bar on 42 acres at the center of a 152-acre site within the Indian Cove District on the north side of Twentynine, just off Highway 62.

The council's action was taken in the context of city staff's support of the proposal as well as a non-binding recommendation by the 29 Palms Planning Commission the previous month that the city council give the project go-ahead. At both the planning commission and city council hearings for the undertaking, there were significantly more residents voicing opposition to Ofland's plan, which required a zone change from residential to tourist commercial, a general plan amendment and a conditional use permit to be allowed to proceed, than there were residents speaking in favor of it.

The project would have entailed a hundred cabins, two lodges, swimming pools, a stargazing area and an outdoor movie screen, and an on-site wastewater treatment plant capable of processing more than 13,000 gallons of effluent a day.

Notefully, the city council in making its decision utilized a far less exacting See P 5 areas that need it most. The annual count is crucial for securing grant funding to assist individuals who are homeless or at risk of becoming homeless.

This year's effort was carried out jointly by the San Bernardino County Homeless Partnership, the San Bernardino County Office of Homeless Services, and the Institute for Urban Initiatives, augmented by staff members from 23 of the county's 24 municipalities, law enforcement agencies, nonprofit agencies, faith-based organizations, county departments and especially the San Bernardino County Innovation and Technology Department, using approximately 574 community volunteers to serve as counters. The cities and towns provided space for training and deployment. The San Bernardino County Innovation and Technology Department (ITD) developed maps used by field teams.

In addition to cataloging as homeless those families and individuals registered as homeless by virtue of having been admitted into a homeless shelter within the county, those carrying out the count defined the homeless as "an individual or family who lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence, meaning: (i) An individual or family with a primary nighttime residence that is a public or private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings."

The sheltered count included residents of emergency shelters and transitional housing programs throughout the county who slept in these facilities during the night of January 21 through the early morning of January 22, 2026.

The unsheltered count was conducted on Thursday, January 22, 2026, beginning at 6:00 a.m.

A total of 3,718 adults and children were counted as experiencing homelessness during the 2026 Point-in-Time Count and Survey. This represents a decrease of 119 persons or a negative 3.1 percent compared to the 2025 Point-in-Time Count, in which

3,837 persons were recorded. A comparison of the 2025 and 2026 counts shows, 119 fewer persons were counted in 2026; 188 fewer unsheltered persons or a negative 7.1 percent were counted in 2026 compared to 2025, and 69 or 5.7 percent more sheltered persons were counted in 2026 compared to 2025.

In Adelanto there were 49 total homeless counted, 11 more than the 38 counted in 2024. In Apple Valley there were 37 homeless counted, 19 more than the 18 counted last year. In the unincorporated county area of Arrowbear, there were no homeless, one less than the single person counted last year. In Barstow there were 196 total homeless counted, 40 more than the 96 counted last year. In the unincorporated county area of Big Bear

City/Sugarloaf there were 16 homeless, three more than the 13 counted last year. In the municipality of Big Bear Lake there were 18 total homeless counted, 14 fewer than the 32 tallied last year. In the unincorporated county area of Crestline there were 13 total homeless counted, seven more than the six counted last year. In the unincorporated county area of Devore there were no homeless counted, the same as were counted last year. In Fontana there were 470 total homeless counted, 106 more than the 364 counted there last year. In Grand Terrace there were five total homeless counted, one more than the four counted last year. In Joshua Tree there were 18 total homeless counted, four fewer than the 22 counted last year. In Lake Arrowhead there were two homeless, two more than last year. In the unincorporated community of Landers there were four homeless counted, no change from the four counted last year.

In the unincorporated community of Lenwood there was a single homeless individual, one more than last year. In Loma Linda there were fifteen total homeless counted, four fewer than the nineteen counted last year. In the unincorporated community of Lucerne Valley there were no homeless counted, two fewer than last year. In the unincorporated community of Lytle Creek there were no homeless counted, reflecting no change from the zero homeless found there last year. In the unincorporated communities of Mentone/Crafton there were no homeless, unchanged from last year. In Montclair there were 55 total homeless counted, up by 17 from the 38 there last year. In the unincorporated community of Morongo Valley there were no homeless, the same as was the case last year. In the unincorporated community of Muscoy there were 11 homeless present, representing no change from last year. In Needles there were six total homeless counted, half of the dozen that were there in 2025. In Ontario there were 298 total homeless counted, one more than the 297 counted last year. In the unincorporated communities of Phelan and Piñon Hills there were no homeless subsisting there, down by two from the two living there last year. In Rancho Cucamonga there were 101 total homeless counted, nineteen fewer than the 120 encountered there last year. In Redlands there were 134 homeless counted, a dozen fewer than the 146 counted in 2025. In Rialto there were 44 homeless within its city limits, ten fewer than the 54 homeless counted last year. In the unincorporated community of Running Springs there were four total homeless counted, matching precisely the number – four – living there last year. In the county seat, the City of San Bernardino, there were 1,172 homeless, 1,535, a reduction of 363 from the 1,535 total homeless counted in the county's largest city population-wise last year. Of note is that last year, a separate tally of the homeless living in the unincorporated area surrounding San Bernardino was not carried out. This year, that area was included in the tallying and was listed among the areas canvassed and had an entry included in the totals for the county as a separate place. The number of homeless counted in the San Bernardino Unincorporated Area this year was 55.

