FBI Interrogated Ontario City Manager Ochoa In The Presence Of The City Attorney

By Mark Gutglueck

Ontario City Manager Scott Ochoa last month submitted to a more than two-hour interrogation by the FBI, during which he confirmed or provided greater detail and/or hard specifics with regard to items already churned up in the more than eight-year ongoing federal probe of violations of trust in San Bernardino County's third-most populous city. In at least two instances, Ochoa provided investigators with information about actions they heretofore were previously unaware, the Sentinel is informed. Information which Ochoa has been sitting on in many cases for more than a half-decade cuts right to the heart of the wrongdoing that has now become the primary focus in the case being assembled for prosecution by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Some of the issues at the heart of the investigation have been known of, in limited circles within Ontario, consisting primarily of those who had approached the FBI originally with the information that triggered the initial inquiries, since 2017. By 2022, a wider but still relatively narrow collection of residents and city employees were aware that votes made by both the Ontario City Council and the Ontario International Airport Authority Board of commissioners as well as secretive actions taken by the city and authority without any official public discussion, votes or disclosure were being examined for their legality and possible criminal nature by federal authorities.

On July 28 of this year, that both Ontario City Councilman Alan Wapner and San Bernardino County Fourth District Supervisor Curt Hagman were the targets of a political corruption investigation broke into wider public view when their homes and offices as well as the offices and or homes of some of their associates and political supporters, including attorney Frank Lizerraga, businessman Andy Sehremelis and media mogul James Su, were raided by federal agents, subject to search warrants that had been issued. Wapner had been See P 2

Who Has Funded Mayor Warren's Political War Chest & Where The Money Goes

By Carlos Avalos

Acquanetta Warren has been mayor of Fontana since 2010 and is asking voters for a fifth term this year. Her campaign filings, from a 2009 run for the state Assembly through September 2026, record $1.87 million raised from 672 contributors. These are public records, open to the people of Fontana and San Bernardino County, and the San Bernardino County Sentinel has reported on parts of them over the years. Read line by line, they show who pays for her campaigns, where her campaign sends the money, and where the money might raise legal questions.

The largest identifiable group of donors builds and sells property. Real estate developers, homebuilders, their executives and their trade groups gave at least $396,498, about 21.2% of the total, led by developer David Wiener of DW Development, her largest donor at $109,100. Auto dealers, trucking and pallet companies, utilities, tribal governments and public-safety unions also give to her. Two developers who give heavily in San Bernardino County politics, Jeff Burum and James L. Previti, and companies or organizations they lead gave her $36,699. In 2021, the same year Previti's homebuilding company and family foundation gave to Warren, a company tied to his businesses became the registered owner of a private jet that had belonged to Jeffrey Epstein.

Warren's campaign also gives money away. From July 2022 through September 2026, her committee reported $276,794.52 in contributions and loans to 59 recipients, most of them other candidates and political committees, and it has forgiven $68,579.18 in loans to nine campaigns. The largest recipient was the 2024 water board campaign of Aajee Warren, whose See P 4

Man Who Beat Woman Senseless Arrested In Oklahoma

Erik Eduardo Navarro, who used a baseball bat to nearly beat a Crestline woman to death after she had had shown remarkable kindness to him this summer, has been taken into custody by San Bernardino County sheriff's detectives.

Navarro, who originated in Orange County, was in the San Bernardino Mountains in August. 71-year-old Therese Garcia spotted him one day as he was walking down her street. She stopped to ask him if he needed help. He told her he had suffered a setback when someone stole all of his camping equipment and some of his other belongings while he was staying at a local campsite, but that he had to remain in the area to be able to attend for a job interview he had scheduled a few days later at the Lake Drive Hardware store. Garcia offered the 26-year-old Navarro a home-cooked meal on August 18 or August 19, and he remained at her house in the 23900 block of Straight Way there for several days thereafter, having offered to do some chores See P 3

Sheriff's Department Links Sinaloa Cartel To Regional Rail Cargo Thefts

The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department earlier this month made a significant breakthrough in connecting an element of the Sinaloa Cartel to the massive cargo theft network that has been plaguing Southern California desert rail corridor for much of the last decade, identifying and rolling up now fewer than nine of the criminal enterprises participants.

All nine taken into custody on October 16 were Mexican nationals.

In the days following those arrests, investigators were able to glean information relating to operations, participants, the location of its bases of activity, specialized equipment and means of communication which will further cripple the organization.

That organization is a remarkably sophisticated one that utilizes inside operators who have over the last several years insinuated themselves into positions with the Burlington Northern Santa Fe/Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway or Union Pacific railroads or at the Barstow, Colton/Rialto, Needles, Del Rosa San Bernardino, San Bernardino Third Street, Kelso, Kramer, Goffs and Highland railroad yards, and as insiders can provide information as to the contents of railroad cars as well as the location and timing of their transit.

On October 15, the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department served a search warrant a a home in the 1200 block of East 35th Street

Shaw Risking The Strong Influence She Already Has On California Educational Policy In A Dicey Ploy For Yet More Power

Having made cultural and strategic political inroads few would have predicted, Chino Valley Unified School Board President Sonja Shaw is no longer reaching for the brass ring but the gold one.

Shaw has had a meteoric political rise. In 2022, in her maiden political venture, she was elected to the Chino Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees. Less than four years later, in the June 2026 California Primary, she placed first in the race for State Superintendent of Education.

In the meantime, she has grown into a figure of national renown as the informal spokeswoman for the reform movement seeking a return to the traditional values system that attended the American educational system before the advent of another American cultural/education system reformist, one from the opposite side of the political and cultural spectrum, Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

O'Hair's lawsuit, Murray v. Curlett lawsuit, challenging the policy of mandatory prayers and Bible reading in Baltimore public schools, in which she named her first son, William J. Murray as the plaintiff, ultimately was heard by the United States Supreme Court, which ruled that officially sanctioned mandatory Bible-reading in American public schools was unconstitutional.

An important element of Shaw's formula which has para- See P 3 the chairman/president of the Ontario International Airport Board of Commissioners since that entity's creation in 2012 and Hagman had been an airport authority commissioner since 2014. On July 28, as well, both Ontario City Hall and the headquarters of the airport authority were served with subpoenas for specific sets of documents.

Specifically, the FBI had interested itself in:

a) money that had been provided to Wapner and Hagman by a whole host of their political donors;

b) contracts and franchises that had been granted by the airport authority board of commissioners or the Ontario City Council to companies or entities owned by or associated with those donors;

c) approvals of projects proposed by companies or entities owned by or associated with those donors by the Ontario City Council;

d) those donors who had been hired as consultants by the airport authority;

e) determining if any of those donors were foreign nationals or were not American citizens;

f) the nature of the business Wapner and Hagman had engaged in while they were doing extensive traveling in the Far East;

g) influence-peddling by Wapner and Hagman;

h) efforts by those intent on delivering money to Wapner and Hagman engaging in political money laundering by donating money to political action committees or so-called independent expenditure committees which then donated the money to the duo;

i) reports of out-and-out bribe-taking on the part of Wapner and Hagman;

j) determining whether reports that Wapner and Hagman had set up bank accounts in the People's Republic of China were accurate;

k) the degree to which Wapner and most particularly Hagman were involved in propaganda efforts by China Radio International, the state-owned international radio broadcasting network of the People's Republic of China, which operates through Guoguang Century Media and its West Coast Arm, West Covina-based EDI Media, Inc., which runs G&E Studio Inc. and CiTi News, owned by James Su, who was himself a donor to Hagman's campaign and employed others who were donating to Hagman's campaign.

It is a violation of federal law for an American elected official at any level to accept political donations from a foreign citizen.

At the time the raids took place, more than a month and a half had elapsed since Hagman had scored a reelection victory in the June primary election by obtaining 54.84 percent of the vote, sidestepping the need to compete in a run-off election in the November 3 general election, and Wapner earlier that month had taken out and filed nomination papers to run for mayor and the city clerk and San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters Office had determined his candidacy was officially qualified. Wapner abruptly pulled out of the mayoral contest, persuaded one of his political allies, Curt Hagman's son Jonathan, to drop out of the race for 3rd District Councilman, and himself took out nomination papers to run for the 3rd District council position just prior to the August 7 filing deadline. He then prevailed on another of his political allies, 4th District Councilwoman Daisy Macias, to enter the mayoral contest, challenging longtime Mayor Paul Leon.

FBI agents nosing around Ontario and at the Airport as well as at the homes and offices of some of their major political supporters, which included Frank Lizarraga, who had served as a lawyer for Wapner and his wife, Hagman and his wife, as well as Macias, and who had been a member of the Ontario Planning Commission for 13 years, created a degree of general chaos that was unprecedented during any previous election season in Ontario going back to its 1893 incorporation. The serving of the search warrants 98 days before the November 3, 2026 Ontario municipal election rendered the situation more complicated still and left a series of issues unresolved in the community as a consequence of the unofficial policy of the U.S. Attorney's Office and FBI to take not overt action within, variably, 90 days to 60 days of an election that might influence the election's outcome. Wapner has been a member of the city council for over three decades and had been the dominant political power through much of that time, controlling two of the votes of his council colleagues during 18 of the last 21 years that Leon has been mayor. This made Wapner the head of a ruling coalition that politically outmuscled Leon for all but three of the years he has wielded the mayoral gavel.

Despite the assurance that Wapner and his associates were being provided with a grace period at least through November 3 during which they would not be arrested nor subjected to a so-called "perp walk" nor criminally charged, the specter of what will come after the current election season concludes has continued to hang over Ontario.

Over the last 20 years, during each of the five four-year election cycles in 2006, 2010, 2014, 2018 and 2022, Leon and Wapner, together with Councilman Jim Bowman, found themselves on the ballot together. Each time, Leon and Wapner had stayed in their respective mayoral and council position lanes, with Wapner never stepping up to challenge Leon. In those years, they had shared, to some degree, political donors, though Wapner had always proven himself to be the more aggressive fundraiser and managed to outraise Leon, touching those donors for more money, in most cases, than the mayor. Over the last two to three years, as Leon at first surreptitiously and then openly began preparing for his mayoral run against Leon, the basic commonality of their electoral backers came to an end. Beginning about a year-and-a-half ago, Wapner, began telling those donors that they needed to make up their minds as to whether they were either with him or with Leon, and that he did not intend to lose. Intimidatingly, he intimated that if they put their money on Leon, when he was mayor and Leon was out of the picture, they would not be able to count on City Hall smiling upon them as it had done in the past, and that their applications for project approval or city contracts or franchises would no longer be automatically forthcoming as they had been in the past. Indeed, it was this unabashedly quid pro quo, pay-for-play ethos that Wapner was embodying that had put him on the FBI's radar in the first place. The intensification of the unmistakable overtures he was making to his political supporters and would-be political supporters promising to sell his office, his votes and his influence for donations was in no small measure a causative factor in the FBI's move to obtain the search warrants it served on July 28.