In the unincorporated community of Skyforest there were two homeless counted, a doubling of the single homeless person counted last year. In Twentynine Palms there were 24 homeless counted, a significant drop of 62 from the 86 homeless counted there last year. In the unincorporated community of Twin Peaks there were no homeless counted, representing no change from last year. In Upland there were 99 homeless counted, an increase of 32 over the 67 homeless in the City of Gracious Living last year. In the unincorporated community of Valley of Enchantment, where there were seven homeless counted in 2024, the number of destitute increased by four to eleven this year. In Victorville, the number of homeless in the city fell diminished by seven from the 448 counted in 2025 to 441 this year. In the unincorporated community of West Cajon Valley there were no homeless, just as last year. In the unincorporated community of Wonder Valley, there were, as was the case last year, no homeless known to be living there. In the unincorporated community of Yermo there were no homeless counted, a repeat of the circumstance last year. In Yucaipa there were five homeless counted, down by eleven from the sixteen there last year. In Yucca Valley the number of homeless there increased by four, from 42 on January 23, 2025 to 46 on January 22, 2026.

The lower numbers of homeless in the cities of San Bernardino and Yucaipa are a carryover from a trend that began in 2025 and which was aided by developments in 2024.

On June 28, 2024, the U.S. Supreme Court entered a ruling in the case of City of Grants Pass v. Johnson, which essentially erased the protections under the law that the homeless had enjoyed as a consequence of the 1962 case of Robinson v. California and the 2018 case Martin v. Boise. In Robinson v. California, the Supreme Court held that the Eighth Amendment prohibits criminalization of a status, as opposed to criminalizing criminal acts, in striking down a California law that criminalized being addicted to narcotics. By extension, this applied to being homeless, such that it made applying traditional vagrancy laws difficult, problematic or even impossible, such that someone could not be prosecuted for being homeless. In Martin v. Boise, the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit ruled that city officials in Boise, Idaho, could not enforce an anti-camping ordinance whenever its homeless population exceeds the number of available beds in its homeless shelters. Since the Supreme Court declined to hear an appeal to that case in 2019, it became binding precedent within the Ninth Circuit. With its ruling in the matter of the City of Grants Pass v. Johnson, the Supreme Court in one fell swoop undid the restrictions that had applied in the Western States as a consequence of Robinson v. California and Martin v. Boise, making a finding that the punishments of fines, temporary bans from entering public property, and one-month jail sen-

and multiple patrol stations conducted proactive patrols in the High Desert and surrounding jurisdictions.

An area of intense focus in the coordinated operations was Hesperia and surrounding communities. As a result, investigators contacted gang members and persons prohibited from possessing firearms.

Investigators made 43 felony arrests and 33 misdemeanor arrests. Nearly 12 pounds of suspected narcotics were seized, including suspected cocaine, methamphetamine and fentanyl. Investigators seized 76 firearms during the operation, which included 10 ghost guns.

In some of its action, the department relied on the 2024 passage of Proposition 36, "The Homelessness, Drug Addiction and Theft Reduction Act," which reformed multiple laws growing out of Proposition 47, which is perceived by some as increasing homelessness, drug addiction and theft. Proposition 36 includes several new Penal and Health and Safety Codes that deputies can apply during arrests, some of which involve charges that can carry enhanced sentencing, as well as prevent offenders from being cite-released before their court appearance. Proposition 36 applied to two of the arrests.

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors authorized funds for countywide crime suppression. The intent is to provide additional funding to the sheriff's department, allowing for increased law enforcement services related to quality-of-life issues in county communities.

Operation Consequences continues to focus on conducting targeted crime suppression operations and parole and probation checks in the High Desert and the sheriff's jurisdiction surrounding the City of San Bernardino. The operation will include personnel from the sheriff's gangs/narcotics division, specialized enforcement division, and patrol stations, as well as California Highway Patrol and San Bernardino County Probation, California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, and Department of Homeland Security Investigations. Operation Consequences will take place over the next several months to curb violent crime, disrupt and dismantle targeted criminal street gangs, and locate and arrest criminals who are illegally possessing, manufacturing and trafficking firearms.

abducting him and seizing control of his assets.

Investigators have reached the conclusion that there was most certainly foul play involved in the elder Hou's disappearance and that he is dead. Hou was last seen in March 2025. A month-and-a-half later, the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, which serves as the contract police department in Rancho Cucamonga, took the matter up as a missing person's case. The Sentinel has confirmed that information turned up in the course of that investigation and other developments strongly indicate Hou was kidnapped. That kidnapping, investigators have come to believe, was not undertaken for ransom, but rather to directly force Hou to turn money over to his abductors. The case has been complicated by the initial 47-day delay in the Hou family reporting to authorities what is now believed to be Hou's March 18 disappearance. Partially because the two family members closest to Hou, his wife and son, were not in California, the sheriff's department was not alerted until May 4, 2025 to what in relatively short order was determined to be a suspicious circumstance. In the interim between March 18, when Naiping Hou and his son, Wen Hou, had rented a boat at the San Pedro Pier to go fishing before the latter returned to his home in Las Vegas, and May 4, Hou's wife and son had what was described as intermittent contact with him by text message exchanges on their cell phones. Mrs. Hou had departed for China in March to visit with her family. In April, however, both Hou's wife and Wen Hou noted there was something uncharacteristic about Hou's text responses. While she was yet in China, Mrs. Hou received a text from Hou's phone, which in retrospect is now recognized as having not been sent by Naiping, telling her to cancel her flight home and that he would fly out to join her there. In early May, Wen Hou grew concerned when, in anticipation of his father's May 3 birthday, he suggested that Naiping come to Las Vegas to spend time with him and his grandchildren. When his father tersely declined the invitation, Wen Hou began to suspect that it was not his father who was texting him. He then overnighted his father a traditional Chinese gift of handmade noodles for his birthday. On May 3, Wen called his father multiple times in an attempt to speak with him directly, but his father did not answer. To Wen's text message that evening asking if he had gotten the gift, Naiping replied, without any elaboration and thanks, "Yes I receive it." On the morning of May 4, Wen Hou asked family friends to go to Rancho Cucamonga and look in on this father. The noodle package was sitting on the front porch. When those doing the welfare check did not get a response by knocking and ringing the doorbell, they let as roads, schools, parks, water systems, and fire/police stations.

Historically in California, the cost of providing that infrastructure and both on-site and off-site improvements fell to the landowners and developers of property. Then-assemblymen

Assemblyman Henry Mello and Assemblyman Mike Roos sponsored the Marx-Roos and Mello-Roos acts partially as a sop to local officials, whose political campaigns in large measure were funded by real estate and developmental interests and were there-constructing the infrastructure needed to accompany development from the developers and the landowners to the eventual buyers of the property – i.e., the houses – those developers built on the land owned by the landowners. This substantially increased the profits of those in-

involved in the development industry.

The documentation relating to the Southridge community facilities district created by city staff and signed off on by the city council at the March 10, April 14 and April 28 meetings transfers the burden of paying for the infrastructure that is to accompany the single family homes being constructed by KB Homes and KB Homes

Cal Management Services to the owners of the homes. While initially that will be KB Homes, as the homes sell the purchasers will become responsible for the Mello Roos assessments, which are separate from the property tax levied by the county on the properties.

This double taxation is in large measure a by-product of the graft that consumed Fontana in the 1980s.

In the early 1980s, the land where Southridge has now long been established was a vast expanse of mostly undeveloped property. Three individuals – brothers Dick and Bill Ashby and Larry Redman, functioning under the corporate veil of Newport Beach-based Ten-Ninety Corporation began to tie up property in the area have been a major embarrassment to both county and city officialdom and have served as an unintentional metaphor what is widely considered to be governance steeped in corruption.

On April 29 at around 5 p.m., a contingent of police, more than half of them traveling in armored vehicles, rolled up into the inadequately-sized parking lot of the Sunshine Motel and disembarked. Chaperoned by Police Chief Darren Goodman, the officers spread quickly around the premises, splitting into teams of five or six men and women decked out in flak gear. After the electricity to the rooms was cut off at the circuit breaker panel for the entire hotel, heavy knocks were, by a coordinated signal, made, together with demands that the doors be opened. If or when the occupants of the rooms did not immediately comply with commands that they open the door, the officers, at liberty to do so because their superiors were armed with a court-issued across-the-board warrant, used battering rams to bash them in. The officers would then sweep into the rooms, forcing the occupants, with their hands held high, to exit. Most, though not all, of those forced into the glaring sunlight were young or youngish women. A law enforcement helicopter circled the scene, videotaping the operation while an observer stood at the ready to alert those on the ground if anyone on the hotel property sought to slip away.

The upshot was, based upon a statement issued by Goodman at 7:39 p.m. that evening, "Just a few hours ago, multiple units from the San Bernardino Police Department served a search warrant at the Sunshine Motel in the 500 block of North 'H' Street. Prostitution, human trafficking, pimping & pandering, were all happening at the Sunshine Motel. Today, we shut it down. Crooks arrested and hotel red-tagged. Prey on the weak, victimize people in our city, we will come after you, and put you in jail!"

The red tagging served as a formal designation by the city's building and safety division that the two-story, 22-unit structure is unsafe or non-compliant with building codes and therefore prohibited from being occupied until necessary repairs or compliance measures are completed. Cited in the structure shuttering were unsafe wiring, a lack of safety equipment including smoke detectors, and illegally fortified doors, all of which entail a fire hazard, and unspecified health code violations.