As there appeared to be no will on the part of the San Bernardino County District Attorney's Office or the California Fair Political Practices Commission to hold Wapner in check, by the end of June, at which point Wapner over the previous 18 months had accumulated $912,529.08 in his political war chest while Leon had in the same timeframe collected $112,230. In political donations, what appeared to be the entirety of Ontario's social, political, business and governmental establishment appeared to be abandoning Leon and lining up behind Wapner. Teamsters Local 1932 representing 380 Ontario city employees, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 3061, representing 1,260 Ontario city employees, the Ontario Police Officers Association, representing the city's police officer up to the rank of sergeant, the Ontario Police Management Group, representing Ontario's police department's lieutenant and captains, and the International Association of Fire Fighters Local 1430, representing the city's firefighters all endorsed Wapner in the mayor's race prior to the filing period for the election opening.

Wapner's withdrawal from the mayor's race in the aftermath of the negative publicity that attended the serving of the search warrants transformed the formerly cordial relationship the city's employees and their union representative had with Leon into a rather awkward circumstance, one in which the city's workers found themselves at odds with their current and presumably future top-ranking political master.

What naturally evolved from the circumstance was a move by Leon and his newly-formed alliance with two of the council's members – Jim Bowman and Debra Dorst-Porada, who previously had aligned themselves with Wapner but now found that alliance to represent a threat to their legacy and continuing reputations – to relieve Wapner of his adjunct assignments as an elected official, those being his membership on and presidency of the airport authority board, his representation of the city on the San Bernardino County Transportation Authority, his position on/presidency of the Omnitrans Board of Directors and his representation of the city on the board of directors for the Southern California Association of Governments.

While the 60-day/90-day guideline the U.S. Attorney's Office and the FBI self-impose with regard to overt investigative or prosecutorial actions they might take that would come to the attention of the public and thereby impact an election, they do not curtail their work relating to figures involved in ongoing matters – be they investigative/prosecutorial targets, suspects, subjects, persons of interest, witnesses, victims or possible victims – if they can do so in a discreet manner or without drawing attention to their action. Such has been the case with those being investigated in relation to Ontario International Airport, the Ontario International Airport Authority, the City of Ontario and San Bernardino County. That investigation has continued, but investigators have attempted to maintain as low of a profile as possible in seeking to uncover more information.

Last month, three FBI agents – one woman and two men – approached City Manager Scott Ochoa in the parking lot at City Hall. Asking him if he would be willing to speak with them, they suggested that they go to a restaurant where they could have some privacy and not be subject to be-partment has focused on an organized criminal network purportedly tied to the Sinaloa Cartel that is allegedly responsible for burglaries targeting the Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway trains, resulting in millions of dollars worth of stolen property, the department said in a news release.

On October 16, members of the Sheriff's department's rural crime task force, supported by the sheriff's specialized enforcement division, served a search warrant at a residence with the 1235 E 35th Street San Bernardino, where Jose Edgar Navarrete, 24; Brian Iran Fontes-Carrillo, 27; Mauro Ruiz-Medina, 30; Pastor Pena-Lerma, 43; Alfredo Israel Covarrubias-Navarrete, 24; Jose Alfredo Castillo-Baca, 24; Jose Ismael Palafox-Bernal, 18; Cesar Daniel Navarrete-Martinez, 31; and Cristian Erubiel Navarrete-Zapien, 23 were arrested in connection with the ongoing investigation.

Ruiz-Medina is being held on a no bail USM warrant out of Los Angeles County.

Covarrubias-Navarrete is also charged with HS11370.1(A) possession of a controlled substance while armed. His bail has been set at a combined $ 40,000. During the search of the premisies and at least four vechicles associated with the arrestees, investigators came across and recovered more than $333,000 worth of alleged stolen retail merchandise. including JBL speakers, Logitech computer hardware, Victoria Secret products, Nike and New Balance shoes, according to the department.

Authorities further discovered and seized tools used to access cargo cars, four semiautomatic handguns, a drone used for surveillance and cash.

After separating the suspects and interrogating them, the detectives had varying degrees of success in learning from them the individual roles they played in the train burglary operations and how they articulated with the overall scheme. They have been charged with PC487H(A) grand theft of cargo worth in excess of $950; two counts of PC496(A) receiving property known to be stolen; and PC182(A)(1) conspiracy to commit a crime. They were booked into the Central Detention Center in San Bernardino and are being held in lieu of $30,000 bail, a relatively minor bond amount as part of the investigative process, as it is believed that other members of the organization they are involved with will be involved in throwing the bail, which will allow for them and their associates to be identified.

All nine of those arrested were determined to be members of the Sinaloa cartel, and are believed to be in the country as apart of the support network of a wider conspiracy to im-

Garcia later told her family members that Navarro at some point became demanding and, in the words of one of those family members, "began... taking over her home." Garcia informed Navarro that she wanted to leave. That night, while Garcia was asleep on her couch, Navarro kicked her and struck her with a baseball bat, knocking her out. Upon regaining consciousness, Navarro attacked her again, beating her into unconsciousness two or three times again when she came to. He beat her about the head, causing orbital injuries that were so pronounced that the swelling around her eye sockets made it impossible for her to see. Navarro may have believed she was dead after the last beating he administered. He then departed taking with him her cellphone, credit cards, keys and e-bike.

Garcia might have died, but neighbors called the sheriff's department and requested a welfare check at her home. When deputies arrived on August 25, found her severely injured. She was transported to the Lake Arrowhead Hospital, where she was treated for skull fractures, traumatic brain injury, brain bleed, brain bruising, forehead lacerations, a deeply cut eyebrow, severe damage to her eye sockets, two broken bones in her arms, broken bones in her hands and critically swollen hands.

Navarro was identified as her attacker. An effort to locate him in his usual haunts in Orange County was unsuccessful. An all-point bulletin was put out.

Navarro left California and was at large for more than eight weeks, until he was arrested in New Mexico last week after being stopped for unidentified traffic violations. The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department was contacted by the Cleveland County Sheriff's Department and informed that he was in its custody. On October 27, two San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department detectives assigned to the sheriff's office in Twin Peaks flew to New Mexico, where they participated in an expedited extradition process for Navarro, after which they took custody of him and arrested him at the Cleveland County Detention Center at 2550 West Franklin Road in Norman, Oklahoma and returned with him to San Bernardino County.

He was booked into the sheriff's departments High Desert Detention Center in Adelanto for robbery, causing injury to an elder, assault with a deadly weapon, aggravated battery and destruction of a wireless communication device. His case has been forwarded to the San Bernardino County district attorney's office for charges.

doxically afforded her uncommon success but is simultaneously limiting the scope of what she might otherwise attain, is its roots in antischolasticism, which predictably has put her at odds with the professional educators she aspires to assume authority over.

Shaw lacked a formal higher education beyond high school but had demonstrated a degree of personal dynamism, having obtained a California Real Estate License and owning three other small businesses, a personal fitness and training gym, a women's health services clinic and a photography studio.

For a time, she had been a stay-at-home mother. Her husband Chis, owned a successful building and construction management business.

Here entry into politics came as a result of her religious affiliation. She is a was a parishioner of the Calvary Chapel Chino Hills Congregation. The pastor at Calvary Chapel Chino Hills is Jack Hibbs, a denominationalist, who holds that Christians have a duty to stand up for their beliefs by either running for election to public office themselves or supporting other Christians who do run, and then, upon taking office, Christianize public policy. With Hibbs encouraging heavy voter turnout of the members of Calvary Chapel and other churches in the 2006 election, a Calvary Chapel member, Sylvia Orozco, was elected to the Chino Valley School Board. In 2008, another Calvary Chapel congregant, James Na, was elected to the school board. In 2012, Andrew Cruz, another member of the Calvary Chapel Chino Hills Congregation, was elected to the school board. With the religious trifecta of Orozco, Na and Cruz in place and in control of the district, there followed increasingly bold efforts to insert conservative Christian activism into the district's educational curriculum. Milestones in this regard were achieved with making Bible study part of the district curriculum, as well as including benedictions at the beginning of the school board meetings.

This religiosity in a public forum was challenged by 23 parents of some of the district's students, who in 2014 were represented by the Madison, Wisconsin-based Freedom From Religion Foundation in a suit filed in Federal Court in Riverside against the district. The suit resulted in a U.S. District Court Judge Jesus Bernal in 2016 issuing a ruling, later upheld on appeal, that the district desist in evangelism, extending to so-called Christian witnessing as well as "prayers, Bible readings and proselytizing" in school settings.

In the years since, Orozco left the school board but Shaw and another member of Calvary Chapel, Jon Monroe, were elected to the board in 2022.

With the school board under the tight grip of Na, Cruz, Monroe and Shaw, who was established shortly after her election as the school board president, the district contemplated taking up once more an effort to acculturate public education in Chino Valley in accordance with Christian principles.

With much fanfare, the Shaw-led school board at its July 20, 2023 school board meeting, at which State Superintendent of Schools Tony Thurmond was in attendance to express his opposition, adopted a parental notification policy requiring teachers to inform parents of any student who re-identified his or her gender at school from the gender indicated on his or her birth certificate in a classroom setting. This ran counter to the advisal and recommended policy advocated by the California Department of Education and the state's prevailing political establishment, which held that minor children in middle school and high school settings be allowed to assume a gender identity of their choosing without any interference.

The California Attorney General's Officer filed a civil suit in San Bernardino County Superior Court to enjoin the Chino Valley Unified School District from enforcing its parental notification policy, asserting the policy "puts transgender and gender nonconforming students in danger of imminent, irreparable harm from the consequences of forced disclosures" and that as a consequence of the school district action, such students were "under threat'' and "in fear," facing "the risk of emotional, physical, and psychological harm from non-affirming or unaccepting parents or guardians." The challenge of the policy was upheld by San Bernardino County Superior Court Judge Michael Sachs. Judge Sachs ruled that the district policy "singled out" transgender students for disparate treatment and thus ran afoul of California Education Code Sections 200 and 220 and Government Code section 11135 meant to ensure equal rights and opportunities for every student and prohibit discrimination on the basis of gender identity and gender expression.

Judge Sachs' ruling, however, recognized that parents had a right to be informed of any changes made to the records kept by a school district in reference to their children. The Chino Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees in March 2024 passed a redrafted parental notification requirement that was more general and did not make any specific mention of sexuality or gender, instead requiring that parents be told if the students made any alteration of their school registration records, such as altering their names. This sufficed as a victory for those on the conservative side of the cultural divide, which pushed California's ruling liberal political establishment, including Governor Gavin Newsom, Thurmond and the California legislature which passed AB 1955, prohibiting schools from making a practice of notifying parents if their children are assuming a gender different from the one assigned them at birth. Immediately after it was signed into law by Gover-campaign website identifies the mayor as Aajee's mother. It received $66,611.82 in loans, most of it after Election Day, and has repaid none of it.