Because the police department last year as of the end of June discontinued posting its daily arrest logs, how many arrests were made on Wednesday and on what tences were neither cruel nor unusual and are therefore constitutional and that the Grants Pass's anti-camping ordinances were neutrally applied against both the homeless and those who are not homeless. This cleared the way for other cities to ban sleeping and overnight camping in parks. The upshot was that local governments can ban the homeless from public areas. On July 25, 2024, California Governor Gavin Newsom issued an executive order directing state agencies to "urgently address homeless encampments," which he said should be accomplished "while respecting the dignity and safety of Californians experiencing homelessness. Referencing the Supreme Court's decision in Grants Pass in announcing the order, Newsom, who had been perhaps the strongest advocate for the homeless within government, indicated he would not prohibit local governments from ousting the homeless from public lands, including parks, as long as there was no threat to life, health and safety and an effort was made to collect, label, and store for at least 60 days the personal property of those evicted. At once, public officials wanting to clear out those areas locally where the homeless were residing and the police officers and sheriff's deputies given the assignments to deal with the homeless adopted a swagger even more pronounced than the one they had before and began to push San Bernardino County's homeless around with newfound relish. In San Bernardino, the city with far and away the largest number of homeless throughout the county, officials moved rapidly, or relatively so, and by October 2024 began the wholesale removal of well over 500 and perhaps as many as 600 people who were living in Seccombe Lake Park, Perris Hill Park Meadowbrook Park. This did not, however, cure the problem, and those displaced merely shifted their living quarters to the Santa Ana or Lytle Creek riverbeds or around them, under railroad trestles or freeway overpasses, into the chaparral or landscaping along the freeways as well as into alleyways and vacant and/or abandoned buildings. Ironically, despite San Bernardino stepping up its efforts to dislodge the homeless, the city had over 100 more homeless within its confines at the end of December 2024 than it had in January 2024.

Still, in those areas of the county, including San Bernardino, Yucaipa and a few others where authorities had used the license the Supreme Court ruling in City of Grants Pass v. Johnson, what might be described as extremely aggressive tactics were used to persuade the homeless to make themselves scarce throughout much, most or all of 2025 and into early 2026. This included seizing their tents, blankets, sleeping bags and other bedding by declaring it to be "debris," action which was accompanied by what law enforcement officers referred to as a "lawful order" that the debris be discarded and then beating those who sought to contest the lawful order. This treatment resulted in many of the homeless there deciding to skedaddle or go underground by hiding in places, such as abandoned buildings or in outdoor areas where the physical lay of the land obscured them.

It is partially for that reason the accuracy of the 2025 and 2026 San Bernardino County Point-in-Time counts have been called into question.

Known to the Sentinel are homeless individuals or squatters in Mount Baldy, Upland, Rancho Cucamonga, San Bernardino/the Unincorporated San Bernardino, Yucaipa, Baker and Zzyzx who were not, or claim to have not been, counted in either the 2025 and/or 2026 counts. In the immediate aftermath of both the 2025 and 2026 counts, the Sentinel requested from San Bernardino County the tentative homeless figures based on the surveys. The county declined to release the numbers, saying in 2025 that they needed to be "verified" and "confirmed" first and this year that "preliminary data" from the count was not available outside of the Department of Behavioral Health" and that the information was considered confidential and could not be shared with the public or the press until the release of the final report. This made it difficult or impossible to verify whether the inhabitants of certain known homeless encampments in the county had been counted.

In addition to carrying out a simple tally of those who are homeless, the point-in-time undertaking includes a survey, one which is extensive and which is intended to provide continuum of care providers and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and other elements of federal, state and local governments with data that can be of use in the effort to eradicate or greatly mitigate homelessness. Nevertheless, the nature and extent of that questioning can be both offsetting and intimidating, perhaps resulting in those subjected to the questioning adopting an attitude of noncompliance and those witnessing others being surveyed to avoid the survey teams. Those inquiries include ones which might be interpreted as being aimed at forming the basis for making an arrest, such as when the person had become homeless, if the person being questioned has or had a medical or chronic health condition extending to heart, lung, liver, kidney or cancerous disease, if the person has a substance abuse disorder, what the person's name or initials are, if the person had been incarcerated during the last 12 months, whether the person had ever been in foster care, what the person's monthly income is, where the person last had a traditional abode, where the person was born and where the person slept the previous night.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development allows counting in hard-to-reach or remote areas to continue for up to seven days after the count, provided that individuals are asked if they were homeless on the day of the count and are assigned a unique identifier to prevent duplication.

According to the county, a limited amount of supplemental counting occurred during the seven-day period following the count to ensure full coverage of remote areas. The county did not, however, specify which remote areas this occurred in.

One issue believed to have compromised the accuracy of the counts over the years, including in 2026, is the presence of law enforcement officers among the tallying and surveying team. The manner in which those officers, in particular San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department deputies, have been utilized to employ physical force in persuading the homeless to take leave of the county and effectuating the arrest of those who refuse to comply with those requests or orders, approach encampments or individuals has, in certain known instances, resulted in the homeless fleeing or temporarily leaving the area to avoid contact with the survey teams. Those inquiries extend to questions

County officials acknowledge that the counting of the homeless within the county boundaries is not fully accurate.

According to the report on the count released this week, "Per U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development instructions, a person was not considered homeless if [he/she] resided in medical facilities (e.g., hospitals, psychiatric facilities, nursing homes), jails, prisons, or juvenile detention facilities, chemical dependency facilities (e.g., detox facilities or inpatient treatment) [and] foster care homes or group homes."

Additionally, according to the county, "Children identified as homeless under McKinney-Vento definitions by schools were not included unless they were stay-

charges were unavailable as were the identities of those arrested. It was disclosed that the hotel manager was arrested on suspicion of felony pimping and pandering. While those authorized to speak for the police department assiduously avoided acknowledging or denying that any of the women at the hotel had been arrested on prostitution charges, available information was that the prostitutes' pimps and customers involved at the Sunshine Hotel had been arrested during the operation previously. According to the department, its vice unit since January 1 has made 21 felony arrests and 124 misdemeanor arrests. How many of the 21 felony arrests were of pimps and how many were of drug dealers has not been disclosed. Nor is it clear how many of the 124 misdemeanor arrests pertain to soliciting a prostitute and how many relate to drug purchases.

Based upon interviews and interrogations of pimps and customers as well as evidence suggesting the rooms were being rented by the hour, the police department believes the manager at the very least knew about the operation of prostitution rings on the hotel premises and was aiding them in eluding detection and arrest or was complicit in the pimps' enterprises.

That prostitution was occurring at the Sunshine Motel and Gold Star Inn has long been recognized, with long-legged, hot pants-clad trollops parading back and forth across the entrances to their parking lots being a regular feature of both establishments and others in the area over the years. Testimonials to that reality are extant in the on-line reviews of the motels.

A post on Reservation Desk.com's page for the Sunshine Motel dated December 2024 by "Mo," who categorized himself as a "Solo Traveler" reads, "Wow, what a gem of a place! I thought I'd treat myself to a little rest before the drive back to Palm Springs from Los Angeles, but instead, I ended up in a scene straight out of a crime drama. I mean, who doesn't love a little excitement, right? Picture this: I'm just trying to catch a few z's, and what do I hear? Oh, just three police raids happening right next to my room! Nothing like a little live action to make you feel cozy. And let's not forget the lovely ambiance provided by the local prostitutes and their, um, 'business associates.' Honestly, I was laying on the floor, praying for my life and hoping I'd make it out of there in one piece. There were like three or four rooms getting raided for drugs and felons, and I was just wishing for a miracle. I thought I was just going to crash for a bit, but it turned into a stay from hell. Who knew resting could be so thrilling?"

James, who stayed there as part of a young couple in April 2024 remarked "prostitution and drugs abound."

In her review, Temerra, another solo traveler who stayed there in February 2024, said "The manager is a scam artist and is out to steal people's money," and offered the observation that "most of the guest were prostitutes." In her size-up of the establishment, Temerra provided what might have been the unexplained grounds for the unspecified health and safety violations cited for the hotel's redtagging. The rooms, she reported, "have roaches."

Mich, a solo traveler who was there in October 2022, and Alayna, who was part of a group who stayed there in January 2022, both noted "stains on the sheets," while Chrystalvand, a young couple who was there in August of 2021, noted that "There were multiple condom wrappers and a tampon applicator and wrapper behind the dresser and side tables" and "checkout was fast."

Ofland Retreats From Plan To Construct 29 Palms Resort

environmental certification process than it could have when it gave approval to the Ofland resort.

Under the California Environmental Quality Act, an examination of the environmental impacts of a project must be made. Some discretion is left to the governmental decision-making body that oversees land use issues and possesses approval and/or denial authority with regard to a development project as to what type of analysis of the environmental issues is to be carried out and what mitigations of the impacts are to be required.

In evaluating Ofland's project application, Twentynine Palms' planning staff elected to use a mitigated negative declaration, also referred to as an initial study, as the means of providing the project with its environmental certification.

A simple negative declaration is the least exacting type of development impact assessments and a mitigated negative declaration is the second-least stringent assessment. On the other end of the scale, an environmental impact report is the most involved and exhaustive type of environmental analysis and certification there is, followed by an environmental impact study.

An environmental impact report consists of an in-depth study of the project site, the project proposal, the potential and actual impacts the project will have on the site and surrounding area in terms of all conceivable issues, including land use, water use, air quality, potential contamination, noise, traffic, and biological and cultural resources. An environmental impact report specifies in detail what measures can, will and must be carried out to offset those impacts. An environmental impact study is somewhat less exacting and an environmental impact assessment less stringent still. A mitigated negative declaration is a statement by the ultimate land use authority – as in this case the city council – that any identified impacts from the project will be mitigated or offset by the conditions of approval for the project. A negative declaration, the least exacting type of certification there is, merely states that the initial study done by the agency planning staff sufficiently identified any environmental issues and that there are no environmental problems of consequence involved in the proposed project.