In several places, the money might raise legal questions. Warren's committee gave the 2022 campaigns of Germaine Key and Janet Koehler-Brooks more than twice the city's annual limit each, mostly as loans, and gave the 2026 campaigns of Key and Joseph Armendarez more than the limit again in October 2026. One donor's 2025 contributions to Warren exceed the limit on their face, and her 2021 and 2022 statements, recovered for this story, show four more donors over the limit, with the excess assigned to a later election instead of refunded. Fourteen contributors gave her 2010 Assembly campaign more than the per-election limit, so part of their money could count only toward a general election she never reached, and the filings show no refunds. Donors report at least $4,700 in contributions that her committee's statements do not show. The only enforcement action found against her personally is a $900 fine the Fair Political Practices Commission imposed in 2021 for late disclosures on her statements of economic interests.

None of this is a finding of wrongdoing. The files reviewed cover Warren's 2010 Assembly and mayoral races and her current committee from July 2020 through September 30, 2026, plus one statement from her 2014 campaign, covering July to September 2014, that the reporter obtained on paper. Other records from December 2010 through June 2020, including the rest of the 2014 campaign and all of 2018, were not reviewed, and 54 contributions to her 2010 mayoral campaign could not be checked against an original filing. The reason is the same for both: the statements are not online. Fontana stopped accepting electronic campaign filings in 2011, the San Bernardino County Sentinel reported, and did not require them again until December 2021, so Warren's statements from those years were filed on paper with the City Clerk. They are not posted on the city's NetFile portal, which holds her committee's filings only from July 2020 on, or on the city's website. The 54 contributions appear only in a data export of the city's campaign filings; the 2010 mayoral statements that would confirm them are also not posted. All of these statements are public records that can be requested from the City Clerk under the California Public Records Act, and this review has not yet obtained them (see Constraints).

Who gives

Warren's current committee, state ID 1256423, raised $868,383 from August 2022 through September 30, 2026 in the export. With the recovered statements described below, its itemized contributions from July 2020 through September 30, 2026 total $1,405,682.37, three-quarters of all contributions reviewed. Its statements carry the name "for Mayor 2022" through the one covering September 25 to October 22, 2022, and "for Mayor 2026" from the next one, which covers October 23 to December 31, 2022 and was filed January 31, 2023. It received $229,043 between the November 8, 2022 election and June 30, 2024. The export did not include the committee's statements for July to December 2020, for 2021 or for January to June 2022. They are posted as scanned images: the 2020 and 2021 statements on the city's NetFile portal, and the January to June 2022 statement in the City Clerk's online document center, under the file name "Form 406 – Acquanetta Warren." Their itemized contributions were transcribed for this story: $149,307.20 from July to December 2020; $122,334 from January to June 2021; $111,600 from July to December 2021, including a $7,146.47 in-kind reception and net of a $1,296.47 refund; and $150,650 from January to June 2022. The committee's October 22, 2026 report also adds 12 contributions under $1,000, totaling $3,408.26, dated September 20 to 30, 2026. All of these are included in the tables below. Most of the 2010 mayoral figures rest on the export alone; see Constraints.

Many donors gave at or near the legal maximum. Fontana caps contributions to mayoral candidates at the amount in state Government Code §85303(a), applied per calendar year: $8,100 in 2022, $9,100 in 2023–24, and $9,800 in 2025–26. Single contributions of exactly that year's limit appear 36 times in the current committee's records from 2021 on, 22 of them from August 2022 on.

In the current cycle, a contributor listed as "San Bernardino GOP" gave $7,300 on September 30, 2026. Unions and employee groups giving in this cycle include the Fontana Police Officers Association PAC, San Bernardino County Professional Firefighters Local 935 PAC, Laborers Local Union No. 783 PAC, and the Southern California District Council of Laborers PAC.

Developers and big companies

Real estate developers are the largest identifiable group of donors in the records. Development and homebuilding companies, their owners and executives, and their trade groups gave Warren's committees $396,498.34, about 21.2% of all contributions reviewed, in 140 contributions from 62 donors. The largest were David Wiener of DW Development ($109,100, including $55,000 in the second half of 2020); the Lewis Group of Companies, its executives and Lewis family members who work there ($39,248 combined); Reggie King, chief executive of Young Homes ($35,900); the National Association of Industrial & Office Properties' Inland Empire PAC ($23,300); The Related Companies of California ($16,253.08); James L. Previti and his homebuilding company, FH II Homebuilders ($21,200); and the Building Industry Association of Southern California and its state counterpart ($14,500).

Real estate brokers, realtors, property managers and their political committees gave another $87,801, led by Gerald W. Beard Realty ($27,800) and its broker Scott Beard ($9,750). Large corporations and utilities gave $59,147. They include San Gabriel Valley Water Company ($18,399), Commercial Metals Company and its PAC ($3,499), Burrtec Waste Industries ($7,800), Fontana Union Water Company ($7,800), Southern California Edison and Edison International ($5,900), NASCAR and its Fontana speedway ($3,900), Sempra Energy, ConocoPhillips, Republic Services and California Steel Industries. Three tribal governments that run casinos gave $21,800, led by the San Manuel Band of Mission Indians ($15,400).

Donors were sorted by their names and by the employer and occupation they reported. Donors whose business could not be identified, including dozens of limited liability companies with no stated line of business, and family members who listed no business of their own, are left out of these totals, so the figures are minimums. Each donor's group is shown in the online donor list.

What Jeff Burum and James Previti gave Warren

Jeff Burum and James L. Previti are developers who give heavily in San Bernardino County politics. Burum, of Rancho Cucamonga, is chairman of the nonprofit National Community Renaissance and a partner in Diversified Pacific Development Group; he was acquitted in 2017 of bribery-related charges in the Colonies case. Previti, of Ontario, heads The Previti Group, formerly Frontier Homes, and is chief executive of

With The California Educational Establisment Dead Set Against It, The Shaw-Led CVUSD Fought To Keep Parents Informed About Schools Encouraging Transgenderism from page 3

nor Newsom on July 15, 2024, the Chino Valley Unified School District and eight parents of district students, represented by attorney Emily Ray of the Austin, Texas-based Liberty Justice Center, sued Newsom, Bonta and Thurmond in an effort to prevent the enforcement of AB 1955.

Even as the Chino Valley Unified School District was assuming a lead role in challenging what the majority of its board members considered to be counterproductive and unjustifiable liberal policies, a parallel lawsuit, Mirabelli vs. Olson,

As this legal back-and-forth was raging in state court, another civil lawsuit, Mirabelli vs. Olson, relating to two teachers in the Escondido School District suing the district in which they worked over that district's order that they not inform the parents of their students about the names they used in a classroom setting when those names reflected a difference from those students' biological gender, was wending its way through federal court. Ultimately, in Mirabelli vs. Olson, Judge Roger Benitez ruled that a school district or educators to whom parents have entrusted their children cannot actively deceive those parents.

In March, the U.S. Supreme Court majority ruled that parents who made inquiries with regard to the issue had a right to be told about their children's sexual orientation presentation at school.

As federal law takes precedence over state law, the Chino Unified School District, which had taken a shellacking in California state court in seeking to propound its conservative vision in the context of classroom education, found itself vindicated in fighting what many considered to be the excessively liberal philosophy of the predominant number of professional educators who had taken over the California public school system.

As the Chino Valley School District's leader, Shaw found herself lionized as a heroine by many of those in the conservative movement at the national level as controversy over the proliferation of gender altering surgical procedures being performed on underage subjects was raging in the early 2020s.

She parlayed that notoriety into a run for California superintendent of public education.

Contrary to the perspectives of Newsom, Thurmond and the prevailing element of the Democratic Party's members of the California legislature, a fair number or even majority of the members of their own party were not supportive of permitting adolescents indulging in transsexualism, extending to arranging sex change operations for students/minors without the consent of their parents.

With approximately 26,562 students, Chino Valley Unified is San Bernardino County's third largest school district and the 33rd largest school district in the state. In reaction to it having carried out what some perceived to be the good fight in being the first district in California to adopt a parental notification policy, several other districts in the state, including the Orange Unified School District, the Murrieta Valley Unified School District, the Temecula Valley Unified School District, the Rocklin Unified School District, the Placentia-Yorba Linda Unified School District and the Cajon Valley Union School District, followed suit.

Her candidacy this spring was boosted by the consideration that in addition to her having unequivocally taken a stand against the liberalisms of the Democratic establishment, the ten-candidate field in June was loaded with five Democrats who proudly proclaimed their affiliation and two who de-emphasized it, while Shaw had the endorsement of the Republican Party. Wen the dust cleared after the June vote, Shaw had 22.7 percent of the vote state wide, while Richard Barrera, a Democrat and the president of the San Diego School Board, had 20.3 percent. In third was another Democrat, Nichelle Henderson, with 9.6 percent, followed by Wendy Castaneda Leal, who was not willing to embrace her Democratic Party affiliation, with 8.8 percent. Democratic Assemblyman Al Muratsuchi captured fifth with 8.4 percent and Anthony Rendon, another Democrat managed to bring in 8.1 percent, followed by Josh Newman, a Democrat 6.8 percent. Frank Lara, a socialist and unionist, garnered 7.5 percent and Ainye Long had 5.5 percent.

Given that 53.2 percent of the vote in June had fallen to clearly identified Democrats and 62 percent was monopolized by Democrats of one sort or another, Shaw had a tough uphill climb in seeking the state's top educational post.

Still, she and her supporters had hope that the Democrats and Barrera, who had already stumbled over the support of transgenderism, might have but themselves into a downward spiral with regard to trust over the stewardship of California's educational system from which they might not recover.

Unfortunately for Shaw, she did not garner anywhere near the $35 million to $37 million that it is calculated by political analysts to be the amount of money she needs to win a statewide post while functioning with the liability of being a Republican in a state overwhelmingly populated by Democrats. In California, 10.5 million or 45 percent of the state's voters are Democrats and 5.7 million or 24.7 percent are Republicans.

Heading toward the November runoff against Barrera, Shaw was the beneficiary of a modicum of relative advantage based upon the overall attitude of Republican, Democrat and independent voters with regard to official educational endorsement of transgenderism, but yet had to overcome the partisan disadvantage that accrued to her based solely upon her Republican affiliation. Moreover, the Chino Valley Unified School District's official embrasure of other "conservative values" policies entailed her taking positions on issues that, if not in fact problematic, lent themselves to interpretations that created perceptions with a wide spectrum of voters that no politician wants to deal with.

The school board in October 2023 adopted a procedure that allows parents of Chino Valley Unified students to call into question or otherwise challenge the availability of books in district school libraries that are sexually explicit or involve lesbian/gay/bisexual/transsexual themes, potentially leading to them being deemed inappropriate reading material and therefore removed from bookshelves.

There had been some resistance to the consideration of the policy before and at the time of its passage, which included comparisons to the banning of books during the 1930s in Germany under the Nazi regime.

With Shaw running for superintendent of public instruction, Public Counsel, a Los Angeles–based nonprofit law firm, on behalf of local parents Kristi Hirst and Tracie Perez, filed with the California Department of Education, alleged the book banning port fentanyl into the United States.

The sheriff's department's operation was coordinated with other law enforcement agencies to a degree that rivaled, indeed exceeded t, the sophistication of the criminal organization that is being targeted.

For more than a year, Southern California law enforcement agencies have recognized that highly organized thefts involving international criminals targeting railroad cargo cars in San Bernardino County and elsewhere in San Bernardino County have been intensifying. According to a statement from the Association of American Railroads put out earlier this year, "In recent years, organized criminal groups have increasingly targeted the nation's railroads using sophisticated tactics and technology to commit cargo theft."

Beginning last fall, an intensified crackdown on railroad cargo theft has been pursued by a multitude of agencies and entities, including the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department and the Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad Police as well as the FBI and Department of Homeland Security.

On October 1, 2025, 17 people, at least 14 of whom were Mexican nationals at that time living in Hesperia, Victorville another desert locations, were arrested for engaging in train car thef. On October 6, 2025 another 14 individuals involved in railroad car thefts were arrested in or around a residence located in the 14600 block of Willow Street in Hesperia. On October 30, 2025, the sheriff's department's rural cimes team, with the assistance of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department's Victor Valley detective bureau, its marijuana enforcement team, the Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad Police, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Southgate Police, and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, served a total of seven search warrants in Los Angeles County relating to the ongoing investigation into train burglaries in the Victor Valley area, including ones in the 4900 block of Mason Street in Southgate, the 7800 Block of Rose Street in Paramount, in the 7000 Block of San Luis Street in Paramount and in the 14900 Block of Downey Avenue in Paramount. As a result of those searches property stolen from Burlington Northern Santa Fe cares worth at least $2,118,459,20 was recovered. Taken into custody during that operation were Alfredo Santos Reyes, a 34-year-old resident of Southgate; Cesar Martinez, a 41-year-old resident of Southgate; and Jorge Castillo, a 46-year-old resident of Southgate.

San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department personnel responded to or interrupted cargo stealing operations along the Burlington Northern Santa Fe and Union Pacific rail lines between Devore in the Cajon Pass and in the Mojave Desert of San Bernardino County on May 5, June 16, August 17 and August 24 of this year.

According to the U.S. Department of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, "armed crews of mostly illegal Mexican immigrants have looted many hundreds of millions of dollars in easily fenced merchandise from the railcars, financially strengthening one of Mexico's most murderous drug trafficking syndicates."

The U.S. Department of Immigration and Customs Enforcement says that evidence has been presented as part of "several federal court cases [that] the Sinaloa Cartel posts merchandise spotters at sea and airports to watch the trains load up with the likes of Nike shoes and electronics. They send notes about the valuable train cars to separate mobile robbing crews who drive ahead on the rail routes and wait."

An operation by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department in March recovered $7 million in stolen goods and led to nine arrests of foreign nationals breaking into rail cars. The previous month, the Los Angeles Police Department arrest five Mexican nations who specialized in stealing from rail cars. They were found to be in possession of $5 million worth of stolen merchandise.

ing seen or overheard by anyone at the city. Ochoa countered with an offer to take them back into City Hall, which by that point was empty, so they could converse in his office. The agents agreed, and Ochoa summoned City Attorney Ruben Duran to participate in the exchange, or at least be present as a witness.

While there is no publicly available record of precisely what questions were asked and what answers were given, the upshot of the exchange and its import can be extrapolated within certain parameters.

Given the limitations of Ochoa's city administrative function and his general range of authority, the back-and-forth he engaged in with the agents dwelt primarily upon his observations of activity at City Hall and the dynamics of the interpersonal relationships of the city officials, extending to the operations at the airport only insofar as they involved city personnel and articulated with municipal activities.

What came across as being unmistakable is that the FBI's presence in Ontario has not concluded and will involve multiple rounds of scrupulous examination. It appears that Wapner will go down by the time the first round concludes and that the outstanding question is how many others in the city or at the airport or those affiliated with the city or airport directly through him he will take with him in the succeeding phases of the investigation and prosecution. The exchanges between Ochoa and the three investigators established, the Sentinel is told, that Ochoa observed anomalies in how Wapner operated consistent with illegal or improper activity already charted in the investigation, but that, as city manager, he was too abstracted in running a municipal operation to make an exacting examination of the questionable or outright improper activity that was ongoing and he chose, essentially as it was termed to the Sentinel, to "see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil."

Among the points of commonality between the city and the airport authority were Wapner, as a city councilman and the chairman/president of the airport authority board; Bowman, as a city councilman and an airport authority board member; Claudia Isbell, the assistant city clerk who served as the airport authority board clerk and executive secretary; and Greg Devereaux, who had been the Ontario city manager fro, 1997 until 2010 and has been, since 2017 until the present, a consultant to both the city and to the airport authority.

Bowman, in his elected capacity as a city councilman, received, just as Wapner and Hagman had, political contributions from individuals and entities who were engaged in business with city and at the airport, a technical violation of California Government Code § 84308, also known as the Levine Act, which prohibits a government official from participating in decisions impacting a donor – i.e., voting to approve a contract with – a donor of $500 or more to his or her campaign. Wapner had received donations from owners and principals in businesses which had contracts with airport authority, in virtually every instance involving contributions of far greater monetary amounts than what had been provided to Bowman or Hagman.

Isbell, as the lead clerical staff member with the city and airport authority responsible for recording proceedings and keeping records relating to city council and airport board actions and administrative activity, served as the primary contact with the public for the provision of documents, records and information relating to city and airport authority operations. Over an extended period of time, as city residents and other members of the public were pressing for the release of information relating to aspects of airport authority operations and decisions by its board members and administrators, Isbell in compliance with Wapner's instructions and the assistance of Kevin P. Sullivan, a lawyer with the law firm of Gatzke Dillon & Ballance, which serves as general counsel to airport authority, consistently blocked or limited provision of that information.

Devereaux, who has been receiving a $20,000 per month retainer or $240,000 per year for his work as a city consultant and a $20,000 per month retainer or $240,000 per year for his work as a city consultant since 2017, was provided with those $480,000 per year sinecures based upon Wapner's insistence. Early on, some elements within the city referred to the consulting contract for managerial assistance with Devereaux and his company, Worthington Partners, for managerial assistance as "training wheels" for Ochoa, who began with the City of Ontario as city manager in November 2017. Ochoa, upon being hired, accepted the consulting arrangement as a temporary condition, though he considered the city's consulting contract with Devereaux and his company an assignation that was purposelessly redundant.

In two relatively minor respects, Devereaux's presence was of use to the city and therefore, to a certain extent, was tolerated or even welcomed by Ochoa.

Devereaux functioned as what was called "the great massager," for his utility in calming the alcoholic Bowman when he grew temperamental. While Bowman for the most part was under the thumb of the manipulative Wapner, he occasionally chaffed at being taken for granted and would tie one on, in which case Devereaux would swoop in and put him back on the wagon.

On occasion, Devereaux, who was also dubbed, the "land guru," would broker deals with developers where real estate transactions involving the city were at play. There were inconsistent accounts as to whether this was beneficial to the city in certain circumstances, with claims that the city had realized savings of money in some cases because of Devereaux's intercession.

Ochoa came to resent the unnecessary parallel to his function that Devereaux represented, but lived with it to avoid a run in with, and to appease, Wapner, who on one occasion.

Devereaux, who like Wapner had a juris doctor degree but had never passed the California bar exam to actually become a lawyer in the Golden State, was valued for his ability to assist government officials, in particular elected ones, around the pitfalls of the law. Among some government officials in San Bernardino County and especially in Ontario, he is referred to as "the Wizard." The FBI agents working the case pertaining to Ontario and Ontario International Airport, and reportedly some of those in the U.S. Attorney's Office to whom the case had been assigned, took to referring to Devereaux as the 'Consigliere," an indication that he, rather than Wapner or Hagman, is considered the brains of the operations that were turning a profit on the exploitations of the public trust that were occurring at the airport, in Ontario and the within a good portion of San Bernardino County's Fourth Supervisorial District.

FBI agents in examining the California Form 460s – the campaign reporting documents – filed by the politicians under scrutiny in this case discovered, as had local residents monitoring their elected leaders, that remarkably, Devereaux, whose bread and butter as the owner of Worthington Partners in large measure consisted of being able to influence top governmental decision-makers, did not, with only a few exceptions, show up as a major donor to political campaigns. This was, it appears, because Wapner understood the letter and the import of the Levine Act – California Government Code § 84308 – by which a politician is breaking the law if he or she takes $500 or more from someone and then takes action as a governmental official to benefit that donor. In this way, Devereaux was protecting not so much himself but the politicians he was working with or working for or working in conjunction with as a consultant or assistant or agent or lobbyist, whatever role he and Worthington Partners in that instance had taken on.

Recently, however, as FBI agents have continued to peel the onion layer by layer, they have come across elements of the scandal that had been buried or obscured so deeply that previously there was little prospect they would be discovered. One of these pertains to the use of, variously, political action committees or independent expenditure committees in an effort to get around California Government Code § 84308. Through the use of a committee, which is able to pool political donations from one, two, three or thousands of donors or any number in between, money can be delivered to a candidate or officeholder without the source of the money being readily recognized. In most cases the California Fair Political Practices Commission, the California Fair Political Practices Commission and county district attorney's offices, which have the authority to look into, investigate, evaluate and potentially prosecute violations of California Government Code § 84308 are stymied by the political money laundering that takes place when a political donation is provided to a third party before it is passed along to the intended recipient. The vast majority of state prosecutors would not pursue a California Government Code § 84308 theory in such a case. Those prosecutors that perhaps would do so, could be thwarted by a criminal defense that would assert that the money taken from the pool and provided to the politician in question did not necessarily originate from the donor who was benefited by the politician-in-question's vote. A jury in a state court might find that reasoning persuasive and vote to acquit the politician.

Under federal law, however, which has prohibitions very much like California Government Code § 84308 against a politician taking money from a donor and then voting to benefit that donor, there is a precedent case which establishes that taking money from a donor and then acting in an official capacity to benefit the donor meets is tantamount to bribe-taking.

Moreover, federal law with regard to efforts to conceal the source of funds delivered in the commission of bribery is far stronger than state law, such that such action, under a federal statue constitutes conspiracy, enhancing the seriousness of the offense and the punishment.

Earlier this year, on May 4, 2026, Devereaux provided $10,000 to the Grand Terrace-based California Parents Association Political Action Committee. That donation came in 11 days after the California Parents Association Political Action Committee donated $1,000 to Hagman's campaign and the California Parents Association Political Action Committee in the same time frame made a $1,000 in-kind contribution to Hagman's campaign in the form of campaign literature in support of his election. The California Parents Association Political Action Committee made an $8,500 contribution to Wapner's mayoral campaign on July 30, 2026.

On December 23, 2025, the California Parents Association Political Action Committee made a $30,000 to Wapner for Mayor on December 23, 2025

On November 13, 2025, the California Parents Association Political Action Committee made a $1,000 donation to the FH II Homebuilders, Inc. and president of the John P. Previti Memorial Foundation, a 501(c)(3) private foundation. He is a different person from his father, James P. Previti of Guardian Capital, whose contributions are not counted here.