In the case of Ofland, planning staff, the planning commission and the city council required nothing beyond the initial study to approve the project, which many in Twentynine Palms objected to.

Two groups, the Center for Biological Diversity and Indian Cove Neighbors, believing the city cut corners in allowing Ofland to develop the property without undertaking an environmental impact report and making a finding that the conditions of approval ensured that any untoward impacts would be addressed, filed suit on August 20, 2025 in San Bernardino County Superior Court.

The plaintiffs asked the court to enjoin Ofland from proceeding with the project until the lawsuit was resolved.

The Center for Biological Diversity asserted damage to both the habitat and migratory paths of six special-status wildlife species and five special-status plant species would occur during and after the construction phase of the project. The suit did not petition for the abandonment of the project altogether, but sought a court determination that a full environmental impact report for the project be completed for the project to be allowed to proceed.

City staff and Ofland contended there would be no serious or irreparable impacts on the species indigenous to the area if the company complied with the conditions of approval.

The Center for Biological Diversity's legal team characterized those impacts as "significant." The property proposed for development lies within a wildlife corridor that runs into Joshua Tree National Park, according to the plaintiffs, and the project would have impacted air quality and the general environs in Indian Cove.

Ofland Hotels' corporate officials, who are now based in Las Vegas rather than Texas, abruptly walked away from the project last week. In doing so, they did not concede that, as the plaintiffs in the lawsuit contended, the Twentynine Palms planning staff and the city council had not adequately assessed and mitigated the potential and actual environmental harm that would come about as a result of the project. Rather, the company said, its hand was forced by financial considerations and changes in the hospitat-ily marketplace. A complication was that the company had not moved ahead immediately with the project upon getting approval, but had been delayed by the filing of the suit. Since the company had the land tied up subject to an option to purchase it but did not actually own the acreage, the property fell out of escrow when the deadline for sale passed and the owner was unwilling to extend the option.

The City of Twentynine Palms was informed of the company's decision by a letter from Ofland's attorney last week.

Ofland made the decision public in a press release on April 30 in which Searcy, Ofland Hotels' head of development, stated "softening market demand" was at the basis of the decision to throw in the towel in Twentynine Palms. "As a company, we must adapt to shifts in the industry. Ultimately, current market conditions did not justify the level of investment required to responsibly move the project forward."

No longer committed to the project near Indian Cove, the company will transfer its development intensity toward a resort planned near the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee the company obtained approval for in 2024 and another resort near Zion National Park in Utah.

A selling point of the project for city officials last year was that Ofland, which operates an "outdoor hotel" in Escalante, Utah, was to generate what it projected would be $500,000 to $800,000 in annual tax and fee revenue, add 40 full-time jobs to the local community and create a recreational venue that would put Twentynine Palms on the map as a place welcoming outdoorsmen and tourists.

City Manager Stone James had enthusiastically endorsed the project, but last month, he announced his departure from the city as of later this month. It is unclear whether losing him as a champion of the undertaking had dimmed the company's enthusiasm, given that the incoming city manager, whoever that is, will be faced with having the city continue on in the face of the lawsuit.

James was critical of the city residents whose opposition had contributed to Ofland's decision to abandon the proposal, which said had been an "excellent opportunity for economic growth based upon conservation-focused tourism."