Warren's filings show $36,699 from the two men and companies or organizations they lead. Each entry below was checked against the original statement:

Burum also gave $249 on October 18, 2024 to Warren for Cucamonga Valley Water District 2024, the campaign of the mayor's child, Aajee Warren; it is not included in the total. The San Bernardino County Sentinel reported that Burum gave $4,500 toward Warren's 2020 campaign. Her July to December 2020 statement, transcribed for this story, shows his $1,000 on July 24, 2020; her January to June 2020 statement, which would show any earlier 2020 contributions, is not posted online and was not reviewed. The 2021 contributions from FH II Homebuilders and the Previti foundation raise a limit question and a tax-law question (see item 2b).

A Previti-linked company bought Jeffrey Epstein's jet Counted together, Previti, FH II Homebuilders and the Previti foundation gave Warren's committee $26,200. That would place them eighth among the roughly 670 donors in the records reviewed, with other donors counted individually. In 2021, the same year FH II and the Previti foundation gave to Warren again, a company tied to Previti and his businesses became the registered owner of Jeffrey Epstein's private jet.

By then Epstein's sex crimes were a matter of public record. In June 2008 he pleaded guilty in Florida state court to felony solicitation of prostitution and to procuring a minor for prostitution, a charge that required him to register as a sex offender, according to a 2020 U.S. Justice Department report. On July 8, 2019, federal prosecutors in Manhattan charged him with sex trafficking of minors and conspiracy to traffic minors. He died in federal custody at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in New York on August 10, 2019; the New York City medical examiner ruled the death a suicide, according to the Justice Department's inspector general.

The jet is a Gulfstream G550, serial number 5173, which Epstein owned under tail number N212JE through his company Plan D LLC, according to Newsweek. Business Insider reported in August 2024, citing the Miami Herald, that Epstein's estate sold it to N550GP LLC for $10.6 million, below its $17 million asking price. The Federal Aviation Administration's aircraft registry lists the jet, serial number 5173, as a 2007 model under the tail number N550GP. Its registered owner is N550GP LLC, 2151 E. Convention Center Way, Suite 222, Ontario. The registry gives a certificate issue date of February 24, 2021, shows a temporary registration certificate issued July 22, 2021, and lists the registration as valid through February 29, 2028. The registry's document index also shows two security agreements, documents typically filed when an aircraft is pledged as collateral for a loan, received for N550GP on June 5, 2026; the index does not name the parties.

N550GP LLC was formed in California on December 10, 2020. California business records list its address as 2151 E. Convention Center Way, Suite 222, in Ontario, the same suite The Previti Group lists as its office, and name Richard Munkvold as its manager. Munkvold is secretary and chief financial officer of FH II Homebuilders and an officer of the Previti foundation, and his 2018 contributions on San Bernardino County's NetFile portal list his employer as Frontier Enterprises, Previti's company, and his occupation as chief financial officer. Business Insider reported, citing the Miami Herald, that N550GP LLC's corporate documents were signed by an employee of Frontier Communities, the company's name before it became The Previti Group, and, citing the flight-tracking firm JetSpy, that the jet "is operated by James L. Previti."

The jet is managed by Threshold Aviation Group, a charter company at Chino Airport, which makes it available for hire. In August 2024 Donald Trump's presidential campaign used it for a weekend of campaign stops, including Jackson, Wyoming and Aspen, Colorado, after its usual plane was grounded. A campaign spokeswoman told the Miami Herald the campaign had no awareness that the plane had been owned by Epstein, and Quartz reported that the campaign said it would avoid using the plane in the future.

Neither Previti nor Threshold Aviation responded to Business Insider's requests for comment. The records reviewed name N550GP LLC as the buyer and owner but do not show who owns the LLC or whose money paid for the jet. The purchase does not appear on Fontana's or San Bernardino County's NetFile portals, which record only political contributions and spending. The bill of sale and registration application are part of the aircraft's FAA record, which can be ordered from the agency but was not obtained for this story. Buying an aircraft once owned by Epstein is not itself evidence of wrongdoing.

Loans to a family member's campaign

Warren's committee reported six loans to Warren for Cucamonga Valley Water District 2024 between August and December 2024, plus a $500 contribution on August 12. Aajee Warren's committee reported receiving loans in the same amounts, some on different dates.

Aajee Warren received 7,602 votes (48.8%) to Mark Gibboney's 7,975 (51.2%), according to San Bernardino County's official results.

The Fair Political Practices Commission says the state's default local contribution limits do not apply to special district races such as this one. The water district had no contribution limit of its own in 2024. Its board adopted one, Chapter 2.22 of the district code (Ord. No. 2025-9-1), on September 9, 2025. It took effect January 1, 2026 and caps contributions at $5,900 per person per election, the FPPC's AB 571 amount at the time. It also requires every loan to a candidate to be made under a written agreement filed with the campaign statement that first reports the loan. It postdates the 2024 loans. Warren's committee's most recent Form 460, covering September 20 to October 17, 2026, lists all six loans as still outstanding, $66,611.82 in all, with no payments received and nothing forgiven. Each was due January 1, 2026. Later filings list no new lending to the committee.

In the same months, Warren's committee lent $24,564 and gave $500 to Fort for Etiwanda School District 2024, the campaign of Cathline Fort, who has given $1,150 to Warren's committees. The same October 2026 report lists all six Fort loans, $24,564, as outstanding; they were also due January 1, 2026.

Aajee Warren's campaign website says she works as a water resources analyst for Royal Blue Consulting. California Secretary of State business records, as republished by the directory BizProfile, list Acquanetta Warren as the manager of Royal Blue Consulting, LLC, a Fontana company formed in June 2015 (entity No. 201518110199). Her 2024 opponent, Mark Gibboney, wrote on his campaign site that the firm had no clients and that Aajee Warren's contract with it began March 1, 2024; the Sentinel has not verified those claims. The Sentinel has not reviewed the company's filing with the Secretary of State directly or the mayor's Form 700 entries for it. A 2021 FPPC settlement, described under Past enforcement, shows the mayor did not timely report Royal Blue Consulting as a source of income on her 2018, 2019 and 2020 statements.

Date (as reported by Warren's committee)	Loan To Aajee Warren
Aug 9, 2024	$1,878.00
Aug 23, 2024	$10,000.00
Nov 6, 2024	$20,000.00
Nov 22, 2024	$21,000.84
Dec 5, 2024	$682.98
Dec 27, 2024	$13,050.00
Total	$66,611.82

Money to other campaigns

Besides the two 2024 campaigns, most loans recorded went to candidates in 2022 local races. Warren's committee later recorded the following loans as forgiven:

Campaign	Loans forgiven
Joe Armendarez for School Board 2022	$18,505.00
Lauren Gomez for Fontana School Board 2022	$9,620.00
Committee to Re-elect Janet Koehler-Brooks City Treasurer 2022	$8,100.00
Martinez for Fontana School Board 2022	$7,409.18
Germaine Key for Fontana City Clerk 2022	$7,275.00
Don English for Chaffey Joint Unified School Trustee Area 4 2022	$7,000.00
Adam Perez for Fontana School Board 2022	$4,000.00
Jesse Armendarez for Fontana City Council 2020	$3,670.00
Israel Fuentes Jr for Colton School Board 2022	$3,000.00
Total	$68,579.18

Warren's committees also made 12 payments totaling $8,600 to churches and ministries in the records reviewed, all coded as civic donations: Ephesian New Testament Church ($4,000), Decently & In Order Ministry ($2,200), Crosspointe Church ($1,000, in 2014), Mt Zion Church of Ontario ($1,000), New Life Christian Church ($300), and South Side Bethel Baptist Church ($100). The 2014 statement also reports $400 to RJ Jackson for "Sponsorship for the Saturday Morning Christian Women's group," coded as a civic donation. State law (Government Code §89515) allows campaign funds to be donated to bona fide charitable, civic or religious nonprofits, provided no substantial part of the money will have a material financial effect on the candidate, the treasurer or their families. No transactions with Water of Life Church appear in the records reviewed.

Potential violations and legal questions

The items below are potential violations or open legal questions drawn from the filings. None has been found to be a violation by any agency, and each depends on facts the records do not fully show. The review tested every donor's calendar-year total against Fontana's limit for 2021 through 2026, checked spelling variants of the same name, and tested the money Warren's committee gave to Fontana city candidates against the same ordinance.

1. Money to the city clerk and treasurer races above Fontana's limit

Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b) bars any person from giving a candidate for mayor, city clerk, or city treasurer more than the §85303(a) amount per calendar year, which was $8,100 in 2022. A committee counts as a person, and state law (Government Code §84216) treats a loan to a campaign as a contribution.

In 2022, Warren's committee reported giving the reelection campaign of City Treasurer Janet Koehler-Brooks $18,600 and the campaign of City Clerk Germaine Key $19,350. All but $250 was made as loans:

Date (2022)	Koehler-Brooks for City Treasurer	Key for City Clerk
Jul 12	—	$250.00
Aug 11	$5,923.00	$5,923.00
Aug 19	$2,177.00	$2,177.00
Sep 12	$5,000.00	$6,000.00
Oct 11	$5,500.00	$5,000.00
Total	$18,600.00	$19,350.00

On October 20, 2022, Warren's committee recorded $8,100 of the Koehler-Brooks loans and $7,275 of the Key loans as forgiven. Key's committee separately reported an $825 in-kind contribution from Warren's committee on September 6, 2022. Both candidates won in November 2022. Warren's committee's Schedule H filings show how the rest was settled. Key's campaign repaid $11,825, including the full September 12 and October 11 loans and $825 of the August 11 loan, by October 22, 2022. Koehler-Brooks's campaign repaid $10,500: $7,000 by October 22, 2022, and the last $3,500 by December 31, 2022. The forgiven amounts match the $7,275 and $8,100 above. Warren's filings put the year's total to Key's campaign, counting the in-kind contribution, at $20,175.

Potential laws: Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b); Government Code §84216. Whether loans that were later repaid count against the city limit is a question for the city and the FPPC. The candidates' own filings, which would show how they reported the money, are not in the exports.

1a. The same pattern in 2026

Both offices were on the ballot again in 2026, when the limit is $9,800. Warren's filings on the city's NetFile portal, including reports filed after this review's September 30 cutoff, show:

Germaine Key for Fontana City Clerk 2026 received $11,217.50 from Warren's committee: $2,000 on July 29, $951 in kind on August 18, a $2,534 loan on August 24, $1,087.50 in kind on August 31, and $4,645 in kind on October 8. That is $1,417.50 over the limit. Key's committee reported the same items, listing one on September 1 rather than August 31. Key repaid $2,000 of the loan between September 20 and October 17, leaving $534 outstanding. Without the repaid $2,000, the total would be $9,217.50.