themselves inside. Virtually all of the furniture in the home had been removed and the interior of the home had been sloppily repainted. Both of Naiping's cars were missing from the garage. The sheriff's department was summoned, whereupon it opened a missing person's file on Naiping Hou. It took investigators nearly two weeks to graduate from the initial assumption that Naiping Hou was absent from his Rancho Cucamonga home on his own volition or, as he had told his wife, in transit to, or already in, China. By early June, the case had gradually come into focus. Naiping Hou was born in the Shaanxi province of China and immigrated to the United States, establishing a successful business in the San Gabriel Valley. He, prudently, indeed shrewdly, parlayed his profits into some lucrative investments and was able to retire comfortably more than a decade ago. His son, Wen, was pursuing a doctorate in electrical engineering at the University of California at Irvine when he recognized that the analytical expertise and simulation model techniques he had cultivated as an engineer would be directly and lucratively applied to commodity, securities and cryptocurrency trading, and he is now considered to be at the forefront of cryptocurrency negotiating as the chief investment officer for Coincident Capital. It was recognized by investigators that Naiping Hou had access to several accounts with a substantial amount of money in them. Tracking of his account activity inexorably led to the conclusion that he was, for a time anyway, the captive of an individual or individuals who were forcing him, likely by means of torture or other duress, to transfer funds to which he had access to their use. Simultaneously, according to investigators, an individual or individuals were utilizing Hou's cellphone, including making use of its texting functions, to masquerade as him and initiate disbursement from his bank account. According to the sheriff's department, there were "extensive fraudulent transactions" which occurred in late March and into April. At least $970,000 originating in Hou's accounts was used to purchase large gold bars online and to trade in cryptocurrency. In addition, both of Hou's vehicles were sold, known items in the Hou home were found in the possession of others and someone posing as his home's property owner attempted to rent it to prospective tenants. Sheriff's investigators have traced the likely points of origin of the activity on Hou's phone and have connected private plumbing and home repair contractors who were in Hou's home in February to redress extensive water damage that resulted from a leak that occurred in January to the fund transfers. The immediate conversion of Hou's available capital into bullion and cryptocurrency which can be easily traded internationally is an indication of [a] sophisticated operator[s] who may not be confined to the local area. One theory is that through statements Hou may have made when the contractors or their employees were in his house, taken together with their learning that Mrs. Hou was to depart for China for an extended period in March, may have given rise to the attempt to move in on the 74-year-old while he was isolated. Another theory is that Wen Hou was targeted months in advance of his disappearance by members of a West Coast-based or foreign tong that was attracted by the younger Hou's wealth and the elder Hou's age and vulnerability. Tracing cryptocurrency trades can be more challenging than following traditional financial transfers. Still, through the use of warrants, monetary exchanges using cryptocurrency transactions are traceable, as they are registered on a public, immutable blockchain. Law enforcement agencies can use blockchain analysis tools to investigate illegal activity, and recent legislation has intensified regulations subjecting monetary exchanges to multiple reporting requirements and the identification of both originators and receivers. Access to cellphone records provide investigators with the phone numbers of the interlocutors in such electronic exchanges, and further examination can determine the cell phone towers the participants in those conversations were proximate to during the conversations, providing investigators with an approximation of the locations of the involved parties at the time of the exchanges. The phones themselves can provide even more precise location data by means of the geo-positioning devices contained within them. -Mark Gutglueck and approached city officials about developing it predominantly residentially, what was essentially a residential subdivision with a school, a park and some small neighborhood commercial uses.

Much of the dialogue took place between the Ashbys, Redmond and then-City Manager Jack Daze Ratelle. The Ashbys and Redmond, given periodic one-on-one access to the mayor and members of the city council by Ratelle, were able to convince the city's elected decision-makers that their proposed undertaking would provide the steeltown community, where the Kaiser Steel Mill was on the brink of shutting down, in which three of the distinguishing achievements were that it was the birthplace of the Hells Angels and Devils Diciples motorcycle gangs and the home to Ku Klux Klan Grand Wizard George Pepper, with an infusion of young, upwardly mobile professionals as residents who would change the community for the better. Simultaneously, they made the claim that they could not afford to pay up front for the infrastructure that would be needed to allow the project to proceed.

In mostly private dialogue with Ratelle, an arrangement to have the city issue $65 million in certificates of participation – a type of municipal bond – and take out $55 million loans from the Glaziers' Union was made, whereupon Ratelle convinced the city council that the proceeds could be used to cover the $120 worth of infrastructure needed to facilitate the completion of the planned 9,100-unit Southridge residential project. The city council signed off on the bond issuance and the loan. This created city debt that had to be serviced through the imposition of assessments on the purchasers of the homes in Southridge. In practical terms, this meant that the city over the course of three decades ending in 2013 made regular payments of $3.12 million per quarter or $12.48 million annually and a total of $374.4 million to the bond holders and the glaziers union.

The Southridge project would not have proceeded had Ratelle not convinced the members of the Fontana City Council that the Ten-Ninety Corporation lacked the financial wherewithal to finance the construction of the infrastructure to support the Southridge project and that the project would not come to fruition unless the city and its taxpayers defrayed the cost of the infrastructure.

Not disclosed at that time was that the Ashby Brothers and Redman were the purchasers of the certificates of participation. It was the proceeds from the sale of those bonds, along with the loans from the Glaziers' Union, which were utilized to pay to construct the Southridge infrastructure, consisting of roads, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drains, sewers and a school. Over the thirty years the City of Fontana was diverting a portion of the property tax it was receiving and homeowners in Southridge were paying Mello Roos fees in addition to standard property tax to service the debt the city had taken on to build the Southridge infrastructure, the Ashbys and Redman saw a return of $202.8 million on their investment in the certificates of participation – a profit of $137.8 million.

The law firm of Sabo & Deitsch, which in the early 1980s was serving as the City of Fontana's redevelopment agency counsel, served as the bond counsel on the issuance of the $65 million in certificates of participation and was paid 0.5 percent of the issuance or $325,000 and simultaneously served as the disclosure counsel on the $65 million issuance, for which it was paid 0.25 percent of the $65 million issuance or $162,500. Thus, in overseeing that bond creation and sale, Sabo & Deitsch netted $487,500.

That the Ashbys and Redmond had the ability to purchase $65 million in certificates of participation in the early- to mid-1980s controverted their claim and that of Ratelle that the Ten-Ninety Corporation was not able to defray a substantial percentage of the cost of the infrastructure and off-site improvements the Southridge project would require. It was subsequently detailed that the Ten-Ninety Corporation had been providing kickbacks to Ratelle, hiding and laundering those payments to him by putting money into a credit line the city manager had opened at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas.

Both Tim Sabo and Stephen Deitsch, the principals in Sabo & Deitsch, eventually became aware of the bribes being provided to Ratelle by the Ashbys and Redman, and the degree to which this brought the infrastructure cost defraying arrangement for the Southridge project into question. Neither Sabo nor Deitsch, however, called for a reappraisal of that arrangement nor for an investigation of Ratelle, the Ashbys and Red from Dennis Kottmeir, who left office in 1995, Dennis Stout, who left office in 2003 and Mike Ramos, who left office in 2019, pursued a criminal case against Ratelle, the Asby brothers or Redman, despite their office being possession of evidence indicating money originating with the Ten-Ninety Corporation had been provided to Ratelle.

The 32.23 acres of property, located near Live Oak Avenue and Village Drive, upon which KB Homes is to construct the 255 new homes is within the property originally intended for the Ten-Ninety Corporation's original 9,100-unit subdivision, such that much, or indeed most or all of its infrastructure is already in place.

Nevertheless, City Accounting Supervisor Samuel Perez indicated that the future occupants of the 255 new homes will be called upon to pay an annual Mello Roos assessment of between $4,100 to $4,800, depending on the square footage of the home, with annual escalations of up to 2 percent per year. The Mello Roos assessment comes in addition to yearly property tax on the homes collected by the county, which is pegged at a maximum of 1.95% of the home's value.

Perez, who was designated by current city management to champion the concept of creating the community facilities district on the new homes past the city council, through elliptical statements, indicated he had an understanding of the history surrounding the property and the way the city's taxpayers generally and the longtime residents of Southridge had paid subsidized the Ten-Ninety Corporation's graft ridden profiteering. The manner in which Perez explained and rationalized the imposition of the new community facilities district assessment suggested a consensus that new or incoming residents of Fontana would need to share in being fleeced by Ratelle, the Ashbys and Redman in the same way that those who had arrived in Fontana before them had been.

The city will issue $11 million in bonds to fund $9.2 million worth of infrastructure and establish the financing district, Perez said. Doing so, he said is "in alignment with the city's discipline and forward-looking approach to managing growth in our community." Thus, he said, "The proposed formation of CFD 117 is designed to ensure new development within the city funds the infrastructure and services it requires without shifting that burden onto existing residents or the city's general fund." Perez brushed past that the community had already paid $374.4 million to construct the Southridge infrastructure, that the diversion of the responsibility to pay for that infrastructure had been engineered through bribery of a previously top-positioned city official and that no effort to hold that official or those who had compromised him accountable.

In addition to the annual $4,100 to $4,800 Mello Roos assessment, homeowners will be called upon to pay $11,817 to $12,480 in yearly property tax on the homes – calculated at 1.95 percent of the value of the homes, which are to be marketed at between $606,000 and $640,000.

Councilman John Roberts is the longest-serving member of the Fontana City Council, having logged more than 35 years on the panel after having first been elected to that position in 1992. Prior to that, throughout the 1980s, Roberts was employed by the San Bernardino County Fire Department in the capacity of a firefighter and fire captain providing service to the City of Fontana at San Bernardino County Fire Station 71, located at 16980 Arrow Boulevard in Fontana, proximate to Fontana City Hall. While he was stationed out of Fire Station 71, he worked closely with another fire captain, Gary Boyles, who was a member of the Fontana City Council from 1984 until 1992 and Fontana mayor from 1992 to 1994. Through his association with Boyles, who was a member of the council majority that forced Ratelle to depart from Fontana in 1987, and closeness in general to governmental action in Fontana, Roberts was highly knowledgeable of the depredations Ratelle had engaged in while he was city manager. As the second-longest serving local elected official in San Bernardino County and the longest serving member of the Fontana City Council, Roberts embodies/possesses institutional memory with regard to the Southridge development debacle that is unparalleled.

At the April 14 meeting, at which council members Jesse Sandoval and Peter Garcia, perhaps intentionally, were not in attendance, following the presentation from Perez and the other members of city staff, Roberts inquired as to whether the formation of Community Facilities District 117 would affect areas of Southridge outside of KB Homes' project area. Perez indicated it would not. Roberts, who seemed to be on the brink of exploring the aspects of the infrastructure provision history at Southridge, receded from exploring the topic more fully.

Roberts then joined Mayor Acquanetta Warren and Councilman Phil Cothran Jr in ratifying the creation of the community facilities district.

San Bernardino has a substantial number of households that are at risk of homelessness," the report states. "According to the U.S. Census Bureau's 2024 Small Area Income and Poverty Estimates (SAIPE): 13.2% of households (approximately 86,000 households representing about 274,000 residents) were living at or below the poverty level. Factors contributing to homelessness include rising housing costs, job loss, increasing health-care expenses, domestic violence, mental illness, physical disabilities and substance abuse."