Armendarez for City Treasurer 2026, the committee of Joseph Armendarez, received $9,912.62: $4,673 on August 6, $951 on August 18, $1,087.50 on September 3, $2,534 on September 30, and $667.12 on October 2. That is $112.62 over the limit. The amounts are as Warren's committee reported them; Armendarez's committee reported the $4,673 item under a September 16 date.

Through September 30, both totals were under $9,800; the October contributions put them over. The same question applies as in 2022: whether repaid loans count against the city limit. Potential law: Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b).

2. A 2025 total above Fontana's limit

California Parents Association PAC gave Warren's 2026 committee $2,500 on May 12, 2025, and $8,000 in December 2025. That is $10,500 in one calendar year, $700 over the $9,800 limit.

Both sides' filings agree. Warren's committee reports receiving $8,000 on December 22, 2025; the PAC, which files with San Bernardino County, reports making it on December 10, 2025. No refund of the excess appears in the records reviewed. The PAC gave another $5,000 in 2026, within that year's limit. Potential law: Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b).

2a. 2021 and 2022: money over the limit, assigned to a later election

Fontana's limit has applied per calendar year since Ord. No. 1857 took effect on January 7, 2021, 30 days after its adoption; it was $8,100 in both 2021 and 2022. Warren's statements for 2021 and January to June 2022, which were not in the export, show four donors above it, counting Bel-Air Swap Meets and its owner Hae Park as one, as the committee did. In each case the committee's "per election" column assigns the excess to a later election instead of refunding it:

Under the committee's own per-election accounting, two 2022 totals are also over the limit.. Reggie King's is $10,000: the $1,900 it assigned to 2022 plus the $8,100 he gave on October 3, 2022. Bel-Air and Hae Park's is $15,000: the $6,900 assigned to 2022 plus the $8,100 Park gave on December 1, 2022. Pallet Market's $6,200 on September 2, 2022 brought its 2022 total under the same accounting to exactly $8,100. Two other donors, Shina Park and Eunice Park, also list their occupation as owner policy violated the state's education code. The suit drew attention to criticisms of Shaw, in particular charges that she was close-minded and bigoted.

Shaw said she stood by her commitment to safeguard parents' rights and that she was not seeking to stifle intellectual curiosity or block students' access to a wide variety of cross-cultural exposure but wanted to "ensure that sexually explicit material is not placed in the hands of children in our schools."

Unfortunately for Shaw, while she expressed confidence that "parents overwhelmingly expect us to exercise that control," in many different forums and contexts her political opponents and Becerra were able to allege that she was an anti-intellectual who was intent on limiting the education of students.

Under the district's book-challenging policy, calls were made to remove the Bible based on the its sexual content as well as "Juliet Takes a Breath" by Gabby Rivera; "A Court of Mist and Fury" by Sarah J. Maas; "More Happy Than Not" by Adam Silvera; "Looking for Alaska" by John Green; and "Beloved" by Toni Morrison. All but the Bible were removed. This entails gross anti-intellectualism, which is unacceptable in an individual who is to head up the state's effort to educate its youth, Shaw's critics say.

Though many parents raising their children want common-sense principles to be applied in the education of their children and are opposed to subjecting their children to ideological indoctrination, the vast majority of those fall somewhere safely within the mainstream, not too far to the left nor to the right. Zealotry either way is nothing they want in the schools entrusted with their children. Though Shaw had established herself as someone resisting the radical progressivism that was present among many involved in the teaching profession, to a good cross section of the public she had swung too far toward rightwing radicalism.

Barrera as much as conceded that a majority of the state's parents agree with Shaw's positions regarding transsexualism, but that on other culture war issues she is out of step with the majority of voters.

Barrera said, "Most parents in this state are not in favor of restricting access to books for students," he said.

Shaw simply does not appreciate the concept of there being a separation between church and state, her critics say. They site the school board she heads having resurrected the move toward permitting school prayer, three years after the U.S. Supreme Court in 2022 made a ruling in the case of Kennedy v. Bremerton School District, which dealt with a football coach's praying with members of his team on the field in a game setting.The nation's highest court, in a 6-to-3 ruling said that before prohibiting prayer straight out, a governmental entity should consider "historical practices and understandings" with regard to prayer in the particular community involved.

Na, Cruz, Shaw and Monroe, heartened by the Kennedy v. Bremerton decision, in July 2025, despite the district's resounding 2016 loss at the trial court level and its loss at the appellate level in 2018, sought to roll the dice in an effort to test the school prayer issue once more. The district retained Advocates for Faith & Freedom, a Murrieta-based nonprofit law firm specializing in issues relating to religious liberty to represent it with regard to what was generically described as "anticipated litigation." On July 31, 2025 Advocates for Faith & Freedom, on behalf of the district, filed with the Federal District Court in Riverside for relief from Judge Bernal's 2016 injunction enjoining the board from permitting or endorsing prayers during meetings.

The district's filing incorporated wording from the Supreme Court's decision in the Kennedy v. Bremerton case.

In a statement heralding the lawsuit, Shaw insisted that the district had "welcomed voices of all faiths without coercion or preference." She said that secular "groups driven by political agendas" had straitjacketed the district into having "to abandon a unifying tradition," namely prayer recitation. "We will not quietly surrender our right to reflect the values of our community and the freedoms our nation was built upon," Shaw vowed.

Others, however, pointed out that the district had not permitted school board meetings to be kicked off with prayers or homilies or invocations from the standpoint of, for example, Moslems, who might call, devoutly, for the beheading of infidels. For that reason, to prevent the perception of one religion being favored over another, it was the belief of many that all religion - Christianity, Catholicism, Protestantism, Judaism, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Zoroastrianism, Paganism, Universalism - be left out of the schools.

The Freedom From Religion Foundation, which was paid $282,602 by the district to cover its legal expenses in the legal go-round between it and the district in 2014 to 2018, immediately reacted to the filing, and stepped in to oppose the district's petition.

As a matter of course, the case was routed to Judge Bernal. Based on his familiarity with the subject matter and being up to speed with regard to the case law pertaining to the full range of issues involved.

In the meantime, Shaw, who most likely could have been easily reelected to the school board if she ran again this year, is forgoing keeping that bird in her hand in favor of seeking the bird in the bush of being state superintendent of schools superintendent.

It is of note that in the field of education and education reform, where one ends up often has a lot to do with where that person started.

Comparing and contrasting Shaw to two remarkable education system reformists/standard setters - Madalyn Murray O'Hair and Max Rafferty - it is immediately recognized that o'Hair and Rafferty each enjoyed an advantage that Shaw does not: being steeped deep in the discipline of academia that all three were so intent on influencing.

O'Hair held a bachelor's degree from Ashland University and had earned a law degree from the South Texas College of Law, though she never passed a bar exam in any of the states in which she resided. Rafferty earned his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of California, Los Angeles and went on to get doctorate in eduction from the University of Southern California.

O'Hair and her experience is relevant to Shaw, in that she proved successful in pushing educational policy in the exact opposite direction from that sought by Shaw, doing so in a venue larger than the State of California and in such a way that her reforms have been in place now for three generations. Rafferty was on the same side of the political spectrum as Shaw, and was the successful in being elected to the same office to which Shaw aspires, California superintendent of public instruction, a position he held from 1963 to 1971. He was able to effectuate policy changes and educational approaches throughout the state as California was becoming the largest state in the country. Rafferty began his teaching career in San Bernardino County, first teaching in the Trona Unified School District, then becoming an assistant principal and a prinicpal at Big Bear High School and then a superintendent in the Needles School District.

Though Shaw and her supporters make the case that the immersion of the state's educators - its teachers, principals, superintendents and the top staff in the California Department of Education in in the liberal atmosphere of academia is in large measure a part of the problem with the educational system in California, that she is unfamiliar with the atmospherics of learn and is not a participant in the classroom culture has left here outsife the culture she needs to be able to move through to effectuate the change she envisions. It has also limited her in the skill set needed to wield the machinery of a large bureaucracy.

Polling shows Shaw running substantially behind Barrera. The latest available poll has him comfortably ahead of her, at 51 percent to 35 percent, with 14 percent undecided.

Running in her place in Board Area 3 is her husband, Chris Shaw. According to polling data, he is running behind his competitor, Frank Gerdine, with 37 percent of those likely to vote backing him and Gerdine favored by 48 percent of voters polled, with 15 percent undecided.

Hagman for Supervisor campaign. On June 30, 2025, the California Parents Association Political Action Committee made a $9,000 donation to the Wapner for Council campaign.

Previously, Wapner had prepared his California Form 460 campaign finance documents himself, but had his wife, Judi, as his campaign treasurer, sign them. Wapner at that time was functioning under the impression that having his wife serve as his campaign treasurer would give him a layer of protection, since as his wife, she could not be forced to testify against him. More recently, however, he was informed that their husband/wife status would afford him no shield, since she had signed the California Form 460 documents under the penalty of perjury.

Those documents are problematic for Wapner.

An examination of his Form 460s shows that between January 2021 and December 2025, Wapner utilized $89,287.54 to pay for airfare for his wife to travel with him on 61 trips, 51 within the United States and ten international, entailing 302 days of travel on her part. Another $11,579.65 of his electioneering money was spent on hotel rooms for his wife. Another $1,309.20 from his campaign fund was spent on meals and incidentals for his wife. In this way, Wapner's political war chest was used to defray $102,120.95 on his wife's travel expenses. The California Political Reform Act, adopted by Proposition 9 in 1974, established clear limits regarding the use of campaign funds by candidates and politicians for travel expenditures. Under the California Political Reform Act, there is no general allowance for a politician's spouse to use a candidate's campaign funds for personal travel, including "defraying travel costs," unless that travel is directly for a lawful, political purpose and complies with the act's travel rules. In this way, Wapner's use of money to cover his wife's travel costs was illegal.

On some of the trips, the Wapners were accompanied by the Devereauxs, that being Greg Devereaux and his wife, Bertha Chavoya. Based upon information provided to the FBI by others who were also present during those excursions, Bertha on occasion made purchases, at costs exceeding thousands of dollars, of designer clothes, handbags and other accessories for Judi Wapner.

Federal investigators have undertaken efforts, sources close to Ontario City Hall have told the Sentinel, to examine records relating to Greg Devereaux's banking records to see if they provide indications of cash withdrawals matching reports of kickbacks made by Devereaux to Wapner.

Some Of Warren's Fundraising May Have Skirted The Law from page 8

of Bel-Air Swap Meets; Shina Park gave $8,100 on May 11, 2022 and Eunice Park $4,500 on August 8, 2022. Whether their contributions should be combined with Bel-Air's under Government Code §85311 depends on who directs and controls the company's giving, which the filings do not show. The statements show the committee did refund excess money in one case. It returned $1,296.47 to Cole Burr in December 2021, holding his 2021 total, including an in-kind reception, to $8,100. Fontana's code applies the limit per calendar year and says nothing about carrying contributions forward to a later election. Potential law: Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b).

2 b. In 2021, came into Warren's political war chest from two Previti entities

FH II Homebuilders, Inc. gave Warren's committee $8,100 on May 24, 2021, and the John P. Previti Memorial Foundation gave $5,000 on December 1, 2021. Business filings list James L. Previti as FH II's chief executive and a director, and IRS filings list him as the foundation's president; both list Richard Munkvold as an officer. State law combines an entity's contributions with those of the person who directs and controls them (Government Code §85311). If Previti directed both contributions, the 2021 total was $13,100, $5,000 over Fontana's $8,100 limit. The filings do not show who directed them. Separately, federal tax law bars a 501(c)(3) organization from contributing to a political campaign, and a private foundation's spending to influence an election is a taxable expenditure. Potential laws: Fontana Municipal Code §7-27(b); Government Code §85311; Internal Revenue Code §§501(c)(3) and 4945(d)(2).

3. Assembly money after a 2010 primary loss

In 2010, state law limited contributions to Assembly candidates to $3,900 per election ($7,800 for small contributor committees). A candidate may collect general-election money before the primary but must refund it pro rata if defeated, under Government Code §85318.

Fourteen contributors gave Warren's Assembly committee more than $3,900, so part of their money could only have counted toward the general election. One of them, the San Bernardino Public Employees Association, is a PAC; even at the $7,800 small-contributor committee limit, its $8,300 total is higher:

Contributor	Received	Amount	Calendar-year total	Over	How the committee recorded it
Bel-Air Swap Meets, Inc.	May 12, 2021	$10,000	$10,000	$1,900	$8,100 to 2021, $1,900 to 2022
Hae Park, owner of Bel-Air Swap Meets	Nov 16, 2021	5,000	15,000 with Bel-Air	$6,900	Combined with Bel-Air in the committee's own total, so the $6,900 includes Bel-Air's $1,900; $8,100 to 2021, $6,900 to 2022
Reggie King	May 12, 2021	$10,000	$10,000	$1,900	$8,100 to 2021, $1,900 to 2022
Pallet Market, Inc.	Dec 28, 2021	$10,000	$10,000	$1,900	$8,100 to 2021, $1,900 to 2022
David Wiener	May 7 and Nov 19, 2021	$8,100 + $500	$8,600	$500	$500 to 2022
David Wiener	Feb 2 and Dec 1, 2022	$7,600 + $1,000	$8,600	$500	December gift designated for the 2026 election; filing lists his 2022 total as $1,000

Warren lost the June 8, 2010 Republican primary. The records show no refunds to these contributors. They do show the Assembly committee transferring $9,285.32 to "Citizens and Friends of Acquanetta Warren" on June 30, 2010, and $115.91 to her 2010 mayoral committee on September 30, 2010.

The Assembly committee (Secretary of State ID 1315947) filed with the state. Its Cal-Access record shows it terminated on September 30, 2010 with an ending cash balance of zero, after $246,099.03 in expenditures for 2010. Its itemized expenditures list no refunds to contributors. Potential laws: Government Code §85318, the per-election limit in §85301, and the small contributor committee limit in §85302.

4. A union contribution missing from Warren's receipts

Laborers Local Union No. 783 PAC reported giving Warren's committee $1,000 on April 21, 2023. No matching receipt appears in the committee's 2023 filings, either in the export or in a search of every e-filed transaction on the city's NetFile portal. The portal does show Local 783 giving Warren's committee $2,500 on April 30, 2025, and giving Germaine Key's 2022 campaign $1,000. A check of filings by state-registered donors, as compiled by Transparency USA from the Secretary of State's records, turned up four more contributions that do not appear in Warren's committee's e-filed statements under any name: $500 from Edison International and Affiliated Entities on June 24, 2025; $1,200 from Patrick Mahoney and West Coast Arborists, Inc. on November 14, 2025; $1,500 from the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation on November 21, 2025; and $500 from the Edison International Civic Action Committee on October 9, 2026. They total $3,700. Each donor reports the payment as a contribution to Warren's campaign. They are also absent from the water board committee's filings. Warren's statements do list other contributions from three of the four donors on other dates, including $1,200 from West Coast Arborists on May 2, 2025 and April 16, 2026, and $5,000 from the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation on October 10, 2026. Potential law: Government Code §84211(f), which requires committees to report every contributor who gives $100 or more.

Contributor	Total to Warren's Assembly Committee
San Bernardino Public Employees Association	$8,300
David Wiener	$7,800
Lia Wiener	$7,800
Michael Wiener	$7,800
Reggie King	$7,800
Burrtec Waste Industries, Inc.	$7,800
J.W. Mitchell Land Company, LLC	$7,400
Joshua LaBarge	$6,800
Scott Beard	$6,250
Fontana IV Housing Partners, L.P.	$5,900
Michele Wiener	$5,000
TCM Group	$5,000
Corona Hills Market Place	$5,000
10668 Sierra, LLC	$5,000

5. Loans to a family member's campaign

No contribution limit appears to apply to the $66,611.82 lent to Aajee Warren's water board campaign, because the FPPC says the state's default limits do not cover special districts, and the district's own limit did not take effect until January 1, 2026. The legal question is how the money was used. State law requires campaign spending to be reasonably related to a political, legislative or governmental purpose, and spending that gives a substantial personal benefit must be directly related to such a purpose. Most of the loans came after the election, when the campaign could no longer win votes. Warren's committee's October 2026 filing shows none of it repaid. Aajee Warren's own filings, described below, show what the money paid for.

What the water board campaign bought. Warren for Cucamonga Valley Water District 2024 (state ID 1475176) files with the San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters. Its Form 460s from January 2024 through June 2026 report $179,219.59 in spending, $178,376.05 of it itemized. In 2024 it raised $141,296 in contributions and borrowed $66,611.82 from the mayor's committee. It spent $178,019.29 that year, $107,554.75 of it by October 19. Its itemized payments, grouped by the payees and FPPC expenditure codes it reported, break down this way:

The campaign's itemized payments include nothing to Royal Blue Consulting, Aajee Warren, the mayor or any other member of the Warren family. It also paid Stephen Dunn for treasury services; a Stephen Dunn is paid for professional services in Warren's 2010 Assembly committee records, is listed as treasurer of the Koehler-Brooks committee, and signed Warren's 2014 mayoral statement as its treasurer.

What the loans paid for. The campaign's records line up with the mayor's loans. Four of the six loans equal a specific payment, or one day's payments, to the cent, and a fifth roughly matches a day's payments. The four loans made after the election paid for campaign literature and TV or cable production. The payments were made after the election; the filings do not say when the work was done:After the election. After losing, the committee kept raising money but spent little of it. Itemized contributions from November 7 to December 31, 2024 total $31,375, including $20,000 from David Wiener on December 26 and $5,000 from Fleet Yards Inc. In 2025 it raised $33,500, including $10,000 from Burrtec Waste Industries, Inc. on March 31 and $13,000 from P. V. Consulting. Its donors include several who also give to the mayor's committees, among them David Wiener, Burrtec, Hae Park and Luis Echeverria. From January 2025 through June 2026 the committee spent $1,200.30: credit card fees, $500 for treasury services and a $500 contribution to David Rouzer for Congress.

Its most recent report, for January 1 to June 30, 2026, shows $62,188.73 in cash and $66,611.82 in outstanding debt, the full amount of the mayor's loans. Its filings show no payment on them.

Potential law: Government Code §89512 (use of campaign funds).

6. Smaller items

• In 2025, Final Touch Construction & Design gave $6,600, and Luis Echeverria, who lists the occupation office manager there, gave $3,500. State law (Government Code §85311) combines an individual's and a company's contributions when the individual directs and controls the company's contributions, or owns more than half of the company, unless they act independently; the records do not show whether that applies.

• In 2010, several donors gave Warren's 2010 local committees more than $5,000: Green Hills Landscape ($15,000), Fontana Police Officers Association PAC ($15,000), All-Specks, Inc. ($10,000), the Wiener Family Survivor's Trust ($10,000) and The Related Companies of California ($8,153.08). None of those amounts exceeded a city limit, because Fontana had no dollar limit then. The same was true in 2020, when David Wiener gave Warren's current committee $25,000 on July 28, $20,000 on September 18 and $10,000 on October 14, the largest contributions from a single donor in the records reviewed. From Ord. No. 1495 (December 20, 2005) until Ord. No. 1857 (December 8, 2020), §7-27 said only that contribution limits for candidates "shall follow the state's regulations." That is the text in the April 2012 version of the code archived on Municode. The section's history notes list no other change between 2005 and 2020. State law set no limit on contributions to city candidates in that period. The limits in Government Code §85301 apply to candidates for state office, and the FPPC's AB 571 fact sheet says the Political Reform Act did not impose a contribution limit on city and county candidates in 2020. The first dollar limits for Fontana candidates took effect January 7, 2021, 30 days after the council adopted Ord. No. 1857.

Apart from the items above, the review found no donor above Fontana's annual limit from 2021 through 2026. The export lacks donor addresses, so it cannot test for straw donors or for contributors sharing a household. The city's NetFile portal lists each e-filed donor's city and ZIP code, which would allow a partial test.

Past enforcement and news coverage

The only enforcement action found against Warren concerns her personal financial disclosures, not her campaign. On September 16, 2021, the FPPC fined her $900 (case No. 21/597) for failing to timely disclose sources of income, travel payments, and gifts on her 2018, 2019, and 2020 annual Statements of Economic Interests, in violation of Government Code §§87206 and 87207 (nine counts). The stipulation lists the nine items: Royal Blue Consulting as a source of income on her 2018, 2019 and 2020 statements; two 2018 travel payments from what it calls a foreign government association; and four 2018 gifts, from the People's Consulate of China, the Chinese People's Association of Friendship, the People's Government of Baoying County and the People's Congress of Yunnan Province. Royal Blue Consulting is the company, described earlier in this story, that state business records list Warren as managing and where Aajee Warren's campaign website says she works. The case was handled through the FPPC's streamlined penalty program.

A June 2014 FPPC release lists a $400 fine against the Maldonado Ballot Measure Committee to Protect California Families and "Acquanette Warren, Treasurer" for failing to file a 2013 campaign statement electronically on time. The case is FPPC No. 14/002. The release and the stipulation spell the name differently and give no address. A May 2013 Santa Maria Sun article on Abel Maldonado's campaign to repeal AB 109 named "Fontana Mayor Acquanetta Warren" among the committee's members. That makes it likely the treasurer is the mayor, but the Sentinel has not confirmed it.

This review's searches of FPPC enforcement releases and news coverage found no fine or finding against Warren's own campaign committees. The San Bernardino County Sentinel has written about her fundraising and her support for allied candidates, reporting in October 2022 that her campaign account held more than $331,325.16. That is the ending cash balance on the committee's January to June 2022 statement, which also reports $72,263.53 in spending for those six months, the figure the Sentinel cited.

Every contributor

All 672 contributors to Warren's committees in the records, with each one's committees, number of contributions and total, are listed in Warren's campaign records, linked under Sources at the end of this story. Contributing to a campaign is legal, and appearing on the list implies no wrongdoing.

How this review was done

The source is a 3,240-row export of campaign filings from Fontana's disclosure system covering Warren's committees and filers that reported transactions with them, from 2003 through September 30, 2026.

• Contributions counted are those Warren's committees reported receiving monetary (Form 460 Schedule A), in-kind (Schedule C), and late contributions (Form 497). Interest income and loans received were excluded. Money Warren's committee gave or lent to others comes from its Schedule D (contributions made), Schedule H (loans made), and Schedule E entries marked "Loan Forgiven."

• Rows from superseded filings were dropped in favor of their amendments. Late-contribution reports already repeated on a later Form 460 were counted once.

• A Warren for Cucamonga Valley Water District 2024 committee in the export received money from Warren's committee rather than giving to it, and is excluded.

• Limits were tested by calendar year per donor, as Fontana's ordinance specifies. The 2021 and 2022 tests include the recovered scanned statements, transcribed by hand; each transcribed page was checked against the statement's own subtotals. The 2014 statement's contributions were transcribed the same way, and every page matched its subtotal. Two 2014 donors whose names resemble later donors, Stephen Lambert and Salah Michael Tahan, are listed separately because the filings do not show they are the same people. The "2022" and "2026" committee names share state ID 1256423 and are treated as one committee. On October 27, 2026, the story's figures were rechecked against the original filings on Fontana's and San Bernardino County's NetFile portals and on Cal-Access. The loan, forgiveness, top-donor and limit findings matched. On October 30, 2026, the 2010 Assembly committee's contributions were checked line by line against the Secretary of State's Power Search database and Cal-Access. Power Search reports $307,017.86 in 294 contributions; that figure includes $3,998.02 in unitemized contributions, a $2,000 loan from Janice Rutherford for City Council, a $2,000 loan from Cook for Assembly 2010 and an $822.89 loan from Warren, none of which this story counts. The check found one error in the earlier count: a single $1,000 contribution from the CA Independent Petroleum PAC (listed in Power Search as CIPAC State PAC), reported on an original and an amended late-contribution report and again on the committee's statement, had been counted three times. It is now counted once. A second line-by-line check against Cal-Access the same day found that the $2,000 received from Cook for Assembly 2010 on May 19, 2010, which the committee's statement lists as a loan, had been counted as a contribution. It is now excluded, like the other loans. Also on October 30, every e-filed contribution in the review was matched against a fresh download of the city's NetFile records, with no differences in date, contributor or amount, and every page of the scanned 2021 and 2022 statements and the 2014 paper statement was re-read against the original. The July to December 2020 statement was transcribed the same day; each of its 16 pages of contributions matches its printed subtotal, and together they match the statement's itemized total of $149,307.20. One date was changed: a $1,500 contribution from David Reynolds that the January to June 2021 statement lists as received July 10, 2020 had been entered as July 10, 2021; it is now shown as filed. The committee's 2022 report counts it toward 2021. Contributions that state-registered donors report giving Warren's local committees were also compared with Transparency USA's compilation of state filings (see item 4). Donors were grouped by industry from their names and the employer and occupation reported on e-filed statements and in Power Search; donors in the scanned statements were grouped only where their business is evident from the name or from other filings. Contributions from Burum, Previti and their companies were identified by name, employer and business address and checked against the original statements. On October 30, 2026, the money Warren's committee gave and lent to others was recounted from its e-filed statements for July 1, 2022 through September 30, 2026, using amended statements in place of the originals they replaced. Its Schedule D lists 108 contributions and loans totaling $276,794.52 to 59 recipients, named as filed. That includes 33 loans totaling $171,376.62, which also appear on Schedule H, and $30,423.43 in goods and services. Five late-contribution reports the committee filed in 2022 list another $6,429 to four school board campaigns (Lauren Gomez, Martinez, Adam Perez and Gordon) that does not appear on its statements; it is not included. The committee's Schedule E lists 21 loan forgiveness entries totaling $68,579.18, matching the table above.

Constraints

The export is incomplete. Follow-up searches of Cal-Access, the city's NetFile portal and other public records closed some of its gaps; the rest are listed below.

2010 mayoral contributions not checked against a filing. Of the $130,004.31 counted for Warren's 2010 mayoral committees, $110,103.08 in 54 contributions comes only from the data export of Fontana's campaign filings. The 2010 mayoral statements themselves are not posted online, so these contributions could not be checked against an original filing: their contributors and amounts are as the export lists them, and their dates are not known. The other $19,901.23 was confirmed in state records: four contributions totaling $10,500 that donors reported to the Secretary of State, and the two transfers, totaling $9,401.23, from Warren's Assembly committee. The 2010 mayoral statements are public records that can be requested from the Fontana City Clerk under the California Public Records Act; this review has not obtained them.

2014 and 2018 campaigns. Fontana stopped accepting electronic campaign filings in 2011, the San Bernardino County Sentinel reported, and did not require them again until the City Council adopted an e-filing ordinance on December 14, 2021. The city went fully paperless with Ord. No. 1942 in April 2024. Statements for Warren's 2014 and 2018 races would have been filed on paper with the City Clerk; the city's NetFile portal holds her committee's statements only from July 2020 on. They are public records and can be requested under the California Public Records Act.

The Sentinel reported in November 2014 that Warren had raised $173,622 for that year's race. It named Reggie King ($50,000), Hae Park, Yoon Kim, Richland Management, and David Wiener ($10,000 each) among the donors. Those figures come from the newspaper, not from filings reviewed for this story. Fontana had no dollar limit on contributions to its candidates in 2014 (see item 6). No 2018 fundraising totals were found online. Warren won in 2018 with 56.4% of the vote, according to Ballotpedia.

The reporter obtained one of the 2014 statements: the Form 460 for July 1 to September 30, 2014, filed on paper and stamped received by the City Clerk on October 6, 2014. It was filed by "Citizens and Friends of Acquanetta Warren for Mayor 2014," under the same state ID, 1256423, as the current committee, and signed by treasurer Stephen Dunn. It itemizes 37 contributions totaling $40,150 for the three months and reports $154,574 in contributions for calendar 2014 through September 30. The largest was $20,000 from David Wiener on September 8, which the statement says brought his 2014 total to $30,000, more than the $10,000 the Sentinel listed. San Bernardino County Professional Firefighters Local 935 PAC gave $2,500, for a 2014 total of $7,500, and Lewis Investment Company $2,500, for a total of $5,000. None of this exceeded a city limit, because Fontana had none in 2014 (see item 6). The 37 contributions are included in the totals above and the online donor list.

The statement itemizes $115,318.39 in payments, mostly campaign literature: $46,636.60 to Freeman Public Affairs and $39,520 to West Coast Consulting. It reports $2,050 in contributions to other campaigns, including $1,000 on August 19 to Stephen Dunn for Upland City Council 2014, the campaign of the committee's own treasurer. It also reports $1,944 for items donated to a Fontana Police Department Explorer golf tournament and the church payments described above. The committee ended September with $94,842.78 in cash. The filing has arithmetic errors. Two pages of payments carry subtotals that do not match their entries ($40,574.75 written where the entries total $43,117.88, and $1,120.35 where they total $1,259.90). The Schedule D summary reports $1,150 in contributions made, while the itemized entries total $2,050. Three pages are headed January 1 to June 30, 2014, although their entries are dated in August.

Earlier filings of the current committee. The city's NetFile portal holds scanned copies of Warren's committee's semi-annual statements back to July 2020, and the City Clerk's online document center holds the January to June 2022 statement, filed July 26, 2022 and stamped received August 2, 2022. The July to December 2020, 2021 and January to June 2022 statements were transcribed and are included in the totals above; the 2021 and 2022 statements are also in the limit tests. The July to December 2020 statement reports $149,555.20 in contributions ($186,055.20 for calendar 2020), $149,307.20 of it itemized in 77 contributions. On the posted scan, a redaction covers the date of one of them, $125 from Wallace E. Burch. The January to June 2020 statement is not posted on the city's NetFile portal, whose filings for this committee begin with July 2020, and was not found on the city's website; it must be requested from the City Clerk. The July to December statement's calendar-year figures indicate the committee received $36,500 in contributions from January to June 2020. Contributions in 2020 were not subject to a city dollar limit. The committee's loan records show it lent to Jesse Armendarez's campaign in 2016, Jasmin Hall's in 2017 and Joe Armendarez's in 2020.

Newer filing. Warren's committee filed a Form 460 for September 20 to October 17, 2026 on October 22, 2026. Its contributions dated September 20 to 30, 2026 are counted in this review. Contributions dated October 1 to 17, and late-contribution reports filed after October 17, fall after the September 30 cutoff and are not counted. The report was otherwise used only for loan balances and payments to Fontana city candidates (see items 1a and 5).

Donor addresses. The export lacks addresses. The NetFile portal lists each e-filed donor's city and ZIP code, and Cal-Access does the same for the 2010 Assembly committee. A straw-donor or shared-household check is possible at that level. It was not done for this story. Donor names are as filed; identical names may be different people.

Still unresolved. Warren's other 2014 statements, including January to June 2014 and the post-election reports, and all of her 2018 statements exist only on paper with the City Clerk. A search of the city's website and its public records portal on October 30, 2026 found none of them posted; they must be requested under the California Public Records Act.

What the money shows

The filings reviewed for this story span seventeen years, from a $100 contribution Acquanetta Warren made to her own Assembly campaign in February 2009 to her 2026 campaign for a fifth term as mayor. In that time, 672 contributors gave her committees $1.87 million.

Her largest donors over those years were developer David Wiener, $109,100; Hae Park of Bel-Air Swap Meets, $56,100; Reggie King of Young Homes, $35,900; Pallet Market, Inc., $35,100; the Fontana Police Officers Association PAC, $28,300; Gerald W. Beard Realty, $27,800; Hamed Monshizadeh, $26,400; James L. Previti, his company and his foundation, $26,200 combined; the National Association of Industrial & Office Properties, $23,300; and Michael Wiener, $20,900. Developers and homebuilders as a group gave at least $396,498, about 21% of the total, more than any other identifiable group.

Her committee also gives money to others. From July 2022 through September 2026 it gave or lent $276,794.52 to 59 recipients, most of them candidates and political committees, and it has forgiven $68,579.18 in loans. The largest recipient was Aajee Warren's 2024 water board campaign, which received $66,611.82 in loans that the committee's latest report lists as unpaid.

Several questions remain open: whether money given and lent to the 2022 and 2026 clerk and treasurer campaigns, and some donors' contributions, exceeded Fontana's limit; whether the Previti entities' 2021 contributions should be combined; and why no refunds appear for Assembly contributions made for a general election Warren did not reach. Those are matters for the city and the Fair Political Practices Commission. Most of her statements from 2010 through mid-2020 are on paper at the City Clerk's office and have not yet been obtained.

Contributing to a campaign is legal, and so is lending to one. Every amount in this story comes from reports filed by the people who gave or received the money. The full list of contributions and sources is available in one place. Fontana votes on Tuesday, November 3.
